Phillies' Choice Shocks Baseball; Henrich Dropped From Yanks' List

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—Managers Eddie Sawyer and Casey Stengel tossed a pair of shockers into the World Series picture today to compound the frenzy in Philadelphia on the day before its Whiz Kids go into battle against the New York Yankees.

Sawyer suddenly announced a radical switch in his opening-game pitchers, by-passing his ace, Robin Roberts, to entrust the Phillies fate to Jim Konstanty, hitherto known only as a relief man.

Stengel, with a startler of his own, made the announcement that he was removing his famed clutch hitter, Tommy Henrich, from the Yankee's eligible list for the series.

All of Konstanty's 16 wins and 7 defeats this year have been in relief roles but Sawyer wasn't being deterred, he said, by that fact. "I think he can beat the Yankees," he said simply "and it will give Roberts another day's rest."

Stengel's action in benching Henrich was completely unexpected. It happened during an exchange of managerial courtesies with the Phils permitting Stengel to add First Baseman Johnny Hopp to the Yankee list despite his late reporting date. In return, the Phils were allowed to make Outfielder Jack Mayo and Pitcher Jocko Thompson eligible.

"Henrich has a bad knee," Stengel explained. "And with Johnny Mize having arm trouble I didn't want to be caught with two ailing first basemen. Hopp is healthy and can play the position. Keeping Henrich out of it looked like my best bet. I hope I'm right."

Vic Raschi, the Yankees' 21-game winner and perennial money-game pitcher remained as Stengel's choice for the first game.

Simmons Gets Leave, On Way to Series

Camp Atterbury, Ind., Oct. 13 (U.P.).—Pfc. Curt Simmons tonight was granted a 10-day leave of absence from the Twenty-eighth Division to join the Philadelphia Phillies for the World Series. Simmons won 17 and lost 8 for the Phillies before he was called to duty with the Pennsylvania National Guard Division three weeks ago.

In Philadelphia, Phils Manager Eddie Sawyer indicated that he will not seek to use Simmons.

Carpenter Gets 2 Months' Work From Post Ad

Mr. M. E. Stargal of 231 Quackenbos St. ne., is a carpenter who also does papering, painting, and general repairs. To get more business, he placed a small classified ad in The Washington Post, and ordered it for fifteen insertions.

After nine times, he was forced to cancel the ad—because he had so many calls that he has all the work he can handle for the next two months.

Mr. Stargal's experience is proof again that Post advertising gets results. If you have a product or service to sell, a want ad in The Post will help you do it, quickly and easily. All you have to do is call NA. 4200 and ask for Classified.

20,000 Without Bus Service In Strike on W. M. and A. Line

A strike of 120 bus operators has been called against the W.M. & A. Motor Lines, the president of the bus company, L. L. Altman announced early today.

The W. M. & A. lines serves 20,000 passengers daily in Prince Georges County.

Altman said the strike was called by Division 1365 of the Amalgamated Ass'n of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America because of the dismissal of an operator. The company president said dismissal followed "negligence in operation of the bus causing an accident and $1500 damage to the bus."

Altman also charged the bus operator, whose name could not be learned, failed to make a "proper report and did not get the names of witnesses who were passengers in the bus at the time."

Union officials, reported in a closed meeting at an unrevealed place, could not be reached for comment early this morning.

Altman said a skeleton staff of supervisory employes would man the buses early today. The company serves such localities as Forrestville, Silver Hill, Andrews Field and Strategic Air Command.

Altman said the dismissal of the employe, over whom the strike was called, is in keeping with the company's policy in the interest of its passengers of "dismissing any employe guilty of negligence."

The motor lines head claimed the union charged the company with refusing to arbitrate the matter. He denied this with a statement that the company is willing to arbitrate.

Cotton Curbs Off, 6 Million Bale Rise Goal

The Government yesterday threw overboard all cotton planting and marketing curbs for 1951 and called for a 16-million-bale crop next year to meet the Nation's war boom needs.

That would be six million bales larger than this year's crop and on a par with the 1949 near-record production.

Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan gave cotton growers the green light to produce all they can by announcing there will be no acreage allotments or marketing quotas on next year's crop.

These are Government controls used to keep the cotton within specified limits to avoid costly surpluses.

Brannan said that "at least" 16 million bales are needed next year, and that removal of all curbs "will help insure this production needed to take care of increased domestic and export demand and to avoid depleting our reserves."

Cotton has become abnormally scarce this year, and Brannan attributed this to a combination of conditions. He noted that plantings were down this year—"well below the established national allotment." And he added that the yields—bales per acre—were the lowest since 1946.

"At the same time," he said, "prospective disappearance of cotton for this marketing year is at a high level."

Housing Units Increase 60% In Capital Area in 10 Years

The number of dwelling units in Greater Washington has increased by 60.1 percent to 425,888 within the past 10 years.

The Census Bureau reported that yesterday, in releasing its preliminary count of housing, as of April 1, 1950, in the Washington area.

In Washington itself, dwelling units increased 26.8 percent during a 10-year period. The city still has 55.1 percent of the area's dwelling units, the bureau reported.

Falls Church, Va., was the fastest growing segment of the Greater Washington area, with a 205.4 per cent jump in dwelling units. The city had 719 dwelling units on April 1, 1940 and 2196 this year.

The report showed the 719 dwelling units credited to Falls Church for the 1940 census became a part of the city's separate total when Falls Church incorporated in 1948.

Area-by-area tabulation follows:

Hershey Hits Scientists' Deferment

The American people have been sold "a lot of baloney" to the effect that scientists and professional men should be deferred from military service because we don't have enough of them, according to National Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey.

"Sure, we don't have enough of them," Major General Hershey said, "we've never had enough scientific people—but there are never enough men over there fighting, either."

Hershey said sarcastically that some "134,000 scientists—that is, members of scientific societies"—have been sent questionnaires on whether they were properly utilized during the last war.

Of the 69,000 who answered, the few thousand who thought they were not "properly utilized" seemed to be saying, according to General Hershey, "Don't send for me unless you are able to have me serve in my highest capacity."

The question, "Should Deferments be Requested for Men Between 21 and 26 in Scientific Positions in the Government?" was originally directed to William E. Leahy, D. C. Selective Service director, who shared the platform with General Hershey before the Society for Personnel Administration.

General Hershey declared he had just as much claim to being a scientist as many other so-called scientists, having received a bachelor of science degree himself, but would never claim to be qualified as one.

"If it hadn't been for Korea, a lot of those engineers, chemists, physicists and so forth wouldn't be able to find themselves a job in their fields unless they were in the upper third of their class," he asserted.

"I think it's time we had Americans first, and lawyers, doctors or scientists second," said General Hershey.

Leahy told the personnel administrators to look for a "tough" policy on occupational deferments in Washington.

He said, "We went through the 25-year-old men so fast it was like a hurricane," then through the lower ages, and "we're now working on the 22-year-olds." He said the draft boards will absorb these by November and then, when the 21-year-olds are reached, "we'll begin to meet those of school ages."

Hershey said he sometimes got the impression doctors ought to draft doctors, that farmers ought to draft farmers, and so forth.

"This would end up with doctors deferring doctors, farmers deferring farmers," he declared. He suggested the personnel administrators should look through the list of "critical occupations" and see if the "fighting man" is listed.

"If they aren't regarded as being in a critical occupation," said General Hershey, "there won't be many of the other critical occupations left."

The national draft director said "we should hold the line at the age of 26" in the draft, and be "pretty tough" on deferments below that.

AF to Grow; Army Forms New Division

Air Force plans to expand beyond the present 69-group goal were disclosed yesterday by USAF Undersecretary John McCone.

The Air Force's No. 2 man told the House Armed Services Committee that a program going beyond the projected 69 combat groups is under consideration at the Pentagon, but declined to elaborate in open session. Committee members said afterwards that a new target goal of 95 groups is being urged.

Meanwhile, the Army announced that a new infantry division is being created at Fort Benning, Ga. A cadre of officers and men under Brig. Gen. Harlan N. Hartness, designated as its commander, will report there today. The new Fourth Division is the first to be established under the Army expansion program.

When built to strength and trained, this will make a total of 17 combat divisions in active service—eleven Regular Army, four National Guard in Federal service and two Marine. A number, however, were skeletonized to beef up those in Korea and also are being rebuilt.

The Army goal under the present expansion plan has never been disclosed and probably is not too firm. But owing to desires of Pentagon chiefs to concentrate available funds largely on procurement of new weapons, it is unlikely that more than one more Regular Army division will be organized and more than one or two Guard divisions will be called in the foreseeable future.

Secretary McCone, called for testimony in the House committee's inquiry into defense expansion plans, declared the aircraft industry can complete the 69-group program by the end of 1953 with only minor plant expansion. But he warned that rising prices will require hundreds of millions of dollars beyond original estimates to be appropriated or the Air Force will be short of modern planes.

With prices of materials already up and wage increases expected, McCone said the Air Force will have to pay from 7 to 8 percent more for the 4428 planes Congress provided money to order this year. This will mean another 315 million dollars to 360 million dollars must be voted, or some 750 F-86 jet fighters or their equivalent cannot be bought.

Chairman Carl Vinson (D., Ga.) quickly ruled out the latter alternative, saying that Congress "must control prices or provide the additional money."

McCone and other Air Force officials also gave these details of the air expansion program:

(1) A speedup in the production of equipment and training of men will put the Nation's continental radar screen into operation well ahead of schedule. The 24 "most critical" stations will be built by January 1 and crews in place by March 1—well ahead of the July 1 deadline. However, the Alaskan warning net will not be "substantially" finished until November, 1951, with some work going over until 1952.

District and 26 Eastern States Agree on Air Defense Signals

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

The District of Columbia and 26 Eastern States have agreed to use these public air raid signals:

A three-minute fluctuating or wavering blast means an attack is imminent—the Air Force's "red" signal.

A three-minute steady blast means all clear—the Air Force's "white" signal.

But each State and the District will have to work out its own method of sounding the warning blast, whether by sirens, whistles or some other device. The District has yet to decide on its signals.

Conference of Directors

The decision was made at the Conference of Civil Defense Directors from the states east of the Mississippi meeting with the National Security Resources Board's civil defense office headed by James J. Wadsworth. The decision was announced yesterday by Lawrence Wilkinson, deputy New York State civil defense director and vice chairman of the Eastern States Conference of Civil Defense Directors. Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young and Civil Defense Director John E. Fondahl represented the District.

Wilkinson explained the idea is to prevent confusion and to make sure a person from one city will know the signals if visiting in another city.

Some State directors were miffed that the Air Force eliminated the old 15-minute "blue" alert signal without asking their advice or telling them in advance. The Air Force said later there probably wouldn't be time to issue "graduated or selected warnings." The change also made the "red" signal mean "attack imminent"

Five Maryland Counties Named to Aid District

Maryland has designated five counties to aid the District in case of an A-bomb attack—Montgomery, Prince Georges, Calvert, Charles and St. Marys. Each will aid a particular zone in Washington, once such zones are set up.

Washington, in turn, is expected to issue air raid warnings to the five Maryland counties, according to the State's civil defense plan made public yesterday at the State defense directors meeting here. Maryland Director David G. McIntosh 3d gave out the copies of the printed plan, which generally follows Federal suggestions already made.

Menacing Attitude Eyed

U. S. Allied Diplomats Uneasy Over Peiping Course on Korea

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

The question-mark that hung over Korea yesterday, brooding and menacing, was the attitude of Communist China.

Officials here and in many foreign capitals wondered uneasily what the Chinese in Peiping would do, now that United Nations troops were stabbing northward toward the Chinese-Korean border.

The most widespread opinion was that the Chinese would send more war material to their North Korean neighbors for use in guerilla operations. Officials generally did not think China would come openly into the war, but they did not rule out the possibility.

If Peiping were to throw its masses of men and weapons into Korea, in defiance of all reason and logic, it would do much more than endanger the United Nations victory there. It would embroil the United States and the United Nations in a war that would have no purpose and no conceivable ending.

For this reason Allied diplomacy was doing what it could, behind the scenes, to persuade the Chinese Communists not to come in.

Anxiety about Peiping's policy has risen and fallen like a fever chart since the start of the Korean war. Until early last week U. N. diplomats were congratulating themselves that the Chinese would stay out, in spite of threatening statements from time to time.

But in the middle of last

India, Yugoslavia Urge U. N. Compromise on Korean Peace

LAKE SUCCESS, Oct. 3 (AP).—Communist Yugoslavia joined India today in asking the United Nations to try to find a compromise solution between East and West programs for Korean peace.

But a succession of other delegates in the General Assembly 60-nation political committee piled up support for an eight-nation plan to unite the country as an independent nation.

Australia told the committee that North Korean resistance must be smashed and the entire country occupied by the U. N. to guarantee peace and unity. Canada and the Philippines agreed generally with this.

Canada's Lester B. Pearson also said that Andrei Vishinsky, Soviet Foreign Minister, had rejected any idea of compromise in a statement last night.

Yugoslavia and India favor a subcommittee to study the provisions of a Russian bloc plan and of the unification program submitted by Britain and seven other powers.

Both the Yugoslav and Indian delegation leaders rapped Russian proposals to pull U. N. forces out of Korea immediately.

Yugoslav Foreign Minister Edvard Kardelj suggested, however, that the thirty-eighth parallel should be continued as an administrative boundary between the two sections of Korea until the country is ready for unification.

He insisted, too, that the U. N. supervise all unification moves.

Russia's final effort to get the Assembly to accept its plan was scheduled to lead off the As-

Soviet-Made Jets Reported Using Shanghai Field

HONGKONG, Oct. 3 (AP). — A reliable report from Shanghai said today fast, new Russian-made jet fighter planes are operating there from Hungjao field.

Hungjao was the home base of Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's Chinese Air Transport (CAT) command before the Communists seized Shanghai.

The report identified the Russian planes as improved Yak single-seat fighters. Their top speed was estimated at 550 miles an hour.

Other Soviet-built aircraft also were reported seen over the city. These include TU-2 bombers and many LA-7 fighter-trainers.

Tighter Credit Buying Curbs Are Forecast

Reserve Board Also Rushing Restrictions On Housing Activity

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Credit restrictions, aimed at deflooming runaway activity in housing construction, may be issued as soon as this weekend, and if not, early next week, it was indicated yesterday.

The Federal Reserve Board and the Federal Housing Administration are busy working out final technical problems on the orders. They will prescribe the extent of credit that may be extended both by the FHA and Veterans Administration, on the Government side, and by banks and other home lending agencies on the private side.

Meantime, there were indications that the Federal Reserve Board was also thinking of making more severe previously issued regulations on installment buying.

Although FRB officials were hesitant in talking about the subject, an impression prevailed that they were nettled and disturbed at widespread criticism that the earlier restrictions on time-buying were too generous.

From one source there was a suggestion that action might come within 10 days. Meantime, board members are carefully watching such few statistics as are available on the effect of the earlier rules, set forth on September 18. Some experts feel that they have successfully curtailed inflationary activity in the used-car market.

Other Administration economists, however, have charged that the regulations are not having the desired deflationary effect of cutting down sales of the items usually sold on the installment plan—new cars, furniture and heavy household equipment such as re-

Fired On Over Fort Meade, 4 Airline Pilots Tell CAA

Four commercial airline pilots have complained to the Civil Aeronautics Administration that their planes were fired upon while passing over Fort Meade, Md.

Yesterday, Second Army Headquarters at Fort Meade admitted that bullets had been fired but denied they were aimed at the planes.

First complaint was made by a Capital Airlines pilot, who reported an incident on September 26.

On the night of October 2, pilots for three other lines, Eastern, American and National, said they thought their planes had been fired upon.

Second Army Headquarters said the incidents occurred because it is sending troops through an infiltration course at night under live fire.

The men are being trained under tracer fire, which is spent at from 500 to 600 feet.

Also used on the course are 75 millimeter guns mounted on tanks. The charges in these guns are on a flat trajectory, and the rounds are spent at between 600 and 700 yards, Second Army said.

They said that neither form of ammunition presented any hazard to aircraft. They said they have a policy of giving the CAA two days advance notice when they fire mortars, only high-angle firing conducted at Meade.

McArthur Surrender Order Is Ignored; Enemy Increases Supply Movement

TOKYO (Wednesday), Oct. 4 (AP).—United Nations air power blasted Red supply arteries in North Korea today but searched in vain for signs of a Communist defense line against South Korean forces advancing 50 miles beyond the thirty-eighth parallel.

Pilots claimed they knocked out 85 camouflaged trucks in a Red convoy moving down Tuesday from the direction of Chinese Communist Manchuria. Swarms of carrier-based and land-based planes pressed the widespread aerial attacks and light bombers kept the assault going through the night.

South Korean forces racing up the east coast made the deep penetration into North Korea.

No United States troops were north of the thirty-eighth parallel but Marines were reported today by the United States Tenth Corps to have captured Uijongbu, within 18 miles of the artificial boundary. It is 12 miles north of Seoul.

The convoy of camouflaged trucks which American pilots reported southbound from the direction of Manchuria was one of several attacked Tuesday.

Aground, South Korean forces were observed headed west toward a Red concentration area 15 miles north of the thirty-eighth parallel. A third motorized Communist convoy on the east coast was lost sight of after being driven to cover by rocket and jellied gasoline attacks from the air.

The widely separated supply movements by the Reds were in progress more than two days after Gen. Douglas MacArthur called on the North Korean regime to surrender or face destruction.

No response has come from the Soviet-sponsored Red regime at Pyongyang, North Korean capital.

Increased traffic on the highway leading from Antung, on the west bank of the Yalu River in Red Manchuria, to Pyongyang was first noted about dusk on Monday, a Fifth Air Force spokesman said.

B-26 light intruder bombers kept watch over the column during the night. Pilots reported the vehicles were "not bumper to bumper, but fairly heavy" in number.

Tuesday morning fighter bombers roared over the highway in force. They found camouflaged trucks in hiding off the road.

The Air Force reported 56 trucks destroyed and 12 damaged while five other vehicles were destroyed and 12 more damaged.

About 35 of the destroyed trucks

Truman Crosses The 38th Parallel, Going and Coming

ABOARD THE YACHT COMMANDER, with President Truman Oct. 3. (U.P.)—The United Nations and Gen Douglas MacArthur may have hesitated but President Truman didn't — he crossed the thirty eighth parallel.

Mr. Truman, vacationing aboard the presidential yacht Williamsburg, has been crossing and recrossing the same thirty-eighth parallel that is causing so much furor in waging the Korean war.

Of course, the President's yacht happens to be in Chesapeake Bay, not Korea. And he's headed south across the line just as often as he's headed north.

Van Gogh Portrait Ruled Authentic, Enters Duty-Free

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (NYHT).—The United States Treasury has ruled that a questioned $50,000 Vincent Van Gogh self-portrait, last winter the center of controversy, is authentic.

Hyattsville Man Killed in Action

Pfc. Bennington Pfc. Fagiola
. . . Their names on casualty list

A Hyattsville soldier who enlisted when he was only 15 died in action in Korea one day after he was due for discharge, it was disclosed yesterday.

Pfc. Robert W. Bennington, 18, met death on September 16, according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Bennington, of 6501 41st ave., University Park.

The youth was due for discharge on September 15 after a three-year hitch, according to his parents. He got into the Army originally by concealing his true age, they said.

A Defense Department casualty list released yesterday also announced that Marine Pfc. Edward Fagiola, 21, of 7 West Delray ave., Alexandria, has been wounded in action.

In a letter to his fiancee, Caroline Lewter of 4904 Lackawanna st., Berwyn, Md., Bennington said he was "about 10 miles from the front lines" but didn't know if he was "going into action at all."

Enlisting in 1947 after his junior year at Hyattsville High School, Bennington served 2½ years in Japan with the Twenty-seventh "Wolfhead" Infantry Division. He shipped to Korea in July with the Twenty-third Infantry Regiment of the Second Division.

Besides his parents, he is survived by a brother, William E. Bennington, jr., who saw Air Force duty in World War II, and three sisters.

Private Fagiola was wounded in action September 15, according to word received by his foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond A. Winters, of the Delray address.

After attending George Washington High School for two years, Fagiola joined the Leathernecks at 17. He did two of his four years' enlistment in Japan. Released from the Marine Corps in May, he reenlisted in July.

The Air Force revealed yesterday it has suffered 179 casualties in the Korean war. This includes 22 killed, 32 who died of wounds, 88 missing and 37 wounded who lived.

Maryland Cuts Rate of Army Rejections

Maryland has drastically reduced its draftee rejection rate and has attained one of the best induction records in the country, it was learned yesterday.

Incomplete returns for September indicate 69 out of 100 Free State draftees successfully passed the physical and mental tests.

During the same month the statistics indicate, both in Virginia and in the District only 47 out of 100 draftees got through the pre-induction exams, a proportion just about average for the country as a whole.

Maryland's draftee rejection rate for July was 52 percent. In August the rejection rate dropped a little. For the first 25 days of September, the rejection rate has fallen to 30.9 percent.

Col. Henry C. Stanwood, draft director, attributed Maryland's outstanding record to two factors: 1. The September draftees were in the 22-year-age bracket. 2. The local boards were doing a better screening job.

In the District the rejection rate had been running at 60 percent until September, when it fell to 53.7 percent. Virginia also has consistently had a 60 percent rejection rate. It fell to 53 percent in September.

Today 100 draftees who have passed their tests, and 36 draftees who have failed to show up for their pre-induction exams, are scheduled to be inducted at the Army's induction center, Arlington Farms, Va.

Wounded GI Develops Yen for Navy Ice Cream

The Washington Post
Pfc. William H. Creed smiling from his Naval Hospital bed

They're digging the shrapnel out of Pfc. William H. Creed, 19, at Bethesda Naval Hospital.

So far they've got enough out of his head to "cover a half dollar." After he recovers from this knifing job they'll start on his back.

"Only six or seven pieces there," he said happily, hitching his hospital bed to a comfortable slope. "What do I like best about getting back to the States from Korea? Man, it's ice cream. This Navy, they sure got ice cream" Though in a naval hospital, Creed is an Army man.

But out with the whole truth! Soldier Creed doesn't cotton to this Navy java.

"Man, how od they get that coffee so strong?" he mused to a Navy man in the next bed. "They don't make coffee that way in the Army. This Navy coffee, I have to dump a bowlful of sugar in it before I can drink it. Strong! Man!"

"Mac," drily returned the Navy man, "I been drinking it nine years and I ain't suffered."

But if you've got to be in a hospital, it's glory to be near home, which is only across the river. Creed is the son of Mrs. Hilda Creed of Seminary rd. in Alexandria.

Nineteen months he'd done in the Army and August 16 found him seeing the world from the vantage point of a foxhole on a hill.

"Just two shells—that's all it was," he said. It was something to hear two shells kissed off so thoroughly.

A number of shell fragments found a home in the Army—in Creed's head and back. But the docs, they do great things these days, just give them time and they'll have them out of there.

But Army man Creed is lapping up that seagoing ice cream. But man, that coffee the Navy makes!!

Area Men Among 80 Liberated Prisoners

TOKYO, Oct. 3 (AP).—Eighty American prisoners, liberated by advancing United States troops in South Korea, were flown to Tokyo today in four transport planes.

They arrived from southern Japan where the rescued men had rested several days after leaving Korea. Eight were sent to the Tokyo Army hospital, 11 to the 155th Station hospital in Yokohama and the others to the 128th hospital at Zama, about 20 miles from Yokohama.

Those liberated include:

Pvt. Billy Scarborough, Keokee, Va.; Pfc. Phillip L. Shipley, 20, N. Vermont st., Williamsport, Md.

Sino-Tibetan Pact Forecast

NEW DELHI, India, Oct. 3 (U.P.).—The influential Hindustan Times today forecast a peaceful ending to the now strained relations between Communist China and Tibet.

The newspaper's editorial followed yesterday's luncheon in honor of Communist China's first anniversary, to which the four Tibetan delegates were invited by Chinese Ambassador Yuan Chung-hsien.

Reliable sources said the Tibetan delegation will visit Peiping to finish the talks begun here with Yuan.

Claims Eased For Parents of POWs Who Die

Parents of deceased World War II prisoners of war who are found eligible for benefits under the War Claims Act are going to find it easier to get their money, the War Claims Commission said yesterday.

President Truman signed an amendment Saturday to the act to remove the requirement that such parents prove they were dependent on the POW's. The agency said here is how it works:

Former prisoners of war are entitled to $1 a day for each day spent in an enemy prison camp. If they die before collecting their $1 a day, no matter when death occurs, their survivors are entitled to the money.

Widows and children, says the act, are first-line survivors, and the $1-a-day payment goes to them, if there are any. If there aren't, the money is payable to the POW's parents—but the parents up to last Saturday, had to prove they were dependent on the deceased POW before they could collect. Now they don't.

A DREAM COME TRUE

In one way or another, I have been in the wine business—both here and in Italy—practically all my life.

During all that time I have had one ambition—to own a fine store in a fine city, and to use my knowledge of good wines and liquors to serve my customers the way they should be served. And by this I mean on a basis of quality, price and service.

Perhaps you may think this is a big order in a busy world like today. I don't feel that way. I still believe if any one is interested in doing a better job, there are still enough discriminating people left to know it.

Now my dream has come true and my store is open. My selection of brands—my prices and service now must speak for themselves. And perhaps out of my years of experience, I can help with a word or two. Won't you please come in and look around?

Reds Kill 700 At a Korean 'Buchenwald'

By Robert C. Miller

SOUTH KOREAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS (Wednesday), Oct. 4 (AP).—A Korean Red murder camp where 700 Korean civilians including children were executed has been discovered near Seoul, an American Army officer reported today.

The officer said that Communists burned, shot and bayoneted the prisoners before fleeing.

The "Red Buchenwald" was located at Yangyong, 36 miles east of Seoul.

It was reported to South Korean army headquarters by Col. Francis E. Gillette, Cincinnati. Colonel Gillette is an adviser to the Republic of Korea Second Corps.

Colonel Gillette reported he has made photographs of the murder camp and is sending them to the United Nations.

Previously the bodies of 1100 Korean civilians slain by Communist Korean invaders were found in the rubbled city of Taejon in South Korea. Some 127 other bodies with their hands bound behind their backs were found in Seoul.

A South Korean who said he was an eyewitness to the mass executions told Colonel Gillette the massacres had taken place between September 23 and September 29. The witness, identified as Kim Chin Sin, said the victims included policemen and leaders and members of the Korean right-wing Nationalist Youth Association.

The executioners were officers of the Korean Red Army.

The American Army Officer's report to the South Korean Army included this statement:

"It will be extremely difficult to prevent retaliation measures in the future."

A MOUNTAIN VILLAGE NORTH OF SEOUL, Oct. 3 (U.P.)—A band of South Korean guerillas, which fought deep behind enemy lines for two months before the liberation of Seoul, has captured 250 prisoners and killed at least 200 Communists.

The guerilla organization, made up of farmers and tradesmen and led by a Seoul postal inspector, stole guns and ammunition from Communists, foraged for food and managed to get along with only the most primitive first aid equipment.

Headquarters for the band was in this mountain village north of Seoul. They attacked Communist convoys and outposts by night and hid by day in the deep gorges of the Pibong Mountains, within sight of Seoul.

About all they had on which to keep going was a violent hatred of communism. They began with 20 men and two rifles. Now there are almost 200 of them, and they are working with the American and Korean armies.

Leader is 33 Years Old

Since the arrival of the Marines, Sung has moved out of his mountain stronghold into a village school in foothills near the front line.

There is a temptation to laugh at the guerillas, who look like something passed over at a rummage sale. Guards outside present arms with bamboo spears and discarded bayonets. The only military thing about them is their cast-off, baggy GI trousers.

Sung apologized through his interpreter, Marine Lluet. Albert Hausske, Bellevue, Wash., for the lack of uniforms.

"You see, we are not soldiers," he explained. "We are farmers and tradesmen who banded together to fight this menace from the north. Some of our men were in the South Korean army and escaped to the mountains and we used them to train recruits. Food always was a problem, and the only way we obtained weapons was by killing North Koreans and taking theirs.

Sung led the way into a bare school room followed by 20 of his followers, all eager to see Americans.

How They Harassed Enemy

They told how they harassed the Communists and killed them from mountain hiding places.

"From our lookouts in the mountains, we could see troops moving down the roads," Sung said. "We had our agents scattered throughout the country disguised as farmers and peddlers. At night we would ambush convoys or raid supply dumps and then scatter. We arranged our rendezvous hours later in the mountains."

Several times during the conversation, teen-aged youngsters pushed through the group crowded around Sung's desk, saluted him smartly and started jabbering in Korean.

"These are agents who are bringing in their intelligence reports," Hausske said. "They know where every Communist and American unit is located, and have saved our troops from several ambushes."

Sec. Matthews Given Dorie Miller Award

Secretary of the Navy Matthews yesterday accepted the Dorie Miller Foundation award for outstanding achievement in the field of race relations.

Elmer Fowler of Chicago, president of the foundation, made the presentation in recognition of the development of the Navy's racial policy last year.

The award memorializes Dorie Miller, a Negro steward, who lost his life in World War II. Miller won the Navy Cross for heroism aboard the battleship West Virginia during the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

War Widow's 8-Year Faith Comes to End

BERKELEY, Calif., Oct. 3 (U.P.). Mrs. Hilda M. Roy, 36, finally realized in despair that her husband never was coming back

Eight years ago, the Navy reported Lieut. William C. Roy, USNR, was missing on patrol of the submarine Grayback. The Navy said there was no hope. The Japanese sank the submarine.

That was six weeks after the Roys were married. Some months later, Mrs. Roy bore a son. She refused to give up hope that the husband would return.

Three years ago, she dreamed her husband was home. The dream was so vivid she was convinced it must mean something. She went to a fortuneteller.

The fortuneteller envisioned a desert island, and a man with natives caring for him. Mrs. Roy returned again and again for further hopeful visions.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Willis, finally refused to give her money to visit the fortuneteller. They sent her to San Jose State College last summer to renew her teacher's credentials.

Mrs. Roy returned home still believing her husband was alive. Then the family decided to send her to Southern California with a sister, Mrs. James R. Blackburn.

Mrs. Blackburn's husband heard a shot as he was parking the car yesterday.

Speed of Advance in Korea Was Not Anticipated by Public

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 3— The speed with which United Nations forces broke the main fighting power of the North Korean Reds came as a big surprise to most Americans, a survey of national opinion reveals.

Even as late as mid-September the typical American was envisaging another six months of fighting with one person in seven believing that the war there would last more than a year.

In mid-September, interviewers for the American Institute of Public Opinion questioned a carefully-constructed cross-section of voters from Maine to California, asking:

"Just your best guess, about how much longer do you think the war in Korea will last?"

Most of the interviewing was completed by September 22, and here are the results:

One month or less	5%
About one to six months	28
Six months	18
Between six months and one year	19
More than a year	14
No opinion	16

Median answer: Six months, or about March, 1951.

Despite the bloody fighting and losses of the summer when our military position in Korea looked gloomy and it was obvious that Witnesses told the U. N. representatives the heads of some South Koreans were bashed in with rocks before the bodies were thrown in the well. Others, they said, were thrown in alive and rocks were hurled down on them.

(Hundreds upon hundreds of South Korean civilians have been killed by the fleeing Reds elsewhere—at Seoul, Teajon, Chongju and nearby villages. Associated Press Correspondent Bem Price reported 1100 bodies were found in Taejon alone.

(Bodies of 30 American soldiers were found there earlier. Price said searchers feared as many as 6000 South Korean bodies might ultimately be found in Taejon. Mass graves also were being turned up in Seoul, the capital.)

North Koreans taken prisoner by the Twenty-fifth Division said their units had disintegrated. They said their officers told them to try to reach the thirty-eighth parallel as they could.

82 Slain With Bamboo Spears As Reds Attack Loyal Koreans

By Stan Swinton

WITH U. S. 25TH DIVISION on the Yellow Sea, Korea, Oct. 3 (AP).—A new batch of massacre survivors reported today that pro-Communist Koreans stabbed 82 South Koreans dead with bamboo spears Monday.

Witnesses said the victims were men, women and children in the anti-Communist village of Chungyong, a few miles south of the west coast port of Kunsan.

The survivors said Red sympathizers slipped out of the hills at dawn and roused peasants from their sleeping mats.

They gave this account:

All were herded into a circle and the Reds walked around the group, leering at them and stabbing them one by one.

Afterwards, the renegades of the republic walked through the blood-stained lanes singling out individuals and killing them. They fled back into the hills shortly after dawn.

Peasant neighbors sharpened bamboo sticks of their own and formed a posse to chase the renegades, who had no guns.

Later, after South Korean authorities informed this infantry division, heavily armed patrols of doughboys were dispatched to help in the hunt.

South Korean survivors said they recognized the attacking band as former residents of the area who joined the Communists during the North Korean control here. The local Reds took to the hills when the Red invader army disintegrated.

United Nations investigators reported another Red atrocity. They said 23 bodies were found in a well near Kunsan.

Stocks of War II Near Exhaustion

HEIDELBERG, Germany, Oct. 3 (AP).—Top American Army officers today said United States World War II stocks in Europe are virtually exhausted and it will be a long, tough job to rearm the proposed European army and bolster American forces in Germany.

Gen. Thomas Handy's staff gave a group of American editors on a special tour of Europe a briefing on the logistic problems of rearming Europe. Handy is commander of the American forces in Europe.

French Planes Bomb, Strafe Viet Minh Fleeing Thainguyen

SAIGON, Indo-China, Oct. 3 (U.P.). Three columns of French troops pursued Communist-led native forces north, east and south of captured Thainguyen today, while air force planes ranged ahead, bombing and strafing the rebels.

A French military spokesman said one column was pushing north from Thainguyen, vital North Indo-China road hub, headquarters of Communist leader Ho Chih Minh. Backan is 20 miles above Thainguyen.

Other units of French Legionnaires, colonial and loyal Viet Nam troops fanned out east and south. The French spokesman said their purpose was to clean the Reds out of the fertile delta triangle on which they relied heavily for food.

French control of the rice fields would be a heavy blow to any Communist plans for a general offensive. The triangle is a lacework of rice fields between the Songcau River on the east and the Tamdo Mountains on the west. Thainguyen is at the apex and the Red River runs along one side.

Enemy Convoys Are Bombed

were bagged in the vicinity of Pyongyang.

Truck kills were reported in four highway towns from Yongyu, 20 miles northeast of Pyongyang, to Anju and Sinanju, both about 50 miles northeast of the Communist capital.

Attack Made at Kwaksan

The fourth town where Red trucks were attacked was Kwaksan, about 46 miles east of the Chinese Communist border city of Antung.

The Fifth Air Force spokesman did not speculate on where the convoys originated. It is generally believed, however, that the North Koreans have no reserves or supplies in that area.

To avoid border incidents with the Chinese Reds, American planes are observing a 30-mile bomb free zone along the Manchurian border.

Carrier-based planes struck coordinated blows. A Navy summary today said the raiders knocked out spans of three river bridges north of Pyongyang. The planes, from Task Force 77, raided "the western half of Korea north of the thirty-eighth parallel," the Navy said.

Supply Arteries Bombed

The Far East Air Force said light bombers ranged up and down the North Korean railway lines from midnight Tuesday until dawn Wednesday, bombing supply arteries and hunting for any sign of large southbound troop movements.

B-29s worked over a major Red troop concentration area at Sariwon, 35 miles south of Pyongyang.

The closest American ground forces were 115 miles southeast of Pyongyang at the time the supply movements were detected and blasted from the air.

Key Point in Red Invasion

Uijongbu was the key point in the historic invasion route the North Koreans took last June 25 in their drive south of the thirty-eighth parallel.

South Koreans of the Third Republican division were pushing north of that arbitrary line which for five years divided industrial Korea from the agricultural southland.

Republican spearheads probed into Kosong on the east coast, 50 air miles north of the parallel. Offshore, Allied warships were ready to provide fire-support, if needed. Overhead Allied planes flew 15 miles ahead of the column without observing signs of resistance.

As the Third Division advanced, two top American generals, Lieut. Gen. Walton H. Walker of the Eighth Army and Maj. Gen. Earle E. Partridge, Fifth Air Force Commander, flew to Kangnung, just south of the thirty-eighth parallel, to confer with the commander of the South Korean First Corps, Maj. Gen. Kim Pak Il.

The nature of their talk was not disclosed.

U. S. Military Advisers in North

Some 60 American military advisers with South Korean troops were under new orders not to discuss the campaign with war correspondents. They were reported fearful that the Reds might loose a flank attack.

South Korean field officers, however, were not restricted, and talked freely.

"We are going to the borders of Manchuria," Lieut. Col. Jung Rei Hiok, chief of staff of the Third Division, told the Associated Press correspondent Hal Boyle.

Jung said the main handicap was lack of transport. The division hoped to reach its border goal before the bitter Korean winter sets in about mid-November.

Korean civilians in the former "Iron Curtain" zone tossed flowers at the southerners, and gave them gifts of apples and persimmons.

Still Report Seoul Area Fight

The official Red radio, instead, resumed its broadcast of the Korean Communist Army communique which reported continued heavy fighting in the Seoul area.

AP Correspondent William Jorden with South Korean forces north of the thirty-eighth parallel reported well-fed and fresh North Korean troops were among prisoners captured by the Republican capital division above the old boundary line.

Jorden said a column of 75 trucks loaded with troops was reported moving south along the Korean east coast Monday night, but pilots, up at dawn Tuesday, were unable to locate them.

These reports, Jorden said, gave strength to the contention that the Reds are not yet beaten, that they have forces in reserve and that they intend to use them.

Column in Chorwon Area

The second Communist motorized column was observed from the air moving west on the Kumwha-Chorwon highway, about 15 miles north of the thirty-eighth parallel in the narrow midsection of Korea.

Chorwon previously had been mentioned in intelligence reports as a concentration point for Reds who were in flight from the south.

The latest aerial reports indicated about 2000 Reds were in the Chorwon sector.

Chorwon is 40 miles northeast of the American Marine force occupying Uijongbu and about equally distant from the South Korean Sixth Division moving up to the thirty-eighth parallel from Chunchon.

The South Korean Eighth Division was 60 miles southeast of Chorwon in the vicinity of Chechon, where Red holdout forces withdrew to the hills after suffering heavy casualties.

General MacArthur took cognizance of the South Korean advance across the thirty-eighth parallel in six words at the tag end of his Tuesday afternoon release. He said merely that "other divisional units (of the Third South Korean Division) advanced to Tongcho."

Air of Caution Prevails

Tongcho is a village 13 miles north of the border on the east coast.

An air of caution was detected in both official dispatches and reports from field correspondents as the South Korean army continued north.

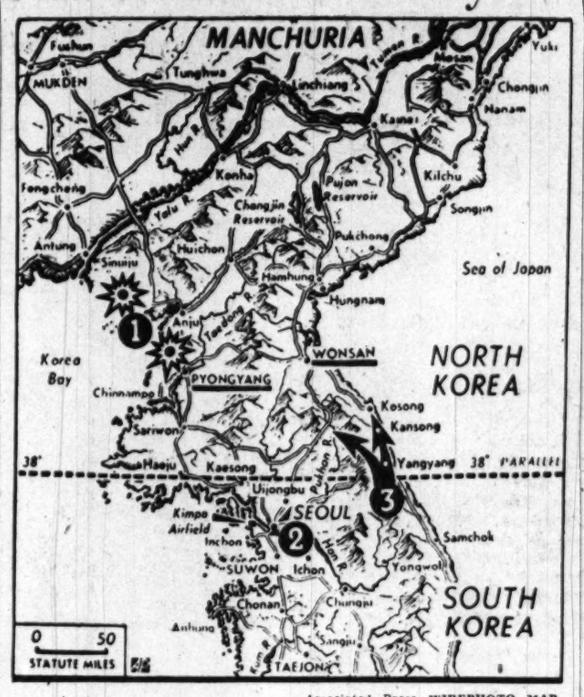
Planes Bomb Red Convoys



Associated Press WIREPHOTO MAP

VEHICLES WRECKED—American airmen attacked enemy convoys of trucks and other equipment moving south on the road from Antung (1), across the Yalu River border of Communist Manchuria. The convoys were headed in the direction of Pyongyang, capital of North Korea. Pyongyang again was visited by United States bombers. In the Seoul area (2), Allied forces took Uijongbu and Ichon. On the east coast (3), South Koreans pushed northward. One column neared Kosong in a drive toward Wonsan (underlined) and another fanned westward from captured Yangyang

"the worst is over." He said his troops probably had crossed into Communist territory without specific Eighth Army orders but seemed confident that the Eighth Army would not force them to withdraw.

Rhee said the most urgent need now was for housing to shelter the population as winter approached.

The 75-year-old President, tired and worn, promised that if the Communists "turn around and pledge to support the nation and to rebuild it, we will give them a chance."

However, Rhee believed the North Korean leaders would run over the borders to Communist Manchuria or Soviet Siberia. If the Red leaders stayed in Korea, "they might find it uncomfortable," Rhee said.

Bar Rule of 'Military Mind' In Korea Peace, Nehru Warns

NEW DELHI, India, Oct. 3 (AP). Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru today warned against letting the "military mind" impose a solution in Korea, which he said contained the "seeds of a mighty conflict."

The Prime Minister spoke at the eleventh session of the Institute of Pacific Relations at Lucknow and his address was received here by radio.

The people, he said, wanted the Korean conflict localized, "yet sometimes the military mind peeped out and wanted to go much further, thinking it would solve other problems, but not realizing the lessons of history that if you go too far you topple over and get entangled in other problems."

He declared he did not think military methods solved any problem, and "if a nation develops a military mentality there is little hope for that nation."

He added, in an obvious reference to the Allied demand for unconditional surrender, that World War II might have ended a year earlier if the resolve to carry it to the extreme limit had not been insisted upon. In going the limit, he added, the objective for which the war was fought was betrayed.

Ten countries are represented at the institute, including the United States, Britain, Canada, France, the Netherlands, Japan, the Philippines, New Zealand, India and Pakistan.

Hindu Extremists Reject Nehru View on Parallel

NEW DELHI, India, Oct. 3 (U.P.) The working committee of the All-India Hindu Mahasabha today voted against Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru's suggestion that United Nations forces should not cross the thirty-eighth parallel in Korea.

The Mahasabha, which is an extremist organization, held its annual session at Moradabad. The committee supported Nehru's move for a united Korea.

sembly debates Wednesday morning.

Sir Benegal N. Rau, chief Indian delegate, said his country cannot support either plan in its present form. But he opposed Russian demands that "foreign troops" quit Korea immediately. "That would leave the South Koreans at the mercy of the North Koreans," Rau said.

He expressed fear that U. N. occupation of all Korea, as demanded by Australia's External Affairs Minister, Percy Spender, would "increase tension in that part of the world" and might stiffen North Korean resistance.

Rau has made no secret of India's worry that Red China might take a hand in the Korean conflict.

Debate to Continue

The debate promised to go into Thursday despite anxiety of most delegates to get action on the eight-nation plan. The Economic and Social Committee has been alerted for an emergency meeting to adopt measures for Korean rehabilitation as soon as the majority plan is approved.

The eight-nation plan is sponsored by Britain, Australia, the Philippines, Pakistan, Cuba, Brazil, the Netherlands and Norway. It calls for U. N. supervision over Korea through a commission that would arrange for and supervise elections, unify the country, and plan for its rehabilitation.

The Russian plan, supported by the Slav bloc, demands an instant cease fire, withdrawal of foreign troops, setting up an election observing commission to include Russia and Red China, and elections to be held in both North and South Korea to unify the country.

Rau said India may change its mind about the eight-nation program if the North Koreans refuse to lay down arms."

No Formal Proposal

He made no formal proposal in the committee, but a delegation spokesman said Rau thinks the General Assembly should set a 10- or 15-day deadline for the North Koreans to quit fighting. If they fought after that deadline, India would look more favorably on the majority-favored plan, which Rau assesses as authorizing U. N. troops to sweep north of the thirty-eighth parallel.

"This is a moment for restraint," Rau said. He declared no impression should be left that the U. N. was trying to unify Korea by force.

Spender, in a plain-spoken speech passing "the lie direct" to Vishinsky charges that the U. N. commission on Korea is a United States tool, also dismissed a South Korean claim to complete authority over the liberated area in North Korea.

"Our idea of unification does not mean that," Spender said. "It would be quite improper if we were to mislead them into thinking we could support such a claim by their government.

"They have legal authority over only a limited area, and it will be for the commission to bring about a unified Korea and to determine the steps necessary for its achievement."

Soviet Claims Derided

Spender, Pearson and Carlos P. Romulo of the Philippines derided Soviet bloc claims that South Korea and the United States were the aggressors in North Korea.

Spender said that "it would be useless if North Korean forces were allowed to remain ready again to threaten South Korea. The bloodshed and destruction of the last months would all have been in vain."

All three agreed, however, that U. N. troops do not want to stay any longer than necessary to insure that Korea is safe as a free and independent nation.

The speakers pointed out that North Korea had refused to heed Security Council cease-fire orders in June. Romulo asked Vishinsky why it had taken him more than three months to bring up a recommendation for cessation of hostilities in Korea. He said U. N. forces had to stay in Korea until all the U. N. decisions to maintain the republic were carried out.

Wilkinson said he agreed with the "restricted" classification on NSRB maps of critical target areas. He said that while they contain no information any foreign power probably couldn't assemble, there is "no point in confirming the enemy G-2." In military parlance G-2 is the intelligence section.

Wilkinson said the NSRB spokesmen made it clear the Federal Government intends to work through the states in civil defense matters, not directly with the cities. Mayors of major cities will meet here Thursday and Friday, reportedly to demand, among other things, more direct contact between the Federal and municipal programs without going through state channels.

The New Yorker also said NSRB gave no committments on Federal financial aid. NSRB said it is preparing a budget for submission to Congress, probably in November, but that, meanwhile, the States will have to go ahead on their own. New York, for example, will ask for defense funds when its legislature meets in January.

In a District defense development, city heads agreed to study further the idea of a home guard. Inspector Fondahl met with the Commissioners, Police Supt. Robert J. Barrett and the District National Guard's commanding officer, Brig. Gen. William H. Abendroth. They agreed numerous legal questions should be answered first, including one as to who would have the power to call out such a guard force. No action is expected for some time.

Barrett told reporters that police have only 236 applicants for the proposed 4000-man auxiliary police corps. He expressed disappointment at the small number of volunteers for the non-paid jobs. Only the Eighth Precinct, 42nd and Albemarle sts. nw., has more applicants than the minimum of 50. It has 60 but not all are expected to be accepted, Barrett added.

Air Force to Expand; Army Adding Division

creased 75,000 since the Korean war started and now totals about 486,000 officers and men. The goal for next June 30—when 58 groups will be organized—is 568,334, including 80,128 officers. Brig. Gen. Harlan Parks, USAF personnel planning chief, said the goal can be reached without using the draft.

AF Not to Draft Doctors

3. Brig. Gen. Dan Ogle, assistant USAF surgeon general, said the Air Force didn't expect to draft any doctors to meet its present needs, though now short 800 physicians and 411 dentists. It recently circularized former Army ASTP and Navy V-12 medical men without reserve status and got a heavy response.

4. Orders for 3976 of the 4428 planes in its 1951 program were placed by September 12. Others largely must follow existing plant backlogs and further study of aircraft needs and experimental craft is being made to avoid later cancellations.

5. Air Force casualties in Korea, as of reports received September 25, total 179, including 54 killed or died of wounds, 28 missing and 37 wounded. The USAF illness rate among Far East combat forces has been the same as in the United States.

6. The Air Force now has 244 general officers—17 more than when the expansion started this summer.

7. General Parks said that 6893 officers and 50,238 airmen of the Air Force Reserve have been ordered to active duty and of these 4604 officers and 18,702 men are in uniform. Some 772 officers and 8411 men were deferred for one reason or other.

Chairman Vinson, who has been quizzing the other services about the readiness of their Reserves, jumped on the Air Force for this. He demanded the USAF and other branches shake up their Organized Reserves after thorough screening as to whether individuals are available when called.

We've filled up units with Congressmen, Government officials and key employes in industry who are getting drill pay every week," he charged. "They're patriotic and want to serve but they're not available in an emergency . . .

"Let's quit fooling ourselves that we've got a great Reserve when all we've got is a list of names."

Marine Corps Hearing Today

Vinson announced that Marine Corps chiefs will be heard by the committee this morning. Top Air Force officials, however, will be recalled later for testimony on "lessons learned from the Korean war and what they're doing about tactical aviation."

The Army announcement of the establishment of the Fourth Infantry Division at Fort Benning said the present Fourth Infantry Training Division at Fort Ord, Calif.—actually just a designation for a basic training camp—will be renamed the Sixth Infantry Training Division. General Hartness, commander of the new Fourth, has been acting commandant of the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kans. He was assistant commander of the Twenty-sixth Infantry Division in Europe during the war.

Bridges Sees U. S. 'Sell-Out' On China Issue

By The Associated Press

Senator Bridges (R., N. H.) accused the State Department yesterday of dealing in a "great sell-out" and "giving away everything won by the blood of our youths" in Korea.

Specifically, he charged that Secretary of State Acheson is "opening the back door for the entrance of Communist China into the United Nations."

The first move was made on Friday, the Senator said, "when the United Nations' security council voted to invite the Communist Chinese delegates to come to the United Nations 'in view of the divergency of opinion in the council regarding the representatives of China.'".

In that vote, the United States opposed a resolution inviting representatives of Red China to present their complaints of American aggression. However, the vote was 7 in favor of inviting them, to 3 against—the United States, China and Cuba. Egypt abstained from voting. The Nationalist China representative protested in vain that his 'No" vote was a veto. The United States delegation took the stand that the question was not subject to a veto.

Bridges also said that three weeks ago he had received a report of an understanding between the Department and the British Foreign Office to arrange for the admission of Red China to the U. N.

A State Department spokesman yesterday branded that report untrue. He said that the American government still firmly opposes the admission of Communist China.

Meanwhile, a State Department official said a special United States military mission from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Tokyo headquarters has left Formosa after a two months survey of Chinese nationalists' defenses.

The department spokesman said the departure has "no political implications whatever."

Peiping Views on Korea Eyed by U. S., World

week alarming messages came indirectly from the Chinese Communist capital. The leaders in Peiping had flown into a tantrum of rage over Secretary Acheson's speech at the opening of the U. N. Assembly.

This was the speech in which Acheson asked the Assembly to defeat a resolution admitting Communist China to membership. His words were: "I ask you to vote this resolution down, and to do it quickly." And the Assembly did it, by a vote of 33 to 16.

Wanted Question "On Ice"

Acheson made it clear at the same time that he was not seeking a final decision; he was trying to put the question "on ice" for a few weeks, while the Assembly could study the broad subject of qualifications for U. N. membership.

It is not known whether these refinements of his arguments ever reached the Communists in Peiping. At all events, they let it be known that they were incensed and had had enough of rebuffs from the West.

American officials were inclined at the time to regard this outburst as part of a war of nerves. They had the same reaction to the violently hostile speech last weekend by Premier Chou En-lai, singling our the United States as China's enemy.

The Chinese fury of the past few days may, of course, have been a concession to the Russians, who are undoubtedly trying to embroil them with the United States. But it may also have been genuine; and this is the thought that has been worrying Allied diplomats and military leaders in the last few days.

No Direct Peiping Contact

One difficulty is that the United States has no direct contact with the Chinese Communists. It can broadcast its assurances through "The Voice of America," but the Chinese leaders, being trained Communists, probably disbelieve and disregard them.

The only dependable contact between Peiping and the non-Soviet world is Sardar M. Panikkar, the Indian Ambassador to Communist China, and to a lesser extent the Chinese Communist diplomatic mission which recently arrived at New Delhi, the Indian capital.

Lacking such contacts, the United States has been giving the Chinese Communists various indications that they have nothing to fear from this country or from the U. N. victories in Korea. Among these indications are:

1. The decision to send only South Korean troops north of the thirty-eighth parallel for the present, while keeping American and other U. N. troops behind the former boundary;

Strategic Bombing Stopped

2. The order to stop strategic bombing in North Korea, thus removing the excuse for Communist propaganda and the possibility of stray bombs falling in error on Chinese soil;

3. Gen. Douglas MacArthur's order yesterday recalling his military survey mission from Formosa, as if to assure the Chinese Communists that the United States has no military designs on the island; and

4. The frequent statements in the U. N. debate, broadcast repeatedly to China, that the United States and its allies seek no bases in North Korea, and want only to withdraw when peace and order have been restored.

Uncertainty over Communist China may explain, too, why there has been no Soviet peace overture up to now, and why the Soviet delegation has seemed so tentative in its statements and actions at Lake Success.

The Soviet delegation has behaved as if it had no new instructions from Moscow except to keep all the old propaganda lines alive. Monday's speech by Foreign Minister Vishinsky was interpreted here as a stall for time; it did not commit the Soviet Union to anything, for Vishinsky must have known that his resolution would be voted down.

Vishinsky's superiors in Moscow are waiting, apparently, to see what Communist China will do. American and Allied diplomats are watching their step, and for the same reason. For one false move or one ill-considered statement, here or in Korea, could bring the Chinese in and lead to limitless trouble.

Vienna Alert As Reds Wreck Power Switch

VIENNA, Oct. 3 (U.P.).—Communist saboteurs destroyed a main suburban power switch tonight, plunging a large part of the British sector of Vienna and three hospitals into darkness for three hours, police reported.

Ministry of Interior officials said they had reliable reports that "Communist toughs," armed with tommy guns, will attempt Wednesday to cut all railroad lines leading to Vienna and to occupy the Russian zone power plants which supply most of the capital's electricity.

These developments came as Austrian police in all four zones were ordered on a permanent alert and were issued "all available arms" in preparation for Communist violence expected during the Reds' scheduled general strike tomorrow.

Russians Guard Red Papers

Vienna police reported Russian military police have been on patrol in front of the international sector building, in which the Red Army daily newspaper Oesterreichische Zeitung and six other Communist papers are printed.

In the suburb of Hitzing, where the power switch was destroyed, investigators found the electrical apparatus had been smashed with a heavy object. The steel door to the control room was locked, and the lock was jammed with a piece of metal.

At midnight, police reported a repairman had restored electric service.

Police May Draw Arms

"We will not tolerate any Communist violence against our police," Interior Ministry sources said. Regular police in the streets will not be carrying arms, but may be authorized to draw them if the Communists get out of hand.

Western Allied and Austrian officials agreed that the Communists' major targets would be the nonstriking factories in the western sectors of Vienna, railroad stations, telephone and telegraph communications and gas and electric power stations.

Railroad workers in Socialist and Catholic unions formed into vigilante groups to help police guard rail centers. Farmers also were reported forming units to assist police in holding county courthouses, postoffices and other buildings.

New Soviet Jets, Baby Tanks Pictured by Rep. Chatham

BERLIN, Oct. 3 (AP).—A touring American Representative in Congress today told how he came back from a dangerous trip into the forbidden Russian army area and got a peek at secret new Soviet weapons.

Representative Thurmond Chatham (D., N. C.) said a Soviet officer eager to pay off an old debt of friendship took him on a 50-mile jeep ride which included such points of interest as a newly completely airfield and an armored infantry compound.

On the ride he said he photographed:

1. Tanks built so low that they appeared likely to be almost immune from the fire of present-day antitank guns.

2. Swept-back-wing jet planes, which appeared to be sleek and fast and in quantity.

Chatham told newsmen of his trip as though it were humdrum. Asked if he realized what might have happened had he been caught—arrest and possibly being shot as a spy—the florid, exuberant North Carolinian replied:

"I've spent most of my life getting in trouble or getting out of it."

He is a combat veteran of both World Wars. He was decorated as gunnery officer with a cruiser squadron in the Pacific in World War II. He met a Soviet representative on wartime liaison work in the United States and for a year introduced him around his clubs.

Seven years later, the Congressman came to Berlin this weekend on a tour of United States defense areas. He said he saw the Soviet officer in civilian clothing in a night club. The Russian threw his arms around him, and later offered a trip into occupied East Germany.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
REP. THURMOND CHATHAM
. . . Tells of seeing tanks, planes

The Russian changed into the uniform of a senior army officer, and on the ride told him:

Russian war materiel lost in the Korean war was earmarked for use in Indo-China and Thailand after a quick Red victory in Korea.

Russia hasn't nearly as many submarines as some American Intelligence sources believe.

"Every one-legged German would carry a gun against us (the Russians) now."

United States Intelligence sources said they knew about the fast jets in Germany, but not about the new-type tanks.

Leftists Gain In Municipal Finnish Vote

HELSINSKI, Finland, Oct. 3 (AP).—Finnish leftist parties were *in the lead tonight with 70 per*cent of the returns in weekend municipal elections counted. With 115,000 workers on strike, the victory is likely to be regarded as support for leftist attacks on the middle-of-the-road Finnish government.

Together, two leftist parties—the Social Democrats and the Communists—had polled 547,728 votes against 510,816 for the Conservative and Liberal parties. The Conservatives and the Agrarians suffered the greatest losses.

The breakdown gave the Social Democrats 299,367 votes and the People's Democrats (Communists) 248,361.

Balloting Sunday and Monday was to choose some 11,000 city and county councilors. Although the result cannot affect parliamentary standings, the Social Democrats were reported to have started on a campaign to oust the central coalition government.

The government, under Premier Urho Kekkonen, an Agrarian, is composed of Agrarians, Liberals, and members of the Swedish People's Party.

Talk of Revaluation Of Pound Persists

A wave of rumors—utterly unfounded, according to the best opinion here—persisted in London yesterday that the British pound would soon be revalued upward.

The rumors gained credence first, from the fact that the acting British Treasury head, Hugh Gaitskell, is to visit Washington, where he will talk with American financial officials, and, second, from a British Treasury announcement showing that the sterling area has more than doubled its gold and dollar reserves in the past year.

But from high sources in the British Embassy, as well as from top American Government monetary officials, it was learned that the rumors were baseless.

Gaitskell's visit, it was pointed out, was planned many months ago. He has never been in the United States and is anxious to see it. He has told American officials long since of his plans to come here for informal discussions to get to know American government and public leaders.

Furthermore, if the British had any intention of revaluing their currency, they would not herald that fact by sending their top active Treasury officer for discussions about it here.

On the second point, the increase in British hard money reserves, Washington officials feel that the present robust health of the pound is, unfortunately, liable to be only temporary.

They think that as the impact of British rearmament efforts begins to be felt, and its dollar shortage increases, the real status of the pound will emerge more clearly. And that real status, they add, is one which makes upward revaluation out of the question.

But in London, the Treasury announcement of the British gold and dollar reserve position sent American servicemen on a pound-buying spree, the United Press reported.

They cashed in their pay checks for dollars, gambling on rumors that the pound, devalued last September from $4.03 to $2.80, was going to be revalued at $3 or $3.08.

Though Gaitskell has conferences scheduled with Treasury Secretary Snyder, the principal official discussions he will conduct here, it was indicated, will be concerned with the dollar difficulties Britain faces in stepping up its defense program.

Brazil Vote Spotlights Vargas

RIO DE JANIERO, Brazil, Oct. 3 (AP).—Long lines of Brazilians voted in comparative calm under the watchful eyes of soldiers and police today on whether to restore former Dictator Getulio Vargas to the presidency.

A news agency report from Maceio, capital of Alagoas State, said four persons were killed and several wounded at Mata Grande in a street clash—the only major violence reported.

Vargas, 67-year-old originator of the Fascist-like "New State", who is attempting a comeback as the candidate of his Labor Party, had difficulties in casting his own vote at Saoborja. He lost his voter's registration card but was reported to have unwound red tape in time to cast his ballot.

The other two leading candidates were Cristiano Machado, choice of President Eurico Gaspar Dutra and the government-backed Social Democratic Party, and Lieut. Gen. Eduardo Gomes, standard bearer of the National Democratic Union.

Joao Mangabeira, the Socialist, was admitted by his party to have no chance.

The polls closed at 5 p. m., and the count begins Wednesday but the trend may not be known until a week hence.

THERE'S a change of the year for your Buick, too, stalwart as it is! Hot summer driving has taken its toll—in played-out lubricants, spark timing that may have slipped off a notch or two over the many miles, a carburetor that would probably give you better mileage and snap if it were properly adjusted now for fall driving.

Point is—your Buick will feel a lot friskier in the trying days to come if you let your Buick dealer get those summer kinks out of its system now! Just drive in—say you want (1) a fall tune-up and (2) a regular Lubricare—and see how much rewarded you are, for a small fee!

Do it this week, will you? Before the rush, you can be served more promptly.

British Labor Unionists Turn on Party Chiefs, Vote Pay Hikes, Price Rollback, Profit Reins

MARGATE, England, Oct. 3 (AP). Labor Party leaders suffered a heavy defeat today on their policy of freezing wages.

A resolution calling for wage hikes, especially among the lower paid, a rollback of prices, and control and reduction of manufacturers' profits, was shouted unanimously at the party's annual conference.

The party's executive committee reluctantly agreed to the resolution, which is binding on the party. In theory, it binds the government, too, since Prime Minister Attlee and six other members of the cabinet are members of the executive.

Profits Outclimb Wages

Since February, 1948, the government has set determinedly on a course of holding down wages, prices and profits as the way to bring economic recovery and prevent inflation. But prices climbed faster than wages and union leaders have grown increasingly wrathful.

The conference took its action despite the warning of Colonial Minister James Griffiths that sary than ever" because heavy wage restraint was "more necessspending for arms may encourage inflation.

At the same time, the party leadership undertook a studied campaign to make rearmament more palatable to its rank and file.

After two days of pulse feeling, the party bosses issued an addition to their annual report telling Britons they must rearm or run almost certain risk of war.

Rearmament, the statement admitted, "comes at a moment when we could have hoped to feel the full benefit of five years of hard work and sacrifice.

Promises Just Spread

"But because of diversion of national effort into more arms we shall have to postpone some advances in our social services and in better living. The burden will be heavy, but Labor will see that they are justly spread."

Earlier, Prime Minister Attlee was received in stony silence when he told the party the nation would have to "redouble" its efforts in order to rearm and still hold on to its progress toward economic recovery.

Attlee expressed regret at the need for arms spending, but said "we have a clear responsibility to see that freedom does not go down for lack of defense."

"The course of the next few years may well decide the fate of civilization for decades or even for centuries," Attlee said.

London Gas Strikers Defy Government Crackdown

LONDON, Oct. 3 (NYHT).—Angered by the Labor government's decision to prosecute the leaders of London's unofficial gas strike, the 1500 strikers today voted solidly to continue their walkout. Royal Navy technicians are being assembled to take over the 18 struck plants.

The strikers' action was a challenge to the government to prosecute 10 of their members for an alleged breach of the conspiracy and protection of property act of 1875, and the national arbitration order of 1940. The accused are to appear in court Thursday morning.

At a mass meeting today the strikers decided to vote again Thursday afternoon after hearing the decision of the court. The strike, which has left most of the homes of North London with little or no gas, is now in its nineteenth day. The strikers ask a wage increase of 3½ cents an hour.

Bright Future Seen for Anti-Cancer Attacks Via Newly Created Technique With Hormones

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

District doctors were told yesterday to discard their textbook mortality rates in cancer surgery, and to look to new hormone treatments in another few years.

The doubly-bright picture in the fight against cancer was given by Dr. C. B. Rhoades, director of New York City's Memorial Center for Cancer and Allied Diseases.

Cancer surgery mortality tables have been outmoded by the rapid advance of life-saving antibiotics and post-operative care, Dr. Rhoades said. And as to hormonal therapy, some 40 newly-isolated substances show great promise in future cancer treatments, he added.

He spoke here in mid-meeting of the three-day, twenty-first annual scientific assembly of the District of Columbia Medical Society at the Hotel Statler.

Another speaker yesterday, Dr. Joseph D. Aronson, discussed the present status of BCG, controversial anti-tuberculosis vaccine. He discounted the need of the vaccine in mass vaccination programs, but advocated its use for doctors, nurses, interns and family members frequently exposed to the disease.

Gerstell Talk Featured

The Society's annual public meeting last night featured a talk by Richard Gerstell, Ph.D., of Lancaster, Pa., a consultant for the Civil Defense Office of the National Security Resources Board.

Gerstell, speaking on the subject, "You Can Survive An Atomic Attack," said that panic born of ignorance of what an atom-bomb will and will not do "is the biggest problem we all must face."

The evening program was sponsored by the Blue Cross-Blue Shields Commissions, voluntary insurance organizations for hospitalization and doctors' bills. A panel of officials of the insurance plans later discussed the growth of the plans and their benefits to the public.

'Big Step Forward'

Dr. Rhoades told the doctors that recent observations show that cancer cells develop a resistance to some treatments. This, he said, is a "big step forward" in the cancer fight, "since now we can attack cancer as we so successfully attacked the infectious diseases."

Dr. Aronson, in his discussion on BCG, outlined the success of the vaccine in preventing tuberculosis deaths among American and Alaskan Indians. The 11-year project was carried out by United States Public Health Service and other Government agencies.

Germ Solution

The BCG vaccine, a solution of live but weakened tuberculosis germs, effected a ninefold reduction in tuberculosis deaths between the vaccinated and unvaccinated groups of Indians, he pointed out.

At the evening public meeting, Gerstell, who witnessed the Bikini atom bomb tests, debunked "undue public fears" of atom-bombing. If panic following an atom bomb burst can be prevented, he said, more lives will probably be saved than the number lost to the bomb's actual effects.

Old Remedy Lauded

New Device For Nosebleed Cure Shown

A new device for treating prolonged nose-bleeding, with an old remedy for good measure, was advocated here yesterday by a local specialist in such problems.

The modern apparatus is a sort of double-barrelled balloon; the old standby is a slice of uncooked bacon, and the saltier the better.

Dr. John H. Trinder, venerable associate professor of otorhinolaryngology (ear, nose and throat) at Georgetown University, exhibited his new device and added the old advice, at a scientific exhibit of the District Medical Society's annual meetings, at the Hotel Statler.

Named the Trinder Tampon for the Control of Intractable Nasal Hemorrhage, the apparatus consists of a double-channelled rubber tube with separate self-sealing valves for its two ballooning portions. One section balloons into a ball to stop blood from pouring into the throat and stomach.

The second section is similarly inflated with a bulb syringe to press against the bleeding membrane of the affected nostril, giving natural clotting processes a chance to stop the nosebleed.

The device, said Dr. Trinder, replaces painful "nosepacks" ordinarily used to suppress bleeding. It has proved so succesful, he said, that doctors at both Walter Reed and Episcopal Hospitals are now using it.

In his own use at Georgetown, he said, he doesn't hesitate to wrap a bacon slice around the tube before inserting it in the nose.

There's nothing like a slice of salty bacon to stop capillary bleeding, he said, adding that he learned the trick from his father.

County Lists 2 Polio Cases For 59 Total

Two new polio cases were reported in Montgomery County yesterday, boosting the Washington area total for the year to 345.

The Montgomery cases were a 5-year-old girl who lives near Poolesville, Md., admitted to Children's Hospital September 28, and a 23-year-old man of Germantown, Md., admitted to Gallinger September 30. The new cases raised the county total to 59.

Meanwhile, Virginia State Health Department officials noted a decrease in the number of polio cases, leading them to predict the worst of Virginia's severest outbreak in history may be over.

Doctor Blasts Paper Slanted Against AMA

A mimeographed Democratic political interpretation of the doctors' campaign against compulsory health insurance was yesterday branded as "a vicious lie."

Dr. Austin Smith, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, so attacked the statement, circulated over the name of Mrs. India Edwards, vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

The circular called the AMA campaign "an insidious political tactic designed to cripple the Democratic Party and the Fair Deal program.

"That," snorted Dr. Smith, "is one of the most vicious lies ever in a series of vicious lies presented by self-seeking individuals."

Dr. Smith gave his answering statement in an address here yesterday, as guest speaker at the George Washington University Medical Society luncheon, at the Hotel Statler.

Mrs. Edwards, in a mimeographed circular addressed to "Fellow Democrats," charged that "the real purpose" of the AMA's upcoming million-dollar advertising dollar advertising campaign against compulsory health insurance "is to beat the Democrats at the polls."

She asked each reader of her letter to telephone 16 friends to tell them what the AMA plans to do, and urge them to 'phone 16 others.

Dr. Smith said the sole reason for the publicity campaign is "to tell the people that we, as physicians, want people to realize that they still have the right to choose what they want in the way of medical care, and we are still trying to further the adoption of voluntary insurance plans."

Equipment Needs

Army Seeks Help From U. S. Chemists

The Army Quartermaster Corps needs help from the chemical industry in developing such items as an insect-repellent which will work for up to 24 hours, and a gadget to keep wounded GI's toes and hands warm in the Arctic.

These and other needs were outlined yesterday by Dr. Warren Stubblebine, research director of the chemical and plastics section of the research and development branch, Office of the Quartermaster General.

He spoke to a joint meeting of the Commercial Chemical Development Association and the Chemical Market Research Association at the Mayflower Hotel. The groups opened a two-day session yesterday.

The insect-repellent sought by the Army, Dr. Stubblebine said, must be of the rub-on sort. It must be effective for up to a day. One suggestion is to "tan" the repellent into the skin.

Main purposes of the hand and foot-warmer would be to keep sentries comfortable and also to provide heat for evacuation of casualties in the Arctic. Whatever fuel is used, it must provide heat for at least four hours, should be nontoxic and easily available.

The Army also wants a truly all-purpose soap—one that can be used for everything from shaving to cleaning gear. But the Army wants a soap made without cocoanut oil—perhaps made completely of synthetics.

Red Feather

President Truman's appeal for support of the forthcoming Community Chest campaigns went out to the entire Nation. Yet it seemed to be addressed especially to Washingtonians, for the relation between community services and national defense is especially close here. In no other city will there be greater need to remember that gifts to the chest this year must cover emergency and recreational needs of the many thousands of young men who will be called into the armed services. Once more the red feather campaign thus makes an appeal to patriotism as it did during World War II, as well as to our sense of community responsibility.

As the Community Chest Federation of the National Capital area prepares to launch its annual drive, there is another thought worthy of special emphasis. This great voluntary cooperative undertaking, as the President noted, "knits the community more closely together, and strengthens our democratic way of life." The year 1950 is no time to be failing in our civic responsibilities. Every conscientious citizen will want to do his part as a means of demonstrating that neighborliness, brotherhood and civic spirit march hand in hand with freedom.

Defense Education

Since Secretary Sawyer expressed his fears of crumbling morale on the home front in view of the victory in Korea, the note has been resounded by both General Bradley and President Truman. All agree that, in the words of General Bradley, "the worst thing that could happen to us would be to let down our guard." Americans have a dangerous habit of assuming that as soon as the fighting is suspended it is time to relax. That happened after both the recent world wars and in both instances it contributed to a renewal of hostilities. It would be tragic indeed if the victory for the United Nations in Korea should contribute to the undoing of our domestic program intended to make such a victory meaningful.

The defense program has been adopted with the distinct understanding that the additional forces and weapons are necessary, not to fight the war in Korea, but to give us additional assurance against the outbreak of similar aggression elsewhere and to prepare us to do our part in quickly ending such breaches of the peace if they should materialize. Nevertheless, there will be many who will close their eyes to the perils as soon as the guns are silent. We shall hear new waves of complaints against excessive military expenditures, unnecessary controls, burdensome taxes and irksome military training. Indeed, there is danger that any waning in the sense of urgency to which the Korean war gave rise may discourage Congress from passing the tax legislation necessary to pay for the new defense measures, thus adding the menace of inflation to that of aggression.

We do not assume, of course, that the present defense program is sacrosanct or untouchable. It will certainly have to be reviewed in the light of changing international conditions. The point to remember is that the chief reason for this additional military strength is the insurance it will give us against another Korea. Peaceful democratic people are notoriously negligent in preparing their defenses against the perils of aggression until disaster or potential disaster is upon them. The present program has been launched in the hope that the United States and its allies who are working together through the United Nations can now be foresighted enough to overcome this traditional weakness. But this will take an enormous amount of public education, and there is no time to lose in getting such an educational campaign under way if the present momentum of the defense effort is to be maintained.

Stretching Things

Whoever left the impression with Congress that reserve officers called to active duty could get into uniforms bought seven, eight or nine years ago was stretching things beyond the normal elasticity of cloth. Officers, of course, buy their own uniforms, but during World War II Congress provided an initial $250 allowance for reserve officers and those newly commissioned through officer candidate school. At the time this was a generous gesture, and it covered the situation handsomely. But now officers called back to duty, some at considerable financial sacrifice, have the additional burden of reoutfitting themselves. Apart from the fact that many a uniform has metamorphosed into work clothing or has become the wife's new skirt, in the normal course of events many an officer released from the rigors of military life has been fighting his own private battle of the bulge. Military uniforms were never built to conceal spare tires or bumpers, and it is remarkable how in a few short years trousers become of the high-water variety and that glove-like military look becomes sack-like. If Congress does not want an Army of squirming sad sacks, we suggest that some relief is in order.

Indian Lead

India is once more trying to bridge the Russo-Western gulf in the United Nations over a settlement in Korea. In his address before the Political Committee of the General Assembly yesterday, Sir Benegal N. Rau, obviously speaking under instructions from Premier Nehru, found points to praise in both the Russian and the British plans for the restoration of peace. Along with Mr. Vishinsky, he favors a cease-fire order from the Assembly. If the Communist forces should refuse to obey it, he said, "we could then rechart our course." Mr. Vishinsky insisted on a cease-fire order directed at both sides—an intolerable idea. The British resolution, which has the support of the United States and various other countries, calls for all appropriate steps for the restoration of stability in Korea. This is more to the point if it means whatever military operations are necessary to pacify the country.

It is well that the problem is being debated. Broad as is the gulf between the Moscow and the Washington-London positions, some points of agreement stand out. Mr. Vishinsky has tacitly recognized the propriety of the Assembly winding up the Korean affair is a concession. There is an area of agreement also on U. N. aid for rehabilitation of Korea, on the unification of Korea under a single government, and on admission of the new Korea into the U. N. The Russians would even agree to the appointment of a U. N. committee "to observe the holding of free all-Korean elections," on condition that Russia and China were represented on it. Whether elections should be all-Korean or North Korean is debatable. Other items are impossible of acceptance, such as the provision for immediate withdrawal of all foreign troops in Korea. That would leave the country to certain chaos. The Indian delegate at Lake Success spoke out against this phase of the Soviet plan, on the ground that it would enable the North Koreans to launch new acts of aggression.

However, a sensible middle course may be found. Restoration of peace with a minimum of vindictiveness is the objective. U. N. occupation of all Korea might intensify suspicions, as Sir Benegal pointed out, and "increase tension in that part of the world." He was unquestionably right in telling the committee that "this is a moment when we must take great care to restrain ourselves." Of course, the distinction between the aggressor and the victims of aggression must be kept in mind, in spite of Mr. Vishinsky, and the backbone of the aggression must be broken. With that accomplished, however, American troops ought to be quickly supplanted by a minimum of protective forces from other countries under direction of a strong U. N. commission. Now that there is general agreement that Korea must be unified and rehabilitated, and that the U. N. must guide its return to peace and stability, it should not be impossible to work out a settlement that would restore peace. We are glad to see India wielding its influence in this direction.

Inflation Note

Six weeks from now or six months from now, when this [military appropriation] is gone and we still do not have all the materiel we set out to buy, I do not want the American people to be unduly shocked and stunned. The hand is already writing on the wall. We need not wait longer to read the warning. That warning is this: Rising prices are making our defense cost calculations empty, tentative guesses—

Senator Lyndon B. Johnson, Sept. 22, 1950.

Eyes On Philadelphia

It is perhaps just as well that the World Series is to open in Philadelphia this afternoon. Reports from that proverbially placid place indicate a state of popular delirium surpassing anything since the Centennial Exposition of 1876. That, incidentally, was the year that the Philadelphia club began their efforts to win a National League pennant. They have been trying ever since; and once they actually carried it off. That was in 1915, an abnormal year in several respects; among other things the balance of power in both leagues had been seriously upset by wholesale defections to the new and short-lived Federal League. But the best that the Phillies could do in the World Series with the Red Sox, even with the help of their great Alexander, was to win one game out of five.

That, incidentally, is about the optimum expected of them in the present series by those who have consulted the auspices. After comparing the two clubs, player by player, and record by record, the augurs report that the Yankees are immeasurably superior in both offense and defense. But in baseball, happily, the auspices are not always reliable. If they were, the Phillies would not now be champions; for at the beginning of the season the auspices had favored the Dodgers or the Cardinals or—in perhaps one or two instances—the Braves. In other words, the Phillies—on the basis of all statistics except those of the won and lost columns—have no right to be in this series at all. So that the big argument in their favor now runs thus: If the Phillies can defy the statisticians over a whole season, why can't they do it in a single short series?

Big Potatoes

Ordinarily an increase of 67 percent in the efficiency of agricultural production would be welcome news indeed. This is the record on potatoes, but it is far from welcome. The increase in average output from 137.6 bushels per acre in 1944 to 230.1 with the 1950 crop is almost directly the result of years of totally unrealistic price supports. Potato farmers contrived to beat the system by merely planting rows closer together and using improved fertilizers and insecticides. In some areas the yield far exceeds the average; in Maine, for example, last year's figure was an unbelievable 450 bushels per acre.

With this year's crop Congress put something of a crimp in the production of potatoes totally divorced from demand by requiring that to come under the 60 percent of parity, support producers must sign marketing agreements. Even so, present indications are that the Government will have to buy about 90 million dollars' worth of potatoes which it must either give away or destroy. However, an end to this foolishness is in sight. For the 1951 crop Congress provided that there could be no price supports unless production were covered by marketing quotas; but it provided no machinery for establishing those quotas. Hence, unless legislators are induced to do some ex-post-facto tampering with the law, there will be no support for the 1951 crop.

The net effect of this lapse should be healthy. For one thing, it ought to restore some competition to potato growing—for market price, rather than governmental support, will determine the producer's take. In the ordinary application of economic law, this should force some of the marginal growers out of potato production by placing the accent where it belongs, on efficiency. Moreover, it should reduce some of the cries about competition from Canada, which currently is harvesting its largest crop in 29 years. Though imports of Canadian seed potatoes doubtless will continue, the absence of American price supports probably will end the situation in which, despite the tariff, Canadian growers have been able to export potatoes profitably to this country because of the high market price. Beyond this, the absence of potato supports should help demonstrate whether there is any merit in Secretary Brannan's formula of direct production payments to farmers on perishables.

The chances are, however, that lower market prices for potatoes will not make any material difference in consumption. Even at today's relatively high prices, potatoes are among the cheapest of foods. The fact is that with the rising American standard of living, the appetite for spuds has diminished. All of which points to the necessity for wholesale re-education among potato farmers, a project which farm organizations might well take up. For without governmental supports there will be no rich uncle to buy potatoes that otherwise may rot in the fields.

Sinomania

There is perhaps no subject under the sun about which Americans, generally, hold more passionate convictions than the subject of China—its causes, condition and cure. And at the same time, as Dr. George Gallup has just taken the trouble to find out, there is no subject about which there seems to be so appalling a lack of knowledge. This is probably not mere coincidence. There is commonly a direct causal relation between ignorance and prejudice.

Dr. Gallup went around the country in his embarrassingly inquisitive way and asked people, "Just your best guess, what would you say the population of China is?" Twenty-six percent of them said it was under 150 million and another 26 percent said frankly that they didn't know. Only 12 percent estimated it to be between 400 and 500 million—which, of course, is quite correct. We wish Dr. Gallup had taken a poll of the members of Congress. It is often said that they are quite representative of the country as a whole.

VERSE ON MY VERSE

Where is my verse of yesteryear,
Awash with many a lachrymose tear?

Where is that strip of windowshade—
That part not rotted or decayed—

I rescued from a heap of trash,
When inspiration like a flash

Possessed me? I adorned the scroll
With lines heroic, sad, or droll.

So full it was of wisdom new,
(Profusely illustrated, too).

Try as I do such verse to write
Today, I cannot scale that height

Of overwhelming minstrelsy
Which long ago enraptured me.

Somewhere along deserted shore,
Or garbage heap, or cellar floor,

It may in possibility
Unread still lie, unfurled still be;

Or on the other hand it may
Have traveled quite another way:

Its ashes served as nourishment
For some wild flower's lone advent,

Elicited a sob or smile
From one marooned on some far isle,

Or reached a solitary fate
Finally to disintegrate.

At all events, though rudely tossed,
My youthful verse cannot be lost;

And possibly it's none the worse

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

By Guess And By God

TOKYO—Whatever may be the final outcome, the delay in deciding what to do with our Korean victory has already revealed a really shocking breakdown in American policy making.

As long as a week ago, the main North Korean armies were visibly disintegrating. Seoul fell on Wednesday; the last pockets of resistance were eliminated Thursday, and the liberation of the city was pompously celebrated on Friday. On Sunday General MacArthur published his surrender demand. And today, Monday, the South Koreans have crossed the thirty-eighth parallel in force, yet no one will admit they have been ordered to do so by the United Nations supreme commander.

One of the first rules of war is that any victory must be relentlessly followed up, with all possible speed and strength, in order to prevent the enemy from recovering his balance. A more flagrant violation of this simple rule than the events of the past week would be hard to imagine. We should have been after the enemy like a hungry lynx. Instead we have behaved more like a cat in a bed of catnip. And the delay and indecision about crossing the thirty-eighth parallel have created many needless dangers.

Moreover, there is no excusing this indecision and delay on the ground that the Korean victory came unexpectedly. The plans for the Inchon landing were completed and fully communicated to the Joint Chief of Staff more than a month ago. The central principle was that the immensely risky landing operation, if successful, would immediately produce the results which we now see.

UNLESS the State and Defense Department policy-makers simply regarded the Inchon project as one of General MacArthur's minor eccentricities, they must have realized more than a month ago that the great issue of the thirty-eighth parallel would probably confront them at about this time. MacArthur ought to have been instructed about the parallel even before the Inchon D-day.

Certain allowances must of course be made. When the State and Defense Departments were not on speaking terms, before the dismissal of Louis A. Johnson, policy decisions must have been formidably difficult. And once our policy was decided, it was still necessary to express this decision through the cumbersome machinery of the United Nations.

Even so, it is impossible to excuse a victorious army having to wait for many days to learn what to do with its victory.

It is hard not to suspect that this is another evidence of the Washington habit of putting off hard decisions, of waiting till the last minute to face unpleasing facts, of making policy by guess and by God. Moreover, even after Korea has been tidied up, one way or another, this business of making policy by guess and by God will still be incredibly dangerous. No one at home seems to grasp the extraordinary peril of the Far Eastern situation, of which Korea is only a part.

Not the least part of this peril is that everyone at home seems to be apprehensive about the wrong things. Formosa and China occupy everyone's minds. But if Formosa falls, it will cause no final world crisis. And for Communist China, a careful reading of Premier Chou En-lai's recent important speech shows that the rather feeble saber rattlings have much less meaning than the admissions of internal trouble.

THE EXISTENCE of a resistance movement of over 250,000 "bandits" is admitted. All kinds of extremely grave economic and administrative difficulties are frankly acknowledged. Highly conciliatory gestures are made to the non-Communist Chinese. And Chinese equivalent of Lenin's new economic policy is openly proclaimed, with sweet words for the "national bourgeoise."

All these passages in Chou En-lai's remarkable pronouncement suggests that the Chinese Communist regime is too much occupied with internal problems to attempt large-scale aggression in the near future. But they offer no guarantee whatever against the real danger, that South China will be a most useful base for the Communist armies in Indo-China.

On this head, the intelligence is deeply alarming. The railroad from Kunming to Indo-China has been repaired. The main supply road from Nanning to Langsan has been improved. Besides helping the Indo-Chinese Communist chieftain, Ho Chi-minh, by making his new base easily accessible, the Chinese Communists are also giving other aid. For the first time, the Indo-Chinese Communist forces, formerly simple guerilla bands, have begun to use heavy artillery, rockets and the like on a considerable scale. And Ho Chi-minh is now considered able to put the equivalent of 10 divisions in the field as a result of a training program in China.

All these facts, plus the desperate French attack on the Communist stronghold, which has just been mounted, indicate the probability that the Korean crisis is going to be succeeded by an Indo-Chinese crisis. It may well be that the line in Indo-China will prove impossible to hold, unless divisions as well as weapons are sent there. And there can be no doubt whatever that the loss of Indo-China would be more disastrous, by every possible test, than the sacrifice of Korea. In these circumstances, it is downright spine-chilling to realize that our policy-makers have not even been able to make up their minds soon enough, to get the full benefit of a Korean victory they must at least have hoped for.

"Stampede"

Having discussed your September 23 editorial with a number of men and women here, both Democrats and Republicans, may I add mine to the number of approvals expressed over the intelligent and discriminating reasons you give why the President acted wisely in the veto of the McCarran anti-Communist bill, passed over his veto by the Senate and House of Representatives.

Though some sections of this bill may be held honestly controversial by good citizens, the challenges of this legislation which you and the President point out to the fundamental concepts which lay at the roots of our cherished institutions, are heartening to many serious-minded people here. For this reason we would like to see this informative editorial reprinted in our county weekly here.

May I add that those with whom it has been discussed nor myself have any political axes to grind. I am a retired businessman who has never been associated with politics, interested only from what I conceive to be a standard of good citizenship.

Far East Prophecy

Much interest has been roused in France by the republication of a remarkable prophecy of December, 1903, by Paul Cambon, one of that brilliant group of French diplomats of half a century ago. While Ambassador at London, Cambon wrote a son who was in their Tokyo legation of his conviction that the Russians would not evacuate Manchuria. He adds that that may mean war over both Manchuria and Korea, which would mean for France the loss of Indo-China.

In a letter of January 19, 1904, Cambon writes his son: "You are on the threshold of events which may change the cours of history, and weigh down the entire century. Whether peace is maintained or not, the struggle for influence in China and Korea will not lose its intensity. The extreme Orient will worry diplomats as did the Near East half a century ago."

Britain and the United States should create a neutral zone in Korea. "American policy is to be explained by their views of the future. They contemplate extending the Monroe Doctrine to the Pacific; they are in the Philippines and want to assume the preponderance on all the Asiatic coasts. China is their market; Japan sooner or later must be dependent on them. The Japanese hardly realize that their problem is not whether they are to have a slice of Korea, but whether they shall be Russian or American. Fifty years from now they will be the stakes in the great game which will be played in the Far East by Russia and the United States."

Have we diplomats today as farsighted as Paul and Jules Cambon, Barrere, Jusserand and Delcasse, who were then guiding their country's foreign policy?

Taft's Record

In his letter of September 30, Mr. George Stringfellow accused Mr. W. Averell Harriman of having "smeared" Senator Taft in the recent address at Houston in which Mr. Harriman pointed out that on a number of vital foreign policy matters Mr. Taft has voted in a manner pleasing to Stalin.

The record shows quite conclusively that Mr. Taft has consistently voted against Administration proposals to strengthen the United States' defensive position or has worked hard to whittle the effectiveness of such proposals. If we go all the way back to the question of the fortification of Guam a decade ago and come down to the present year, we find that Taft's voting record on national defense measures has been abominable.

Therefore, Mr. Harriman was entirely justified in saying what he said about Mr. Taft. Mr. Harriman did not allege, and the present writer would never suggest, that Taft's votes were deliberately cast in order to cheer Moscow. No doubt the distinguished Ohio solon, in each instance that he voted unwisely and in a manner that gave satisfaction to the Communists was convinced he was following a patriotic course.

Nevertheless, the record is there and it is perfectly plain that, as Mr. Harriman very properly pointed out in his address to the American Federation of Labor, it is a notoriously poor record from the American standpoint but a splendid one from the standpoint of the Politburo. Mr. Harriman believes, and all fair-minded and reasonably alert citizens agree, that a legislator who over the years casts vote after vote that pains his own country and delights the enemy of his country is the kind of legislator richly deserving retirement from his present position of influence.

Assumption Doctrine

Recently a renowned authority, the Archbishop of Canterbury, Geoffrey Fisher, stated that Pope Pius XII shattered all hope of union with Rome by defining the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin into Heaven to be an article of Catholic belief, that must be accepted under pain of excommunication.

But this has always been accepted and believed by Catholics and is nothing new. An Irish bishop has proven that in the Anglican England before the establishment of the Anglican Church by Henry VIII there were no fewer than 200 churches all bearing the name of Our Lady of the Assumption.

I really and truly believe that if Archbishop Fisher went to Rome on a friendly visit to Pope Pius, as did Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose, the kindly, friendly reception of Pope Pius XII, who is always a gentleman, would do more to allay distrust and help and strengthen the bonds of Christian brotherhood than all the arguments in the world. Inflation Fiddling

Rhee's Record In Korea

The replies to my September 23 letter on the importance of nation-wide elections in Korea indicate how easy it is to answer criticism with unconsidered invective designed to cloud the main issues.

The statement that the United States and the United Nations Commission on Korea "tried futilely for three years to effect . . . unification" in Korea is true, as is the observation that the North Korean regime proved a stumbling block. Omitted is the fact that the South Korean government was equally uncooperative. It "not only . . . would not participate in official discussions with the north looking to unification" —says the final 1949 report of the U. N. Commission on Korea—"but . . . also . . . frowned on unofficial efforts in this behalf. . . . The commission believes that a broadening of the government's political base would . . . enable it to play a more effective part in achieving unification." The commission's 1950 report reveals the same viewpoint.

The statement that "President Rhee belongs to no group or groups, political or otherwise" is untrue. The Korean Yearbook of 1947 lists him as the chairman of the Society for the Rapid Realization of Korean Independence, of the Youth Corps of that society, and of the Korean Democratic Party. According to the 1948 edition, he was chairman of the Daehan Nationalist Party and the Daedong Youth Corps. He was longtime chairman of the Dongdi Hoi in America.

How President Rhee "welcomes and commends honest and constructive opposition" has been well documented. Though freedom of the press and congressional immunity are guaranteed by the constitution, the government closed down the Seoul Shinmun and other large newspapers for failure to print government handouts; and imprisoned 13 National Assembly members after they asked the U. N. Commission to abolish foreign military missions in Korea. During the recent May elections, said the commission's 1950 report, "candidates, their managers and supporters" were arrested "chiefly on charges of violation of the national security act or . . . of the election laws . . . Withdrawals from the campaign took place in sufficient numbers to suggest the use of pressure. . . . Thus candidates were subject to fear that criticism of the administration might be regarded as a treasonable attack on the Republic of Korea."

President Rhee is not the "freely chosen sovereign leader" of the South Korean people. He was voted into office by the National Assembly in 1948; his popularity has never been put to the test of a nation-wide popular election. Rhee's attempt to postpone National Assembly elections last spring resulted in Secretary of State Acheson's warning April 3 that "United States aid . . . has been predicated upon the existence and growth of democratic institutions within the Republic."

The economic record of Dr. Rhee's government has hardly been impressive. Secretary Acheson's above-mentioned reprimand revealed that "tax collections have not been increased, aid goods have been underpriced, and governmental subsidies have been expanded. The dangerous practice of voluntary contributions has been used as an efficient substitute for a sound taxation system."

Legitimate land reforms were never carried out by the republic. C. Clyde Mitchell, former head of the New Korea Company and administrator of the National Land Administration under United States Military Government 1946-48, said last July: "We were able to put over a land-reform program which sold . . . 600,000 acres of the country's best farm lands . . . to the farm tenants at reasonable prices . . . But, we Americans did not have much land to sell—only that taken from Japanese landlords under international rules of warfare. Three-fourths of the tenants' land was owned by rich Korean landlords—and the reactionary government of Korea . . . refused to finish the land-reform job . . ."

Additional data on the South Korean government may be found in an excellent, unbiased study, Korea Today, by the late George McCune, well-known Korean expert with no ax to grind.

Barkley, Gabrielson On Campaign Tours

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Vice President Alben W. Barkley takes off Thursday on a 15-state tour in an effort to help the Democrats maintain their hold on Congress.

In his travels, he will occasionally cross the trail of Chairman Guy George Gabrielson of the Republican National Committee, who already is out on the firing line. Gabrielson, in a speech in Denver last night, blamed the Truman administration for "the sacrifice of thousands of lives" in Korea, and called on the voters to "throw the bunglers out."

Barkley, who is nearly 73, starts his tour Thursday from St. Louis, home of Mrs. Barkley. He will travel in a chartered four-motored airplane and will be accompanied by members of his office staff, representatives of the Democratic National Committee, and newspaper reporters.

Up to Election Eve

A famous story-teller and orator of the old school, Barkley will be on the go throughout October and up to election eve in November, when he will speak in his home town of Paducah, Ky. He is scheduled for approximately 30 speeches in various parts of the country, starting Thursday in Wisconsin with a noon speech in Oshkosh and a night speech in Milwaukee.

The Kentuckian's oratory will be followed to see how the Administration proposes to handle the Korean issue, which Democrats now feel has turned in their favor.

Gabrielson, the Republican spokesman, made it clear in Denver last night that the GOP has no intention of abandoning Korea as an issue. He charged that the Democrats wanted to put "a gag on us in the name of unity and bipartisanship" when the Korean war was raging.

Spurned "Conspiracy"

"They would have been glad," he said, "to have us share the blame for the casualty lists, the sacrifices endured by every American home. We refused to enter any such conspiracy of silence.

"The gallantry and initiative of brave American soldiers, sailors and Marines, led by a master military strategist, General Douglas MacArthur, promises to bring the Korean war to an early conclusion. All Americans pray that it will come soon, and rejoice in the victory.

"But peace in Korea does not mean peace in the world. We thought we had peace five years ago when the United States emerged from the Second World War as the most powerful nation in the world from every standpoint. . . . Now we are told by those who lost the peace that we must strain our economy, and lower our standard of living, to again build up our defenses.

"The people ask: Who let our defenses down? Whose diplomacy lost the peace? Where do we go from here—into a third World War that will cost is our remaining freedoms just as certainly as the sun will set in the Rockies tomorrow night?"

Curbs on Installment Buying May Be Further Tightened

frigerators, TV sets, deep freezers, etc.

The probable terms of the new construction credit regulations are being closely guarded to prevent speculative activity before the boom is lowered.

Officials working on them report there has been no disagreement between the two agencies charged with issuing and administering them. But, they say, they have been inordinately difficult to work out from a technical standpoint.

More important, since this is a venture on untrodden ground, no one can tell precisely what effect any specific restriction will have on curtailing housing activity.

The trouble in framing the new order, which will be called Regulation X, is to arrive at the proper "X"—a calculation of what requirements for higher down payments and shorter loan maturities are needed to reduce housing starts from their present 1,400,000 annual rate, to a level of one million or even as low as 800,000.

Coogan Sees Housing Made Controls Target

Thomas P. Coogan, president of the National Association of Home Builders, charged yesterday that the housing industry is being singled out as a specific target for credit controls.

Coogan's remarks were made after a closed session with Federal officials. The meeting, attended by housing industry leaders, was held to discuss the role of builders and suppliers under the Defense Production Act. It was conducted by Raymond M. Foley, administrator of the Housing and Home Finance Agency.

Coogan said further controls are not needed.

"We can produce one million new homes per year and not contribute to the inflationary spiral," he said. "The industry can police itself to produce that number of homes without further Government controls.

"We don't agree that housing is inflationary—despite the efforts of several groups in Government to so classify it."

He said it would be "very unfortunate" if fewer than 800,000 new houses a year are built. The goal should be at least one million new units, he said. Otherwise, according to Coogan, a housing shortage will develop along with unemployment in the home building industry and allied fields.

Coogan said he had urged Federal officials not to impose new controls on home financing until January 1. This, he said, would give a clear picture of the results of credit curbs imposed last July 19. He added, however, that he believed new controls would be announced within 10 days.

Coal Industry Creates Own 'Defense Committee'

NYHT News Service

Creation of a coal industry "defense committee" to insure the Nation adequate coal supplies in emergency was announced yesterday by two producers.

James D. Francis, chairman of the board of the Island Creek Coal Co., Huntington, W. Va., and George H. Love, president of the Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Co., Pittsburgh, said the group was established to cooperate with Government agencies in the rearmament effort.

Head of the committee will be William H. Cooke, president, Little Sister Coal Corp., Chicago. He will be assisted by G. Don Sullivan, assistant to the president of the Ayrshire Collieries Corp., Indianapolis.

Among problems to be tackled by the committee are providing adequate rail transportation, machinery and supplies for continued operation of the mines, and furnishing manpower for the armed forces without cutting coal output.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, was informed of the industry move but made no comment.

Meanwhile, steel industry spokesmen conferred all day with William H. Harrison, administrator of the National Production Authority, on plans to distribute equitably among steel producers the priority orders resulting from the new war effort.

Harrison on Monday had directed manufacturers to give priority to defense orders, which henceforth will bear the designation "D. O."

The steel producers, members of the NPA's steel products advisory committee, agreed that steps were needed to spread out the impact of these "D.O." orders. They urged the NPA to issue a supplemental order relating to steel output and distribution, which would take into consideration the problems peculiar to the industry. The producers agreed to provide a technical subcommittee to help draft such a regulation.

Proposed changes in aviation gasoline specifications were opposed by the Air Transport Association, which said they may reduce flying safety and affect the airlines' capacity to help the national defense. The association's views were expressed to the Interior Department's Defense Petroleum Administration.

The Air Transport group said this would increase airline fuel consumption and increase "substantially" the possibility of fatal accidents.

Judge Says Seized Data Show U. S. Reds Are a 'War Machine'

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 3 (AP).—A Pittsburgh judge today produced a bulky sheaf of seized documents he said proves the Communist Party in America is a war machine which seeks to overthrow the Government.

Judge Michael A. Musmanno said he sent 17 documents to the House Un-American Activities Committee which establish the aims of the American Communists without question.

Investigators for the committee in Washington called the papers "sensational in import." The documents will be given to committee members when they return to the Capitol next month.

Musmanno, Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor of Pennsylvania, released photostatic copies of letters, directives and pamphlets he said he took from the desk of Steve Nelson, chairman of the Communist Party of western Pennsylvania, in an August 31 raid on Nelson's office.

Nelson and two aides now are free on $10,000 bonds on charges of sedition filed by Musmanno.

One paper Musmanno found, entitled "Guide for Speakers," said:

"In Korea the people have had the opportunity of witnessing the liberating role — not only in words but in deeds—of the Soviet troops and the Soviet occupation forces, as contrasted with the enslaving role of American troops and the American military authorities."

"Another piece of literature in Nelson's desk," Musmanno said, "was a directive from the national Communist secretary to district organizers, of which Nelson is one. It carries this line:

"'If the American forces get a shellacking, while it would increase the desperation in Wall Street and Washington, it would encourage and make it more difficult for Wall Street to unleash new adventures.'"

Musmanno has waged an anti-Communist campaign from the Allegheny County (Pittsburgh) Common Pleas Court bench. He was a judge at the German war crimes trials.

"A significant thing about these documents," he said, "is that they identify the United States Government with 'Wall Street imperialism,' which is usually the subject of seditious statements. The Communists say 'Wall Street imperialism' when they mean United States Government."

He called a pamphlet entitled "Some Ideological Questions on the Struggle for Peace," a key document. The document said in part, "The provocative attack of the puppet government of South Korea, followed by United States armed intervention against the People's Democratic Republic can be fully understood only in the light of United States imperialism's role today, its drive for world domination and its advanced preparation for a new world war.

"It has always been a feature of American capitalism in its drive for expansion to conceal its aggressive predatory aims and hypocritically and deceitfully to make war in the name of humanitarianism, civilization, democracy and peace.

"The United States is not only an imperialist country. It is the foremost imperialist country in the world, the center of world reaction, pursuing aggressive aims of world domination. It is seeking, like Hitler imperialism, to build a world empire."

The pamphlet was issued in August by the national education department of the Communist Party in New York City.

Other documents include orders and directives which told of the infiltration being attempted by Communists among employes of Carnegie-Illinois and Jones & Laughlin Steel corporations.

Hiss Prosecutor's New Post Bars Him in Trial of Appeal

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (AP).—Police Commissioner Thomas F. Murphy, Government prosecutor of Alger Hiss, will not argue the Government's case in Hiss' appeal.

United States Attorney Irvin H. Saypol said today that Clark S. Ryan, his special assistant, would argue the case. Ryan was in charge of all Government research in the case.

Murphy was appointed police commissioner last week and began an investigation of charges of corruption against the department.

Saypol said he had "agreed to accept" Murphy's recommendation that Ryan carry the case when it comes before the United States Circuit Court of Appeals October 13.

A clause in the New York City charter prohibits a city official from doing any type of work other than that of his municipal position. For Murphy to handle the appeal it would be necessary for him to resign as police commissioner.

Hiss, former State Department official, was convicted of perjury last January 21 for denying he had passed Government secrets to a prewar Soviet spy ring. He was sentenced to five years imprisonment by Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard.

Police Applicants To Be Tested In Prince Georges

Examinations for appointment of the Prince Georges County police force will be held November 15 at the County Service Building in Hyattsville, the Board of Police Commissioners announced yesterday.

Blanks may be secured at the Marlboro and Hyattsville Police Stations. Applications must be submitted by November 10. Applicants must be registered voters in the county and between 21 and 35 years of age.

Two vacancies now exist on the force, but a special committee in August recommended enlarging the department by 16 officers.

Real ERP Gains Noted by Meyer

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (NYHT).—Eugene Meyer, chairman of the board of The Washington Post, returned from Paris today aboard the French liner Liberte from the fifth annual meeting of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development. He was the bank's first president.

He said that England and France had made real progress toward recovery "with the help of the Marshall Plan," and that the American action in Korea "gave a big lift to western Europe."

He added that while military people spoke of the campaign with admiration from the technical point of view, "I felt it gave the people there a big kick."

On the Town

By Georganne Williamson

THE incomparable Dwight Fiske is returning to the Old New Orleans Friday, and the original of the spicy raconteurs will pack the night club as he invariably does.

The middle-aged, imperious former pianist has built a tremendous career on society's love of a wit so sharp that it can escape the bounds of propriety.

He likes to be billed as the "singer of songs his mother never taught him." While undoubtedly his mother never taught them to him, neither does he sing them. What you hear is a rasp, a pause, and some oh, so delicate phrasing. That and the piano, pounding in the backgrpund to supply punctuation marks.

Fiske is performing this time in the downstairs Sazarac Room. The Latin Quarter hasn't opened yet. He will be here for at least two weeks.

TED WEEMS has taken over the Statler's Embassy Room. He is the bandleader, you know, who made his comeback, after taking time out for the war, with the aid of an old record. "Heartaches."

An all-night disc jockey in Charlotte, N. C., happened to dig it out of the files. His listeners were so intrigued that they requested it again and again. Other disc jockeys took it up. Decca pressed it anew and it became the No. 1 record. From there on, it was easy for Ted.

Weems believes in music that pleases all tastes, tries to keep his selections danceable whether they be sweet or jazzy. His orchestra features guitarist and comedy vocalist Glen West, Bonnie Ann Shaw, vocalist and dancer, and balladeer Russ Carter.

GEORGE "Redskin" Marshall, a man of well known eccentricities, gave Olmsted's James Brahms a bad time last spring when Brahms wanted to take his picture to use on the menu cover. Marshall finally agreed, but took the opportunity to inform the restaurateur that he would never return again if he were not amply supplied with pretzels and very dark Wurtzburger beer.

Brahms didn't forget. When Marshall walked in with Actress Gale Storm recently, Brahms dispatched a busboy to the storeroom for a 10-gallon drum of pretzels. The waiter balanced the drum on one hand and delivered it to the football magnate.

Marshall reached in, grabbed a fistful of the figure eight tidbits and offered them to the glamorous Miss Storm.

Holy Year Visitors Are Taken For $1 Million by Swindlers

ROME, Oct. 3 (U.P.).—Racketeers and crooks swindled or stole more than $15,000,000 from tourists and pilgrims in the first nine months of the 1950 Holy Year, Rome police estimated today.

It would amount to an average loss — by hook or by crook — for each of the five million visitors of only 120 lire (about 20 cents), but it didn't work that way.

The majority lost nothing. A few were taken for as much as 31,000 lire by sly money-changers, quick-talking salesmen of stuff "just off the boat," expert baggage switchers and ordinary pickpockets and thieves.

The curbstone money changer depends upon your sense of guilt to clip you. He will give you the best black market rate for your dollars, pounds or francs, but he wants you to keep an eye open for the law while you negotiate.

He gives you the agreed-upon number of lire, and you hand him your money. Then he grabs your arm with a "Watch it, the police." A second later, he reassures you it's O. K. and goes on his way.

When you count your lire again, you find a few genuine notes and a stack of paper, switched for the lire during the police scare.

The baggage snatch is a Naples specialty imported by Rome for the Holy Year. The "operator" has a large suitcase that looks like any other suitcase except that it has no bottom.

He places this shell over his victim's piece of luggage, pulls a hook that grabs the handle of the covered bag and calmly walks off.

One On the Aisle

A Slice of Life To Long Remember

By Richard L. Coe

AN INTERNATIONAL BLEND of filmmakers captures a slice of life you'll long remember in "The Walls of Malapaga" at the Dupont.

Jean Gabin, of France, is the central figure; Isa Miranda, "the people of Genoa" and an Italian production team are the Italians, and Cameramn Louis Page is the American in this bilingual picture whose English subtitles are virtually extraneous, so well has the slight story been captured in pictures.

In fact, so vitally does the setting affect this film that you can virtually smell Genoa: the waterfront, the teeming alleys, the shattered buildings, the atmosphere of a place that has been lived in for hundreds of years.

This tired, exhausted air becomes fascinating through the very slightness of the story, one not unlike Gabin's well-remembered adventure in "Quai des Brumes." You see him first as the shrouded passenger in the chain room of a freighter, slipping through the police net which guards the pier to get relief for an aching tooth.

A large-eyed little girl, nearing adolescence, helps him find a doctor, but by the time he does he's had his wallet pilfered by a thief. He decides to give himself up to the police, but hunger propels him into a restaurant, where the child's mother is a waitress.

This lonely woman, who's stolen their child from her French husband to earn a thin living in Genoa, is parched from a loneliness which matches the man's. A trust grows between them and the man confesses he's run away from France after having strangled a younger woman who preferred a man her own age. Just when it seems he may be able to make a fresh start, the police close in on him.

Between the man and woman is her child, jealous of this human who's taken some of the affection previously her exclusive property. How the child's dawning understanding prompts her to try to save the man from the police, underscores the personal story against the cruel human background.

It is a mark of distinct power that makes one sympathize so insistently with such a hero. Gabin, gray, worn, exhausted by the mere process of living, makes a pitiable figure of this murderer on the loose. Miss Miranda, her Hollywood era 10 years behind her, brings a defiant kind of beauty, lonely and honest, to the waitress, and the child, Vera Talchi, could hardly be improved upon.

The title, by the way, refers to a walled section of the old city where those who failed to pay their debts—"bad payers" or "mala paga"—were forced to live. The authors employ this term in the moral sense. For his fatal passion, the hero must be confined, by the forces of society, behind the walls of Malapaga.

"THE WALLS OF MALAPAGA," adapted by Jean Aurenche and Pierre Bost from the story by S. Cecchi D' Amico Alfredo Guarini and Cesare Zavattini; directed by Rene Clement; an Alfredo Guarini Production filmed in Genoa and released here by Pathe Cinema. Photographed by Louis Page. Subtitles by J. H. Lenauer. At the Dupont.

HELEN HAYES was elected president of the American National Theater and Academy at ANTA's annual meeting to succeed Producer Vinton Freedley, who's held the office several terms . . . New vice presidents of the organization are Moss Hart and Cheryl Crawford . . . ANTA's attentions now are on its Sunday night TV show and its series of 10 productions which will open its new playhouse in New York . . . First of these probably will be Robinson Jeffiers' "The Tower Beyond Tragedy," with Judith Anderson making her second appearance in a row in a Jeffers script . . Miss Hayes is to direct Barrie's "Mary Rose" and Paul Green has written a new version of Ibsen's "Peer Gynt." . . . Whether any of these offerings will tour is a question.

THE INSTITUTE of Contemporary Arts will resume its film revival showings this week on Friday and Saturday nights, with 20 programs scheduled for the year. . . . Both nights this week, the program will include a documentary on Van Gogh and the stirring French story about prisoners of World War I, "Grand Illusion." . . . Contributing and participating members of the Institute are admitted to all showings without charge; resident members pay 50 cents each and remaining seats are open to the public for $1. . . . Further information at 1322 New York ave.

A VIRGINIA lady, who prefers her anonymity, had a disappointment last night. . . . She'd seen Aldous Huxley's "The Gioconda Smile" in London, decided to invest in its American production, wherein Basil Rathbone is the star. . . . It was slated to open last night at Gotham's Lyceum, but Rathbone has been advised by his physician to take a few days off, so the opening's postponed till Saturday. . . . Which means our Virginia lady will have a longer weight for the eight men's verdicts; as for the house she wants to build with her winnings, I know a guy who's got an old trailer for sale.

"THE MADWOMAN of Chaillot" opened its five-night run last night at the Olney Theater, where May Blaisdell has directed the Jean Giraudoux fantasy . . . In the cast are: Marie Dour'que, Judith Glickman, Chris Krefalis, Carl Bonke, Ted Carey, Joseph Cook, Jeannine Booth, Benny Carleton, Doris Erwin, Anne Ashton, Franklin Wells, Harry Taylor, Diane Grey, Frank Booker, Doreen Blair, Gerry Moore, Burton Price, Harry White, Harvey Kaplan, Barry Crane, Richard Miller, George Boroff and Douglas Davis.

STICKING AROUND: Patricia Neal, one of the ladies of Warner's current "Three Secrets," will still be starring at the 13th st. house when the bill changes tomorrow. She will costar with John Garfield in "The Breaking Point," from a Hemingway novel, "To Have and Have Not"

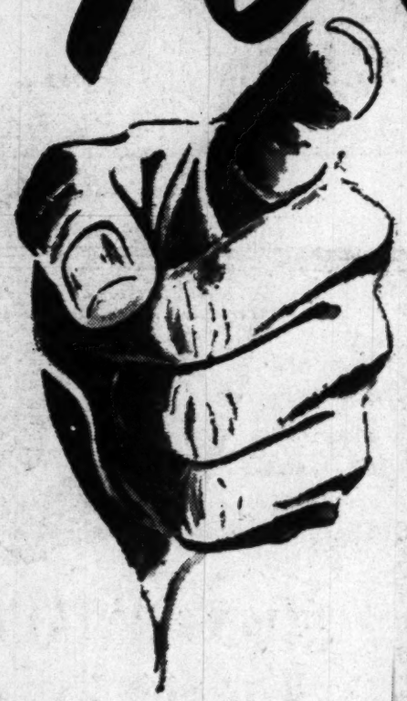
You hit and ran...



You're aghast at the idea. You say you don't even own a car, you can't even drive a car, that in no case would you be party to such an act. That all may be true. But you're a hit-and-run driver just the same. Figuratively if not literally. And morally responsible for young Susan's being run down and crippled for life.

Search your soul a little . . . and if you're honest you'll admit your responsibility. Search your memory . . . and if you're honest you'll be able to fix the date you failed in that responsibility.

It was that evening last October, when the Volunteer Campaign worker came in and asked for your contribution through the Community Chest. You fished down in your pocket, dug up a dollar bill, said, "Here, quit bothering me!"

Because you only gave a pittance, there was no room at The Summer Outings Committee's Camp last summer for young Susan and she had to play in the street in the way of onrushing cars.

Because you only gave a dollar, Susan couldn't get the medical treatment she needed after she had been hurt, the Visiting Nurse just didn't have time to come to see her as often as necessary, — and to supervise her mother's loving, fumbling, unskilled care.

Because you only gave a dollar, you deprived Susan of her right to walk, run, jump, skate, bike, dance . . . live the normal active life that should have been hers.

Don't deprive the other Susans of their rights this year. When you're asked to give through the Community Chest . . . think twice. Think how much you'll give, then think how much more you can give . . . and give THAT.

Give enough for all the Community Chest's Red Feather services. Give so they can provide medical care where it's needed, friendly guidance where it's necessary, a helping hand to the young, the old and the perplexed. Just give more this year!

Give more ...THROUGH YOUR COMMUNITY CHEST

MacArthur Applies War Test To Soviet Economic Strength

By J. A. Livingston

WHEN United Nations forces pushed north of the thirty-eighth parallel, it was for more than a military operation. It was an economic test of Soviet Russia.

All along the United States State Department has held that the rulers of the Kremlin do not want an all-out war, that economically Russia is too weak to fight. Sure, the Russians would extend aid to satellites in Malaya, Indo-China, Burma, Greece, China and Korea. But get involved directly? No, never!

Livingston

Always, however, this was theory. The State Department never could be sure of it. A calculated risk had to be taken to find out. Now General MacArthur has taken that risk—with results still to be determined. Students of the Soviet economy believe the risk well taken. Reasoning: Stalin will try to save face, not North Korea.

Nobody knows for sure what has gone on or goes on behind the Iron Curtain. But statistical and economic analysts, ferreting out information from published reports, from statements in speeches, and from miscellaneous articles in Pravda and other publications, have pieced together sufficient information to conclude that Russia is still too emaciated to fight a full-fledged war. The country has not recovered from the last war.

Russian war plants never fully converted to peace. They're still busy on armaments. This has served a dual purpose. As new tanks and guns were shipped to the Red army, old weapons became available for satellite forces. That kept up military pressure against the non-Communist world and served to modernize the Red army.

BUT IT HAS NOT helped the Russian people regather physical strength. The country is still short of labor, in spite of slave work gangs. It's still not well-fed, in spite of larger crop plantings. And the standard of living is still extremely low because energies have gone into military security rather than housing, public services and consumer products.

In terms of military manpower, Soviet Russia is far superior to the United States. Hanson Baldwin calculates the Russians could muster 60 to 100 full-strength divisions of 11,000 to 13,000 men right now, as against our 13 divisions, considerably under the normal strength of from 19,000 to 23,000 men. Russia could overrun Europe in the face of our atomic weapons.

Obviously, then, it isn't military strength that deters the Kremlin. Hitler proved that wars are not won by the nation that wins the first battle. Victory ultimately goes to the nation which is industrially equipped with skilled manpower and basic resources—aluminum, copper, oil, steel, especially steel. And, as evidenced by steel alone, this country—in a long-drawn-out fight—is four times stronger than Russia.

Admittedly, we could not devote as much of our steel to war as Russia. We'd have to have steel for the civilian economy—to repair autos, railroads, utility plants. But, in time, we could easily outstrip Russia's output of weapons. And we could do it with less manower. We obtain about 163 tons of steel per man per year as against Russia's 53 tons. Thus, our steel industry is three times as efficient—because our equipment is superior, our plants are better organized, and our workers more skilled.

THIS GREAT disparity in efficiency cannot endure forever. The Russians have gained on us in man-year output in the last ten years. It's easier to increase the efficiency of an under-developed industry than of a modern one. Nevertheless, and for many years to come, it will take far more men in Russian factories to feed a war machine than in American plants.

On that account, logic suggests that the rulers in the Kremlin will wait until Russia's economic disadvantage is not so great, that the Russians are not apt to make a move to stop the United Nations above the thirty-eighth parallel. Thus, if MacArthur succeeds, he will have bolstered economic analysis with military evidence that the Kremlin leads from weakness rather than strength.

And yet, logic and analysis can go just so far. We still can't be certain, at this stage, that Korea wasn't a feint.

Strike May Close Detroit Area Ford Plants

DETROIT, Oct. 3 (AP).—The Ford Motor Co. declared tonight a wildcat strike of 2800 workers in the steel rolling mill of the River Rouge plant will result in a gradual shutdown of all Detroit area plants.

President Carl Stellato of the Ford local of the CIO United Auto Workers ordered the men to return to their jobs today. The company reported, however, the men failed to show up for the 4 p.m. shift.

"We cannot permit wildcat strikes of a few members to affect the democratic and economic rights of 65,000 Ford Rouge workers," Stellato declared in issuing the back-to-work order.

Forecasting a gradual shutdown of Ford operations in the Detroit area, Del S. Harder, vice president in charge of manufacturing, said, "By the end of the week 88,000 persons will be laid off. Within another three to ten days, depending upon the geographical locations, other company plants will be forced to close, causing the layoff of another 37,000 persons."

Workers in the rolling mill walked out in protest against a decision by Dr. Harry S. Shulman, impartial umpire under Ford's contract with the union. Dr. Shulman ruled that rolling mill employes are not entitled to premium pay for Saturday and Sunday work when the days fall within their regular five-day work week.

All Pittsburgh Papers Stop in Mailers' Strike

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 3 (AP).—All three Pittsburgh daily newspapers shut down completely today as a strike of mailing room employes went into its second day.

The afternoon Sun-Telegraph and Press followed action of the morning Post-Gazette in notifying employes they will have neither work nor pay until the strike is over.

Nearly 780,000 regular readers of the newspapers had to rely on out-of-town papers and the radio for their news.

Truman Names Board In Rail Express Strike

ABOARD THE YACHT COMMANDER, Chesapeake Bay, Oct. 3 (AP).—President Truman today set up an emergency board to look into the strike of the AFL Teamsters Union against the Railway Express Agency in New York City.

Charles Ross, White House secretary, informed reporters of Mr. Truman's action in a radio-telephone conversation from the President's yacht Williamsburg, now cruising Chesapeake Bay. The board includes Grady Lewis, lawyer, chairman; Joseph L. Miller, labor and public relations consultant; and the Rev. William J. Kelley, all of Washington.

Carpenters And Plumbers Still on Strike

Union plumbers in Washington, who struck Monday for a wage increase, and union carpenters at Fort Belvoir, who struck Thursday in protest against working with nonunion carpenters, continued their walkouts yesterday.

Locally, the AFL plumbers are asking a 25-cents-an-hour increase on their present pay of $2.50 an hour, or $10 a week added to their present $100 a week. The contractors are still holding firm on their offer of 15-cents-an-hour more for the first year, and another 15 cents for the second year.

At Belvoir, the labor dispute added a complication yesterday when the military reservation awarded a $49,000 troop housing rehabilitation project to Victor Beauchamp, Inc., lowest bidder. Presently, the Beauchamp company can't get union carpenters to work on a similar Belvoir project.

About 150 AFL carpenters are striking against Beauchamp and two other Belvoir contractors, Pruitt and Schriber, in protest against working on the same grounds with the nonunion carpenters employed by Pomponio & Sons on a fourth Fort Belvoir project.

Fort Belvoir officials say their hands are tied. Under the law, they say, they must award each project to the lowest bidder. The protest strike may last until October 18, when Pomponio is scheduled to complete his project.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, Oct. 3 (AP).—Grains didn't get anywhere today in a Board of Trade session that started with a steady to firm tone, lost ground, and then ended in a mild rally.

Wheat was under some hedging pressure, which was offset by some commercial buying and short covering. Corn traders felt the damage from last night's cold would be slight and more corn arrived than had been expected.

Soybeans were under the influence of some promised export business a better cottonseed oil market and the opinion that this year's crop is out of danger from frosts.

At the finish wheat was ⅛ higher to ¼ lower; corn was ⅛ higher to ⅜ lower; oats were unchanged to ⅜ lower; rye was ⅛ to ¼ lower; soybeans were ⅛ higher to ½ lower, and lard was unchanged to 5 cents a hundredweight lower.

Albums Keep Alive Memories Of Past for Baron's Family

By Melvin Altshuler
Post Reporter

To the family, all that is left of the von Pfeiffer estate in Hungary are neatly mounted photographs in tenderly kept albums in a second-floor flat at 207 Pennsylvania ave. se.

To such albums, you may add the memories of the family, three handsome women whose estate it was—a mother and her two very blond, very attractive daughters.

Pre-World War II and pre-Communist tide, Mrs. Magdelena von Pfeiffer was a baroness. Eleanora (now almost 22) and Maria Magdelena (now 23) were young ladies of expectations and nobility.

Then they became displaced persons. Now they are newly arrived in America they and their photographs.

The word is refugees. They seem quite happy about it.

Mrs. Pfeiffer and Eleanora arrived in Washington from Europe on September 14. Four days later they started work as aides at Providence Hospital.

Maria Magdelena arrived in the United States and Washington Saturday. Shortly before she left Europe she married a former Hungarian Army officer. Her married name is Ludmann.

The three women differ from the traditional idea of refugees. For one thing, they speak English with varying degrees of fluency. Mrs. Pfeiffer and Eleanora came prepared with American correspondence course certificates in nursing.

They show a considerable estate with tennis courts, a swimming pool, an expanse of land—a background of attainment.

That was the estate in Hungary. At the end of the war the family went to a farm in Yugoslavia.

"We thought we would be safe there," Mrs. Pfeiffer said.

They weren't. Yugoslavia was going through the land reform. The farm and its factory for processing hams were seized. The family was sent to concentration camps.

What has happened to the Baron von Pfeiffer? His wife does not know.

After six months in a concentration camp, Mrs. Pfeiffer and Eleanora escaped. They fled to Trieste, thence to Austria. Maria, meantime, hid with friends.

"My girls were brought up on sports—horseback riding, swimming," Mrs. Pfeiffer said. "They are tough. We made it."

For four years Mrs. Pfeiffer worked as a librarian with the American Army of Occupation. Included among her albums is one containing papers from Army officers testifying to the excellence of the library.

In 1947 the Pfeiffers began the long process of entering the United States via the International Refugee Organization.

And now they are here, and in America there is the future.

For Mrs. Pfeiffer and Eleanora the futue is a little home outside the city.

"We lived always in the country," Mrs. Pfeiffer said. "Away from cities. It is hard to live in the cities. Yes, a home—little one—in the country."

Eleanora shook her head. "But I doubt we will get it."

For Maria Magdelena Pfeiffer Ludmann, the future is the distant hope of having her husband join her, to learn English better—above all, to find a job.

"A good job," Maria Magdelena said. "A job that I like. Then it is easier."

Four Fined $200 In Gravel Theft

Four construction workers, accused of stealing 114,000 pounds of sand, gravel and cement, were fined $200 each for petty larceny in Municipal Court yesterday.

The charge was reduced from grand to petty larceny when the men agreed on September 11 to plead guilty and the case was referred to the probation office.

The men are Michael Robert Marcopulos, 33, 332 Seaton pl., ne.; James E. Fitzgerald, 34, 1051 Barnaby ter. se.; Oswald N. Harris, 44, 818 8th st. ne., and William O. Bateman, 35, 4832 69th pl., Woodlawn, Md.

The materials were taken from a yard operated by the Smoot Sand & Gravel Co. and the Super Concrete Corp.

Police said Bateman, a dispatcher for Super, wrote false delivery slips for materials, gave them to Harris and Fitzgerald, truck drivers. Marcopulos, a Smoot employe, recovered the slips and marked them "void," police said.

Appeals Court Is Convened At Annapolis

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 3 (AP).—Maryland's Court of Appeals convened for another term today.

Some 98 cases already are docketed for argument. Court attaches said others would be filed before the term ends next summer.

Among cases now on the calendar is an appeal by the Tidewater Fisheries Commission of a Somerset County court decision upsetting plans of Smith Islanders for an oyster growing cooperative.

Another was raised for 5-year-old Marilyn Marie Mahnke, whose father fatally shot his common-law wife at Salisbury last March, then killed himself.

The child was their daughter. Her grandfather sued for $75,000 damages, charging she suffered nervous and physical impairment.

Marilyn was in the bungalow where the body of her mother, Marjorie Mae Mahnke, was found beneath a blanket in the kitchen. She was also present when her father, Russel C. Moore, killed himself at the home of his legal wife in west Collingswood, N. J.

Five of the six appellate judges were present for opening-day arguments. Judge C. Gus Grason was ill at his Towson home.

Two Snaers Snarl Things —For Awhile

Snaer is hardly a common name but United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence was confronted with two different cases yesterday involving men of that name. It developed they were brothers.

Frank B. Snaer, 28, who, according to the FBI, lives at 2223 H st. nw., was to be arraigned before Lawrence on a charge of falsely representing himself as a major in the Marine Corps.

While Lawrence was preparing the papers, Probationary Detective James D. Kennedy of the Third Precinct entered to request a warrant for a District fugitive picked up by police in Miami, Fla. The man, Kennedy said, is Wiliam N. Snaer, 27.

Kennedy and FBI Agent Joseph A. Connors compared notes and found the two cases involved brothers.

According to the FBI, Frank Snaer was arrested after he ordered a Marine major's uniform from the S. W. Rice Co., tailors at 1423 Pennsylvania ave. nw., and gave the store a "rubber" check for $84.15. Lawrence held him in $1000 bond for the grand jury.

According to Washington police, brother William is wanted on an embezzlement charge. He is accused of skipping with $400 on September 22 from the Potomac Hotel, 1800 18th st. nw., where he was employed as a desk clerk. An arrest warrant was sent to Miami.

Pistol Marksman Believes He Shot Night Prowler

Somewhere today a certain gentleman may be nursing a wound because he was foolhardy enough to try breaking into the home of a target pistol marksman.

The marksman is Dan Vance, 41, of 720 15th st. se., who was awakened at about 11:50 p. m. Monday by what seemed to be a noise coming from the garage in the rear of his home.

Vance put on his bathrobe, equipped himself with a .32-caliber automatic and stepped out on the rear second floor balcony. He saw nothing, heard nothing. He was about to reenter the house when a man suddenly jumped from under the back porch and ran toward the back alley.

Vance fired once, at about 40 feet, as the man was sliding under a low peach tree in the back yard.

"I don't want to sound like I'm bragging," Vance said yesterday, "but I've been worried all day because I'm sure I hit that guy."

Vance said the man went to the ground, got up quickly and started to run again. Again Vance fired. This time the man staggered against the garage, as though hit, but then jumped over a fence.

After an unsuccessful search of the area, police alerted all doctors and hospitals to be on the lookout for a wounded man answering this description: A Negro about 6 feet tall, weighing about 175 pounds and wearing a leather jacket and a stocking cap.

Police found that Vance had surprised the man while he was trying to jimmy open a rear basement window of the house.

Simmons Rejoins Phils, Sawyer Won't Use Him

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—The Phillies' Whiz Kids will be on a man's errand starting tomorrow when they begin trying to beat the Yankees in a World Series. I like the Yankees to win it, but I don't possibly see how they can do it in less than four games.

Povich

Without detracting from the smart job the young Phillies did in winning the National League pennant, they never met up with anything like the Yankees. They'll put an awful pressure on the Phils.

The Yankees have no set routine for winning ball games. They're as apt to show the Phillies a shut out pitcher as they are to overpower them with home-runs. As Bucky Harris says, "Those Yankees will beat you a dozen different ways from a broken bat single to a bad hop. Or they'll hit the ball out of the lot. And there's always a couple of Yankees on base when they get a break."

Against a series-hardened crew of Yankees, the Phils will be going into this thing as World Series green peas. Dick Sisler went to bat a couple of times for the Cardinals in 1946, Pitcher Blix Donnelly worked two series games in 1944, and that is the extent of the club's World Series background.

IF YOU DIDN'T like the Yankees for their habit of winning World Series games—they've lost only 13 games in their last 12 World Series—you'd have to take them over the Phils on performance alone this season.

The figures show that the Yankees as a team batted .282, a 17-point bulge over the Phils' .265, and you can break the figures down to an even more dismaying picture for the Whiz Kids' rooters. The Yanks have driven in more runs (849 to 672) this season, outhomered the Phils, 159 to 126, and have been a better double play club.

As if this town were not properly agog over the pennant victory of the Phils, Manager Eddie Sawyer dropped another shocker into its midst today with the announcement that his starting pitcher in the series opener would be Jim Konstanty, the last guy who figured to get that assignment.

All season, Konstanty has been the Phils' relief ace, starting none of the 74 games in which he appeared. But there is no readiness in Philadelphia tonight to quarrel with Sawyer's pronouncement. "The man is so level-headed he probably has good reasons for starting Konstanty," said an American League manager.

MANAGER CASEY STENGEL of the Yankees came up with a mild surprise move of his own, incidentally, when he announced that Tommy Henrich would be placed on the series ineligible list to make room for Johnny Hopp.

Henrich at this point was bulking as the big man the Yankees were to have in reserve—the most dangerous pitch-hitter in the baseball business. But Stengel boldly crossed him off. "Maybe I'll regret it," he said, "but I had to get Hopp on the eligible list. I couldn't take a chance on having both Johnny Mize with a sore arm and Henrich with a lame knee both so bad on me during the series. I needed a healthy first baseman."

Philadelphia's 1950 World Series is not without its ironical touch. This was the Golden Jubilee year for Connie Mack who had fond visions of a pennant for the A's. But this week, Mr. Mack is a lonely background figure, whose team did not come within eight places of winning the pennant. The series is being played in his park but Phils, not the A's, are in it.

THE YANKEES held a secret meeting yesterday in New York to debate their action with regard to a cut out of the $800,000 television rights the clubowners are getting. There was no word of any decision, but neither is there any sign of a sit-down strike unless the owners come through with more of a pay-off to the players.

For the last 10 days, the Yankees have had a pair of scouts tabbing the Phillies, and Johnny Neun was highly surprised that day in Brooklyn when the Dodgers challenged Richie Ashburn's throwing arm. Cal Abrams was out at the plate by 10 feet on a play that might have cost the Dodgers the pennant. "Brooklyn said Ashburn didn't have a strong arm." Said Neun, "but they must not have been looking at him recently. A week ago, I told Casey Stengel the Yankees couldn't run on Ashburn."

In the excitement of the Phils' pennant victory on Dick Sisler's tenth-inning homer at Brooklyn, Sisler was asked what kind of a pitch he hit. "A fast ball a little outside, the kind I hit best," he said, "but don't print that." This is breaking no confidence, inasmuch as it was printed widely by the New York press.

There are two happy former Nats with the Phils, Pitcher Milo Candini and Infielder Jimmy Bloodworth, who will draw down full World Series shares. A year ago, Candini was a discredited major leaguer with Oakland and Bloodworth was let out by the Pirates.

From Omaha to Jacksonville

Estimated 38 Million Will See World Series on Television

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 3 (AP).—This city surrendered itself with childish glee to baseball today. Bright red Phillies' pennants are all over town. A warm sun shrouded in a slight mist made for perfect weather.

The forecast for tomorrow: Cloudy and cooler, temperature in the 70's.

Violent Philadelphia partisans—the fact that the Phillies won only one pennant previously and that in 1915 makes them more violent than ordinary—hope the experts are wrong in picking the Yankees to win in short order. Odds favor the New York team from 1-2 to 5-12 for the series. First quotation on the opening game also favored the Yankees, 9 to 5.

Every ticket for Shibe Park's cozy 33,166 seats was sold long ago. Scalpers offered tickets in blocks of four for $200 — $50 apiece. Hotel rooms were even harder to find than tickets to the games.

For the Yankees this is old stuff. They have won 16 American League pennants and 12 World Series, including 1947 and 1949.

Millions of fans clustered before television sets as far as 1000 miles away will see the series with more "eyes" than the 33,166 who get seats in Shibe Park.

Television, reaching out to a greater audience than ever before in series history, will have five cameras trained on the play.

They'll follow the ball, and the players, too; peer into the dugouts and the bullpens, glimpse the faces of the fans and even provide a bit of panorama of flat-roofed North Philadelphia homes and factories stretching far as the eye can see from the ball park.

The television will be carried by cable and microwave relay to 47 cities from Boston west to Omaha, Nebr., and south to Jacksonville, Fla. Each game will be carried by the ABC, CBS and NBC networks.

More than five million receivers now are in operation, the greatest number in history. The NBC research department estimated that some 38 million people will watch all or part of one or more of the first four games on television. If the series lasts longer, the audience total will increase proportionately.

Colts Fire Three After 55-13 Loss

BALTIMORE, Oct. 4 (AP).—The Baltimore Colts handed three players their walking papers today after last night's 55-13 loss to the Chicago Cardinals.

Released by the National Football League Club were Center Bob Nelson, Halfback Bob Perina, who was among five Chicago Bears the Colts had received in a trade for Guard Dick Barwegen, and Tackle Jonathan Jenkins, the Dartmouth strong boy from Frostburg, Md.

STARTING PITCHERS IN WORLD SERIES OPENER TODAY

It's Raschi Against Konstanty

Henrich Out, Has Bad Knee

The only other switch made by Stengel was the announcement that against the right-handed Konstanty, Bobby Brown, not Bill Johnson, would be at third base.

Downtown Philadelphia gave no evidence, in its festive mood, with flags flying from the buildings and store-windows decorated with pictures of their beloved Whiz Kids, that there was any belief in the odds that favor the Yankees to win the Series, 12 to 5.

With the first game pitching program calling for Konstanty to oppose the redoubtable Raschi, the Yankees similarly rule favorites to win the opener at the same odds.

The city is in the throes of its biggest hotel crush since the opening days of the Sesquicentennial of the Twenties, and a National Brewers' Convention, with the visiting brewmeisters paying handsomely for scalpers tickets, has added to the high confusion.

With Shibe Park seating only 33,166, and despite the sale of tickets on a single-game instead of set basis, the scalpers are asking and in most cases getting $75 a pair for grandstand seats marked $6.

The Yankees passed up the traditional pre-Series workout in the opening game park, and moved leisurely in from New York today in time for dinner. But Manager Eddie Sawyer sent the Phillies through some light paces at Shibe Park.

Sawyer explained in part, his move in naming Konstanty, by pointing out: "He has gone as many as nine innings in relief this year—once he went ten. If he gets past the Yankees, we'll have a nice edge. If he doesn't, he can always come back for a relief job. It will be nothing new to him.

Philadelphia, which has seen its Whiz Kids upset all pre-season calculations in the National League, isn't even admitting that the Yankees have power on their side despite the discrepancy of the hitting figures.

The supporters of the Whiz Kids expect their two sluggers, Del Ennis and Dick Sisler, to match the extra-base output of any Yankee pair. At least tonight on the streets of the city, there is no great awe of such as Joe DiMaggio, Johnny Mize, Yogi Berra and others of the Yankee cast.

A factor in the betting odds favoring the Yankees is the World Series greenness of the Whiz Kids, none of which has ever figured as a regular in a previous Series, in contrast to the Series-hardened Yanks.

Only one position in the Yankee lineup was in doubt—left field. Stengel temporarily named his .334 hitter, Hank Bauer, for that job but with reservations. "Bauer has been playing with a bad ankle. I may go with an outfield of Joe DiMaggio, Gene Woodling and Cliff Mapes," said Stengel.

The Phillies were not in evidence after their workout today, scattering to their homes, but the Yankees were lolling easily about their hotel headquarters.

For them it is an old story, the World Series, but with the winners' shares going perhaps as high as $6800 in contrast to losers' shares of $4000 each, they didn't regard it as unimportant. "It will help pay the taxes," said Joe DiMaggio.

It is the Yankee murderers' row of Rizzuto, Berra, DiMaggio and Mize batting in a solid array that poses the chief threat for Konstanty, but Sawyer had a solid motive in naming his soft-balling right hander for the job.

It was Sawyer who brought Konstanty back to the majors from Toronto where he managed him, advised him to turn relief pitcher after his failure to start and win games. The big right-hander set a modern record for appearances when he figured in 74 games this season. He has had three days' rest since pitching home run balls to Duke Snider and Roy Campanella of the Dodgers last Saturday.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 3 (AP).—The Columbus Red Birds put a stranglehold on the Little World Series by beating the Baltimore Orioles, 5-2, here tonight. It was a brisk cold night and only about 3200 fans braved the elements to watch Columbus move ahead three games to one.

Tonight's crowd compared with turnouts at Baltimore of nearly a 20,000 average for the first three games.

Says Reliefer

'Boss Thinks I'm a Pitcher'

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3 (AP).—Manager Eddie Sawyer of the Phillies sprang one of the classic surprises of World Series history today when he nominated Jim Konstanty, his demon relief pitcher, to face the New York Yankees in the opening game of the big playoff here tomorrow — and Big Jim summed up his own reaction this way:

"It will seem funny warming up in public.

"I think I'll feel like going back into the bullpen first."

Konstanty, in high spirits as he chatted with newsmen, said:

"The skipper thinks I'm a pitcher. So I guess that's it.

"I went 10 innings against Cincinnati in that long game and nine innings against Pittsburgh. I didn't feel tired either time."

The 33-year-old righthander did not start a game during the entire 1950 season, though he set a major league record by working 74 times in relief. He probably was the only Phillies pitcher who had not been mentioned in the past two days as the experts tried to probe Sawyer's mind for his starter in the all-important opener.

Konstanty, with a won-lost record of 16-7 for the season, will be opposed on the hill by Vic Raschi, another right-hander, who won 21 and lost 8 for the American League champions this year.

Mixes 'Em Up

Konstanty was asked what he considers his best pitches.

"Well, I like to mix 'em up," he said. "I use the slider and curve a lot, but don't forget my fast ball."

That fast ball is a source of a long-standing argument among Konstanty and the other Phils' pitchers. Baseball men have said that Jim doesn't have a fast ball.

"Sure I do," he said. "I just don't use it much. Somehow, the batters seem to kill it."

Somebody quipped: "You're gonna relieve in the second game, aren't you?"

"Sure," said Jim, with a smile. "Why not?"

Folks hereabouts have given the bullpen at Shibe Park a new name. They call it "Konstanty Korner." It looks as if that name will be a misnomer for the series.

No Sentiment

Sawyer told newsmen there was no sentiment involved in the choice, nor was the assignment a reward for past effort.

"I think the guy can win," Sawyer said. "Konstanty has the best chance against this type of club."

He said he narrowed the choice down to Roberts and Konstanty and then called a clubhouse meeting, to which he invited Roberts, Konstanty, Coaches Benney Bengough and Cy Perkins, Pitching Coach George Earnshaw and Jack Sanford, manager of the Phils' Toronto farm in the International League. Earnshaw and Sanford have been scouting the Yankees.

"Roberts said he was ready to pitch the opener," Sawyer reported.

"But he said he thought he would be better with another day's rest."

Roberts definitely will go in the second game, Sawyer said.

Eddie was asked who he'd use as relief pitchers when Konstanty started.

Army Grants Leave But He Hasn't Played In 30 Days

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3 (AP).—Curt Simmons, star pitcher of the Philadelphia Phillies, was granted an Army leave to fly back for the World Series tonight—but Manager Eddie Sawyer said he would not seek to use Simmons against the New York Yankees.

"We will not ask to make Simmons eligible for the series," said Sawyer. "He probably will pitch batting practice. He will not sit on the bench during the games."

"We have reports that Simmons definitely is not in shape to play World Series ball," said Sawyer. "He has had no chance to practice, and we understand he hurt the index finger of his pitching hand."

Bob Carpenter, owner of the Phillies, answered with an emphatic "No" the question of whether he would ask for Simmons to be made eligible.

"It was all news to me until just a few minutes ago. But we will not ask that Curt be made eligible."

Commissioner A. B. Chandler indicated that if the Phillies did decide to ask to use Simmons, he would give favorable consideration to the request.

"There is good precedent for it," said Chandler. "On at least two other occasions in the past men were given leave from the Army and played in the Series."

Simmons is a member of the Twenty-eighth Division Pennsylvania National Guard which was federalized September 5. He has had no practice since then and is probably out of condition now, which may be the reason Sawyer does not intend to ask to make him eligible.

Simmons record up to the time he left for Army duty was 17 victories against eight defeats.

Simmons, a first class private, was given a 10-day leave by Maj. Gen. Daniel B. Strickler, commander of the Twenty-eighth Division who said:

"We realize that the winning of the National League pennant by the Phillies is a great thing for the people of Pennsylvania and it is gratifying to be able to take this course of action to encourage the ball team during the World Series."

To make Simmons eligible would necessitate a special request from the Phillies to the commissioner, the dropping of one of the twenty-five men now eligible, and favorable action by the commissioner.

"I'll try like hell if they want me," was Simmons statement as he took off from Indianapolis, before word was given him that Manager Sawyer according to present plans did not intend to ask for his eligibility.

Phils' Coach Thinks Curt Still May Pitch

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3 (U.P.). Late tonight Phils Manager Eddie Sawyer announced this program for Curt Simmons, his 17-game winner who rejoins the club with a 10-day leave from Camp Atterbury, Ind.:

"All he will do will don a uniform and work out before each game," said Sawyer. "Then he will take off the uniform and sit in a box seat with Phils' President Bob Carpenter. That's the way it will be for the whole series."

A Phillies' coach, who asked to remain unidentified, hinted that Sawyer might change his mind. The coach said, "with two days' practice, Curt will be in shape to pitch for us."

Redskins Try Dudley With Baugh Ailing

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Regardless of whether Sammy Baugh plays, the Redskins will try something new against the New York Giants at Griffith Stadium Sunday.

Even before he learned definitely that Baugh has a bone chip in the elbow of his passing arm, Coach Herman Ball yesterday had shuffled up his offense and moved triple-threat Bill Dudley to the tailback position in a modified single wing attack he plans to employ against the Giants.

Baugh had his pitching arm X-rayed yesterday and learned he chipped a bone when he was tackled in the fourth quarter of the 26-7 loss to the Pittsburgh Steelers last Saturday.

Sam Says He'll Play

"The use of the elbow is not going to materially aggravate the injury," said Dr. Frank Hand, who X-rayed and treated the Redskins' passing man.

Sammy himself said he thought he would be able to play. His arm is still sore, he added, but much better.

Tailback is not a new position for Dudley. He played it for the University of Virginia for two years and was chosen the National Football League's most valuable player when he was the tailback for the Steelers.

The single-wing will not be the primary Redskins' method of attack. They'll still strike—or hope to—from the T formation, but they hope to run in a few single-wing plays against the unbeaten Giants, who knocked off the mighty Cleveland Browns, 6-0, last week.

Rookie George Thomas, the All-America from Oklahoma, will probably see more action Sunday than he has all season. Several Redskins observers believe Thomas is the best running back on the Redskin's squad.

He hasn't been played much because he's had a difficult time learning the Redskins' T formation in two months after playing four years of split-T football at Oklahoma. The blocking assignments are different and the holes where the Redskins halfbacks and fullbacks are supposed to hit also have different designations.

But Thomas feels he's mastered the puzzle now and is ready to go, Coach Herman Ball hopes so.

Bill Bennings

Dear Folks: At Bowie,

No more off days on the Bowie schedule which now goes through until Saturday, October 14. The next two weekends will follow The Farrell and Southern Maryland Handicaps, both at $10,000 added. The Farrell is at a mile and 70 yards and the Southern Maryland at a mile and a sixteenth. Henry Hecht's The Pincher probably will go after both. Although regarded only as a sprinter, he may stretch out his speed, having shown come-from-behind ability in winning the Rowe Memorial Handicap here openday at six furlongs. He has never won at over six furlongs. For this reason Racing Secretary John Turner put the son of Heliopolis in with 118 pounds. See you on the rail.—BILL.

AT BOWIE
1—May First, Count Discover, Flaming Acres.
2—Battle Cry, Frigate, Narragansett.
3—Sir. Sag, Fashion Hit, King Harvey.
4—Gold Mode, Secret Thread, Her Reward.
5—Viva Teddy, Reminisce, Rebline.
6—Kidded, Country Boy II, Sketch.
7—Laran, Sonofun, Supper Date.
8—KING MIDAS, Pretty Watch, Africane.

Ault, Bassler Tie for 2d With 140s

By Dave Heller
Post Reporter

George Fazio, Woodmont Country Club pro, who finished third in the National Open, added the District Open golf title to his list of links laurels yesterday. Fazio shot a three-below-par second round 66 to card a low 136 and win the title.

Fazio ended four strokes ahead of the 72-man field in the 36-hole medal play tournament at Indian Spring Country Club. The victory was worth $200.

Amateur Eddie Ault of Indian Spring and Defending Champion Charley Bassler, Rolling Road Country Club pro, tied for second with two-over par 140s.

Fazio's 34, 32—66 was the best round of the tournament and lifted him out of a three-way tie for third at the end of the first round.

Fazio played par golf for seven holes and then picked up his first birdie with a 40-foot putt on 8. He cut another stroke off par on the 465-yard tenth, a par 5 hole, by reaching the green with a drive and one approach shot and then two-putting.

Fazio's only bogey came on the par 3, 220-yard eleventh. His tee shot landed in a sand trap and he blasted out badly, placing the ball a dozen feet from the pin. He missed the putt for a par and took a bogey 4.

Fazio made up for the lapse on 14, carding a birdie deuce. On the 405-yard fifteenth, a long drive and a 9 iron shot left him 4 feet from the pin in 2. He canned the putt for a birdie 3 and parred the remaining holes.

Ault shot a two-below par for his second round and finished 3 strokes ahead of Ralph Bogart of Chevy Chase, the second low amateur. First round leaders, John O'Donnell and Harold Oatman, both of Norfolk, Va., both shot three-over-par 72s to end in a four way tie for fourth. Scores of the tournament leaders:

Weather Fine, Big Ones Biting; Some Hit 15-Pound Limit

By Ralph Murdock

THE WEATHERMAN has been dishing up good fishing weather and the boys have been taking advantage of it with big catches—particularly large striped bass.

Murdock

Some of the fish landed were so big they actually bordered on the over-the-limit size, which is 15 pounds in Maryland.

About 30 boats (private and commercial), mostly from Deale, Md., were seen trolling with their running lights on a full hour after sundown off Holland Point the other evening. Apparently none of the anglers wanted to give up on the big stripers which first showed late in the afternoon.

Ray Sunderland and Bob Crowther docked with four big stripers that totaled 52 pounds. A No. 17 Tony Acetta spoon with a feather attached was the successful lure.

Dr. Samuel Leishear and his father, Henry Stott, Dr. William L. Alexander and his 6-year-old son, Bruce, also fared well, catching 28 rockfish in a half day. Two of them weighed 13 and 14 pounds, respectively.

DR. LEISHEAR landed one of the big ones while young Bruce hooked the other after a lot of fatherly advice and physical assistance, plus the use of a dip net. Bruce said he could have gotten along all right without all that help. Wasn't he holding the rod when the fish struck?

We went fishing with three Army sergeants from Andrews Field Air Force Base, Pete Murray, Billy Roberts and Louis Revis, the latter a fresh water fisherman from up Canada way. We took 12 stripers and one bluefish.

Ed Ferrell of the Benning Road Tackle Shop; Ed Richardson, secretary-treasurer of Maryland Electronics, and Art Brown, the organist, had somewhat better luck, catching 30 pansized rock and two whoppers that weighed 15 pounds each. Brown and Ferrel caught the big ones at dusk off the Holland Point black buoy.

A combined turkey shoot and oyster supper is on the calendar at the Berwyn Rod and Gun Club Grounds next Sunday, with the shooting starting at 10 a.m., and the eating at 1 p.m. Frank Huseman, manager of the club, says the turkeys will be dressed without feathers.

Rowland Plans to Have G.W. Up in Air for West Virginia

Wilson Hopes to Rebound Friday

Wilson's Green Tigers, defending champions and a preseason favorite, meet McKinley Tech in an Interhigh League game Friday at Wilson and, after the game, the Green Tigers' strength, or lack of it, should be more firmly established.

The Tigers, a Group I team in the league, were unimpressive in their 26-7 opening-game victory over Fairfax and have since lost to George Washington High, 26-7, and Western, 13-0.

McKinley, a Group II team, is untried in league competition. The Trainers have whipped Bladensburg, 31-6, and Episcopal, 20-6, while losing to Washington-Lee High, 4-0.

Two of the Group I strong teams, Eastern and Anacostia, unchanged. Eastern, with a victory over Chamberlain and a tie with Anacostia, meets Roosevelt at Roosevelt and the Indians, with their tie against Eastern in their only league game, play host to Bell.

Pass Game Counted on Here Friday

Coach Bo Rowland of George Washington University has decided to stick to the air when his Colonials tangle with West Virginia in a Southern Conference engagement at Griffith Stadium Friday night.

Last week's aerial victory over VMI gave the Colonials the fourteenth ranking nationally among passing collegiate elevens, according to NCAB statistics.

In their two games played to date against Virginia and VMI, Andy Davis and his backfield teammates have accumulated 370 yards and completed 56 percent of their passes for that fourteenth spot. However, only one of their touchdowns has been scored via the air route.

The National Collegiate Athletic Statistics also indicate that Rowland has more than one passer for the first time since taking over at George Washington.

Most of Davis' assistance is coming from Fullback Bobby Cilento, who has completed 13 of 16 passing attempts this season for 93 yards. Tailback Johnnie Shullenbarger added 56 additional yards in the V.M.I. game by completing two in two attempts. Both Shullenbarger and Cilento are helping Davis with other chores, Bobby averaging four yards each time he has carried the ball on 24 plays and Shullie averaging nearly 40 yards in the punting department.

Tops among Davis, and Cilento's receivers is End Charlie Jones who spent most of last season at wingback. Jones has picked up one touchdown and 157 yards on six catches this season. Against V.M.I. he teamed with Davis for a 62-yard pass play. Last season against Virginia this same pair set the national collegiate single pass mark with 93 yards and a score against the Cavaliers.

Police Team Gets Trophies

Superintendent of Police Maj. Robert J. Barrett, who until yesterday didn't have a single sports trophy in his room, suddenly found himself with a half dozen of them.

On behalf of the City Championship Police Department baseball team he accepted six trophies; from the Washington Amateur Baseball Association, the Washington Daily News, Anacostia League No. 1, Mount Vernon Sport and Cycle Shop, a trophy for winning the Police-Fire Department game, and a "most valuable player" award for Third Baseman Bill Shelton for his performance in the Police-Firemen game. Team members attended the ceremonies.

Mrs. Brownell Ties Mrs. Williams' Net 74

Mrs. J. V. Brownell and Mrs. Murray Williams tied for first place in Manor Country Club's Ladies' Day tournament yesterday with net 74s. Mrs. Madeline Egenroad of Washington Golf and Country Club won the guest prize with a net 80, and Mrs. A. B. Bower took low gross with 40-37—77.

In Penn State Film

Hoya Coach Finds Few Movie Stars

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Today ought to be a tough practice day for Georgetown's football squad.

The coaching staff spent three hours last night just running once the movies of the 34-14 defeat to Penn State. There was a delay in getting the film. For that reason, no lineup changes have been made so far this week. Today it may be a different story.

The movies merely offered pictorial confirmation of what Coach Bob Margarita saw during the game. However, he will have a chance to study the mistakes more thoroughly and try to correct them for the home opener with Tulsa at Griffith Stadium Saturday.

As a film reviewer, Margarita said, "We made an awful lot of mistakes. Downfield blocking definitely was poor and we had more than our share of missed assignments."

The youthful coach did signal out Capt. Tommy Hardiman for playing a "whale of a defensive game." According to Margarita, Hardiman was covering from sideline to sideline. He also thought End Harry Schmitt performed well on defense.

Asked if he thought his Hoyas would be improved for Tulsa, Margarita said rather ominously, "We'll find out Saturday."

End Coach Jack Prendergast, who scouted the Oklahoma invaders says the team's definitely faster than Penn State. Prendergast is full of some hair-curling football exploits by Halfback Jake Roberts, hard-running 200-pounder, and Jim Prewett, mammoth 235-pound tackle.

C. U. Readies For Opener

Catholic University will field one of its huskiest teams since the golden 1930s against Bridgewater College Saturday at Brookland, in the opening game of the season for both teams. On a basis of workouts to date, Coach Jan Jankowski expects the Cardinals to win.

The Cardinals' line will average better than 195 pounds. The backfield, featuring a couple of middleweights, will scale around 175, and Jankowski is rather pleased with the entire setup. The coach won't name a probable starting lineup until later in the week.

Writers Pick Notre Dame as Best in Nation

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (AP).—College football's new "top 10" appears in for a rocking this weekend with a schedule that tests the grit and gristle of the powers—from top-ranking Notre Dame right down through Washington.

The Fighting Irish, who escaped with a 14-7 last gasp victory over North Carolina Saturday, risk their dominating position against a troublesome State rival, Purdue, at South Bend.

The Irish maintained first place in the first Associated Press weekly poll today but they didn't do it in their usual overwhelming manner.

(Editor's Note—The U.P. coaches board also picked Notre Dame as top team).

The 190 sports writers and broadcasters who cast ballots thought enough of four other teams to give them more than 1000 points each and place them on Notre Dame's cleated heels.

But Michigan State, upset conqueror of Michigan, received 1296; Army, 1290, and Oklahoma, lowed by Southern Methodist, 1296; Army, 1290, and Oklahoma, 1025.

THE TOP TEN

1. Notre Dame	(63)	1500

6. Kentucky	(5)	559
7. Texas	(2)	502
8. Stanford	(3)	464
9. California	(2)	442
10. Washington		211

10 Per Cent Levy On TV Sales Goes Into Effect Nov. 1

Prospective sellers and buyers of new television sets were confused today by provisions of the new tax bill relating to the 10 per cent excise levy on sets.

The confusion results from a provision in the tax bill which applies only to the TV tax. While most provisions in the bill were effective immediately, and the new withholding levy increase goes into effect next Sunday, the item relating to TV excises is different.

It becomes effective on the first of the month following expiration of a 10-day period following the signing of the bill. President Truman signed the bill Saturday, September 23. This would make the 10-day period expire after October 1 and the tax become effective November 1.

Accident May Help

If you've been thinking of buying a new television set, Lacy's believes you should be reminded of the new government regulations concerning the sale of all television sets. The Federal Diary

New Regulations To Govern Travel By U. S. Employes

A new set of regulations to govern travel by Federal employes has been published by the Government Printing Office. Each agency will be sent a supply of the booklets.

The regulations were revised by the Budget Bureau in a move to reduce paper work and red tape by both employes and their agencies. They make plain, for example, that travel by extra-fare trains and planes, and the hire of cabs, autos and even horse and buggies, will be paid for by Uncle Sam when it's "advantageous to the Government."

Charles Edison, former Navy Secretary and New Jersey Governor, is reported to be under consideration for appointment as administrator of the proposed new civilian defense agency. Another possibility is Governor Turner of Oklahoma.

Among those being considered for key posts in the proposed new agency to stabilize prices and wages are former Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin, and James Rogers of New York, who was an assistant administrator of OPA. Both Rogers and James Brownlee, an OPA deputy, have been asked for their views on how the agency should be set up.

James Bruce, who was passed over for appointment as Ambassador to Great Britain after he was reportedly promised the post, will have his feelings soothed by an offer of an important Federal job.

A new agency to handle many transportation problems growing out of the defense program will be set up soon in the Commerce Department.

The Williams subcommittee of the House Civil Service Committee is writing a report on alleged overstaffing in the Treasury Department.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has reluctantly reclassified a number of its examiners to higher grades after several of them threatened to take their cases to court to compel the agency to act. Civil Service approved the reallocation. Now the commission has changed the titles of several of its lawyers to examiners to get them higher salaries.

Interior officials have run smack into a temperamental group of business people in trying to get its new defense agency in operation to handle power, oil and mineral problems. Secretary Chapman will be the administrator of the new Agency and it had been planned to name a single deputy to operate it. But the oil, power and other interests are demanding that the person in charge of their industry report directly to the Secretary, which would require appointment of several deputies.

The Government is giving though to requisitioning the building in the 1700 block of G st. nw. which the American Automobile Association plans to move into soon. Selective Service is being moved out of the building to Langston ter.

Ivan Asay of the Public Health Service is taking a leave of absence to work on a reorganization project for the Colombian government . . . S. W. Crostwait of the Reclamation Bureau is helping set up the new defense agency in Interior . . . Joseph E. Nelson has been moved up to succeed John E. McCoy as the legal chief of FCC's television branch.

The Army Medical Center has openings for dictaphone operators, $2650 annually to start. Status isn't necessary. Phone Georgia 1000, Ext. 2101 for details.

The Civil Service Commission today will send Federal agencies detailed instructions on how to operate under the Whitten rider that requires transfers, reinstatements, grade promotions and many appointments to be made on a temporary basis from September 1 through next June 30. Incidentally, some optimists believe the President will ask Congress to knock out the rider when it returns in November, and Congress will act swiftly to do so. I have my doubts.

$7,450,000 Issue Backed For Schools In Arlington

Civic Federation Favors Proposed Bond Sale Slated For Vote Nov. 7

The Arlington Civic Federation unanimously indorsed the proposed $7,450,000 school bond issue at its meeting last night in the Lyon Park Community House.

A referendum on the bond issue probably will be held during the November 7 general election. A petition with 5000 signatures requesting such a special vote is scheduled to be presented to Arlington Circuit Court this week.

The federation acted after School Board Chairman Mrs. Edmund Campbell told the group the board expects between 3500 and 4000 more pupils in Arlington schools within the next two years.

"These children are here," Mrs. Campbell said. "They are not going to move out. The classrooms are not here—they must be built."

Mrs. Campbell showed the 60 delegates present, slides of the 14 new schools and additions built from funds of two previous bond issues.

Earlier in the meeting, Mrs. Ruth Cox, chairman of the federation's health and welfare committee, urged each delegate to "look over your area," for slum housing conditions and report their findings to the committee.

Dunn to Direct School Project In Fairfax

Roy F. Dunn, ousted city manager of Falls Church, was named by the Fairfax County School Board yesterday to direct a proposed 12-million-dollar school construction program in the county.

Dunn was appointed director of school building and maintenance, a newly created position which will entail supervision of school construction and maintenance to be financed primarily from proceeds of a bond issue approved by county voters last May 30. His salary will be $6000 a year.

The school building program, hinging on the $10,500,000 bond issue, has been delayed since July by a suit challenging validity of the approving referendum. However, plaintiffs in the case have indicated they may withdraw the suit.

In his new job, Dunn will assume the school maintenance duties formerly assigned to W. T. Carrico, of Annandale, former supervisor of school maintenance and transportation who resigned recently to move out of the county. William Ebhardt, a former assistant to Carrico, was designated at yesterday's meeting as superintendent of transportation at a $3840 annual salary.

Dunn, a graduate of Virginia Military Institute and former city manager at Wytheville, Va., was dismissed by the Falls Church city council August 2 in the first of a series of administrative changes.

At its meeting yesterday, the school board approved plans for the purchase of sites for two new schools, one of which will be built with proceeds from the bond issue. They include a 23-acre tract on Popkins la., near Groveton, to be bought for $1100 an acre, and a 10-acre site adjacent to Bucknell Manor, at an estimated cost of $1650 an acre.

School officials said the Groveton tract is to be the site of a high school to be built after the current "emergency" program is completed. The Bucknell Manor land will be used for construction of an elementary school planned as part of the 12 million-dollar program to meet existing school needs by 1951.

Besides the bond issue, school officials expect to receive $1,500,000 in State grants and loans.

Meade GI Held Without Bond On Rape Charge

BALTIMORE, Oct. 3 (Spl.).—Corp. James L. Farrar, 23, 240-pound, 6-foot 7-inch military policeman from Fort Meade, was held without bond today for further hearing on a rape charge.

United States Commissioner Paul R. Kach ordered Farrar confined in the Baltimore city jail and continued his hearing until next Monday so the soldier can obtain counsel.

Farrar, who comes from Clifton Forge, Va., is accused of raping a 40-year-old WAC, who weighs only 115 pounds, early Saturday morning on the Fort Meade reservation.

Purnell Opens 'Crusade' In Prince Georges

Brig. Gen. William C. Purnell, Maryland State chairman of the Crusade for Freedom, will speak at a meeting in Hyattsville tonight launching the movement in Prince Georges County. Ernest N. Cory, regional chairman, will preside at the meeting, to be held at 8 p. m. in the County Service Building.

Negro Schools Here to Get More Teachers

The Board of Education's personnel committee took emergency steps yesterday to provide additional teachers for the city's overcrowded Negro classrooms.

A recommendation of School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning was approved transferring three vacant teacher salaries from the white schools to the Negro. The committee also agreed that four new salaries be created out of savings and said that four Negro high school teachers should be reduced to junior high status to relieve the teacher shortage in that division.

Dr. Corning described the steps as necessary to meet "an emergency teacher situation." They will be put into effect if approved by the full board at today's meeting at 3:30 p. m. at the Franklin School.

The shortage of Negro teachers has resulted from a sharp increase in Negro school enrollments this year.

Dr. Corning reported that 15 salaries already have been transferred from the white to the Negro schools. An additional 25 teachers are needed to meet current emergency needs, he said.

The plan for providing 11 still will leave the District short 14 teachers. He said he was "not yet able to present a plan by which all needs can be met."

The school head said the 11 additional teachers will permit eight junior high school counselors now assigned to full-time teaching duty to return to counseling. The remaining salaries will supply three of five needed physical education teachers.

Woolsey Hall Named To Board of Education

Woolsey W. Hall, four times president of the Federation of Civic Associations, was named to the Board of Education by District Court judges yesterday.

Hall

The 68-year-old retired Government worker will replace Attorney John H. Wilson, who recently retired for reasons of health. Hall will be the third Negro on the board of nine.

Notified of his appointment yesterday, he said that, as a member of the school board, he would continue to view the District's segregated school system as not in keeping "with the ideals of the greatest democracy on earth."

He said he fully supported a proposal of Dr. Walter E. Hager, president of Wilson Teachers College, for a merger of that school with the Negro Miner Teachers College.

Hall is an advocate of suffrage for the District and a vicepresident of the Central Suffrage Conference.

The new school board member is a native of the District and was born in a house still standing at 1631 O st. nw. He graduated from the old M Street High School, and in 1924, after attending night school, received a law degree cum laude from Howard University.

Hall first joined the Government as a messenger in 1903 and was retired last year as a Treasury Department purchasing assistant.

He is an elder and trustee of the 15th Street Presbyterian Church where he taught Bible classes.

Hall and his wife live at 1330 Wallach pl. nw. They have no children, but in 1940 when a nephew was attending the Garnet-Paterson Junior High School, Hall became president of the Parent-teacher association.

College Park Must Admit Negro Student

BALTIMORE, Oct. 3 (AP).—Parren J. Mitchell, 27-year-old Baltimore Negro, won the opening round today in his legal move to gain admittance to the University of Maryland at the College Park campus.

Mitchell

Mitchell obtained an order from Judge John T. Tucker in Baltimore City Court directing the university to admit him to graduate classes in sociology at College Park.

The university has never accepted Negroes at College Park. It has admitted them to its law school in Baltimore, and tried to establish a special graduate course in sociology in its Baltimore schools.

Judge Tucker, however, ruled that the special course would not give Mitchell his constitutional right to equal opportunity, since he would be denied the right to exchange views with other students and participate in seminars and other campus activities.

Whether the case will be appealed will depend on the university board of regents, which will meet in mid-October. Attorney General Hall Hammond said, however, that he would not recommend an appeal.

Judge Tucker based his ruling on the Supreme Court decision in the McLaurin case, involving a similar situation at the University of Oklahoma.

Pending before the Supreme Court is another case, involving the efforts of Esther McCready, a Negro girl, to obtain admission to the University School of Nursing in Baltimore. The State Court of Appeals has ordered her admission.

A different legal principle is involved in the McCready case, Hammond explained. The State is contending that she may attend nursing school in Tennessee under the southern regional educational compact, and that this gives her equal opportunity.

A third case filed today in Federal District Court involved the State Teachers College at Towson. F. Vernon Roberts, a third-year student at Coppins Teachers College, contended his application for admission to Towson as an advanced student was denied "solely because of race and color."

Roberts' suit is against members of the State board of education and Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, jr., State superintendent of education. It says the Towson institution offers training not available at institutions open to Negroes and that to deny Negroes admission is to deny them their constitutional right of equal opportunity.

New Suit to Replace Segregation Case Appeal

Plans to appeal two cases testing the District's segregated school system to the Supreme Court have been abandoned, Attorney Belford V. Lawson, jr., said yesterday.

Instead, he said, a group of Negro residents have authorized him to instigate a new suit charging "unequal facilities."

Lawson did not reveal the names of his clients or the situation to be named in the test case but said he will appear before the Board of Education with the complaint before going to court.

The new case, he said, will be stronger than the two cases dismissed by the Court of Appeals last February in a 2-1 decision. The cases involved part-time education and overcrowding at the Negro Browne Junior High School. The court found no evidence of discrimination against Negroes in assigning of school buildings and said the city offers equal educational opportunity for the two.

Sent to Lockup

Jury Prospect Finds Haste Makes Wait

"I've got places to go."

Those words uttered yesterday by a prospective juror in a hurry sent him to the District Court lockup for a 10-minute mediation period.

The unfortunate almost-juror is Frederick James Foels of 2719 Ordway st. nw. He had been called up for criminal jury service, and sought to be excused on the ground that his financial situation might be impaired by the month's service.

Judge David A. Pine, supervising the selection of jurors, said this alone was an insufficient reason.

"Well, I vote in Virginia," replied Foels.

Judge Pine said this excuse had come somewhat late, since just a few minutes before Foels made no response when the panel was asked whether anyone on it had a residence other than the District of Columbia.

The judge ordered Foels to sit down for a few minutes.

Then Judge Pine called Foels up again and asked him why he hadn't responded to the residence question.

"I didn't think it was necessary. That's how I felt about it," said Foels.

"You'd better sit down again," Judge Pine said.

But Foels replied, "I've got places to go."

With that, Judge Pine sent Foels to the lockup and threatened him with contempt action.

Foels was in a more respectful mood when he returned.

"I apologize to the court and that sort of thing," he said.

Filling Station Owner Accuses Ex-Employe

A former Arlington filling station worker was held for action of the Arlington grand jury yesterday, accused of stealing $235 of the station's money while on duty May 18.

William H. Harrison, 24, of 3518 North 13th st., Arlington, pleaded innocent to a charge of grand larceny during the hearing in Arlington County Court. The warrant for his arrest was sworn out by Thomas Beneson, owner of the filling station at 5618 Lee hwy.

Courteous Car Drivers to Get AAA Awards

Automotive officials and every policeman in town were alerted yesterday to keep an eagle eye on District motorists—to spot acts of courteous driving.

And so the American Automobile Association launched its "Driver Courtesy" campaign.

Here is how it will work: When a policeman or AAA official observes a particularly thoughtful road courtesy he will turn in the driver's license number to the AAA office.

A few days later the driver will receive a blue and yellow sticker which may be attached to the dashboard.

The campaign—to encourage greater care on the highways—was launched at a Mayflower Hotel luncheon meeting of the District Advisory Board of the AAA.

The board elected Francis G. Addison, jr., chairman, to succeed Charles H. Tompkins. Daniel W. Bell, president of American Security & Trust Co., was named vice chairman.

Representative Clifford Davis (D., Tenn.), a former traffic judge, was guest speaker. He suggested that Washington launch a drive against overuse of auto horns. "A quiet city is always a safe city," he said.

County Employe Takes His Own Life At Clarksburg, Md.

Robert H. Davis, 32, a laborer employed by Montgomery County, yesterday fatally shot himself in the head with a 22-caliber rifle, police said.

Montgomery County Medical Examiner Dr. Frank J. Broschart has issued a certificate of suicide in the case.

Police said Davis, who lives in Clarksburg, Md., went into a bedroom of his home at about 6 p. m. and shot himself. His wife, Mrs. Sarah Davis, and friends were in another room at the time of the shooting. Mrs. Davis said her husband had threatened to commit suicide on previous occasions. Witnesses, including a doctor, said Davis had been drinking for some time.

Church Dinner Today

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Church of the Epiphany, 19th and N. Quincy sts., Arlington, will serve a baked ham dinner from 5:30 to 7:30 p. m. today. Proceeds of the meal will go to the church's building fund. Dinners are $1.25 for adults and 75 cents for children.

Massman to Urge Revival Of 'Faith of Fathers' in '51

Sesqui officials next week will recommend that "Faith of Our Fathers" reopen next May for a second year's run in the Rock Creek Amphitheater.

Whether the drama will be revived and what will become of the Sesqui-built outdoor theater are decisions the executive committee hopes to reach at its next meeting, October 13.

Paul Massmann, general manager, told The Washington Post yesterday he plans to suggest that the show should go on for these reasons:

1. With a seasoned cast and stage crew, production would be smoother and cost less than this year.
2. An "enthusiastic" audience at 42 showings convinces Massmann the historic drama can be a natural fixture of the Capital for years.
3. This year "Faith of Our Fathers" was seen by 50,000 persons. It lost money, perhaps $15,000, but this was nowhere near as large a deficit as Massmann expected.
4. Paul Green plans to re-write the play considerably and "bring some Indians into the cast for greater juvenile appeal."
5. Green's other dramas, "Lost Colony" and "The Common Glory," according to Massman, enjoyed even less successful first seasons than "Faith of Our Fathers."

Massman would not guess the expense of another season, except it would be "way under $100,000."

Should the executive committee decide against another year's run, Massmann said it will have to decide whether to transfer the amphitheater to the National Capital Park Service immediately, produce another play next summer under Sesqui auspices or merely lease the facilities to summer stock companies.

Massman says the law does not dissolve the Sesquicentennial Commission until December 31, 1952.

Truck Carrying Her Mother Kills 3-Year-Old Girl

Child's Neck Broken As Vehicle Starts; Two Cycling Sailors Critically Injured

District Traffic Toll:
1950 deaths to date 50
1949 deaths to date 50
Total 1949 death toll 71

Three-year-old Juanita Shaw begged her mother to be allowed to ride along in the truck.

No, she was told, she should play with the children across the street. The truck, in which the child's mother was a passenger, started and the child was killed, her neck broken, under the wheels.

The accident occurred at 12:15 p. m. yesterday at Sumner and Barry rds. se., a stone's throw from the Shaw home at 2605 Barry rd.

Roomer at Wheel

Police said the truck was driven by Drayton E. Shell, 28, a roomer in the Shaw home.

Shell was taking Juanita's mother, Mrs. Alice Shaw, and a friend, Mrs. Clarence Jackson, of 1021 Lincoln pl. se., to the Birney Elementary School, Sumner rd. and Nichols ave. se., to attend a meeting of mothers of first grade pupils.

Mrs. Shaw sat next to Shell in the truck, and Mrs. Jackson was next to the right hand door. The child's grandmother, Mrs. Dolly Anderson, was standing in the doorway of the house.

As Shell prepared to start, Juanita ran up and pleaded to be taken along. No, her mother told her, she should join some children playing across the street.

Knocked to the Street

Shell, believing the child had gone across the street, started. The child apparently was knocked to the street and the left front wheel passed over her neck.

Mr. and Mrs. Shaw have three other children, George Bernard Shaw, 3 months; Clifton Leon Shaw, 3 months, and Clarence Edward Shaw, 6. Shell was released in $500 bond pending an inquest Thursday.

Two sailors attached to the Bethesda Naval Hospital wound up there as patients after the motorcycle they were riding was in collision with an automobile at 3:40 p. m. at Wisconsin ave. and Windsor la., Bethesda.

The sailors, reported in critical condition, are C. R. Smith, 21, who suffered a fractured back, fractured right leg and possible fractured skull, and Jesse Wakefield, 25, who suffered a broken leg and severe cuts of the face and side.

Montgomery County police said the accident occurred when a car driven by Mrs. Marjorie De Vries, 35, of 8614 Lynnbrook dr., Bethesda, entered Wisconsin ave. from Windsor la. The motorcycle was northbound on Wisconsin ave.

Mrs. De Vries' car caught fire but the blaze was extinguished by the Bethesda fire department. Mrs. De Vries, who was not hurt, was charged with reckless driving.

Mrs. Margo D. Currie, 43, of 2628 Tunlaw rd. nw., wife of a State Department analyst, suffered possible fractured ribs and possible internal injuries in a two-car crash at 8 p. m. at 34th and R sts. nw. She was admitted to Georgetown Hospital in undetermined condition.

She was riding in a car driven by her husband, Maurice E. Currie. The second car, police said, was operated by Ellabelle G. Sadler, 43, of 4206 Curtis rd., Chevy Chase, Md., a Veterans Administration employe at Bethesda Naval Hospital. The drivers were not injured.

New Fish Forms Brought to Light By A-Bomb Tests

The atom-bomb tests at Bikini atoll four years ago have yielded a large number of fish forms never before described, reported Dr. Leonard P. Schultz, the institution's curator of fishes.

Dr. Schultz did not attribute the new fish to effects of the bomb blast or its radiations, but rather to the increased opportunity to search the waters.

Out of 491 species distinguished to date, he said, 79 have never before been described. The work of sorting and tagging the collection is still far from complete.

Dr. Baumgartner Quits Children's Bureau Post

Dr. Leona Baumgartner, associate chief of the children's bureau, Federal Security Agency, has resigned the position and is returning to her previous position as assistant commissioner of health in New York City.

Dr. Baumgartner, who will continue as an unsalaried special consultant, was with the bureau for 15 months and held the associate chief post since June, 1949.

Snags Lewis Extradited To Maryland

Fourteen men, including Lewis, and five women were surprised March 25, 1949, when deputy United States Marshals pulled a surprise raid on a bungalow at 4310 46th st., Bladensburg, Md., just over the District line.

As a result of the raid, District authorities tried Lewis and the 13 other men on charges of conspiracy and gambling. The case ended in a hung jury, and was scheduled for retrial today.

Lewis and two others were convicted by a District Court jury last January, but the decision was reversed. Lewis still faces trial on gambling charges with one other defendant.

The Prince Georges County charges are based on the same raid. In Maryland, however, all the occupants of the Bladensburg bungalow were indicted, including the women.

State's Attorney A. Gwinn Bowie said yesterday he intends to try the cases during the October term of court.

Concrete 'Logs' Guard Drive in Rock Creek Park

That's the dernier cri from the National Capital Parks Office, which yesterday announced some of its logs-not-logs have been placed along Sherrill dr. in Rock Creek Park to serve with "more stability" as protection to motorists.

Idea of the logs-not-logs is that they will last forever—almost. They support guard rails along dangerous curves in the parks. Along Sherrill dr., Park officials pointed out, there is a particularly hazardous drop.

Previously, the Parks office had locust logs to support the railings. However, the logs sometimes would rot away before their deterioration was noticed.

Employers Reminded To File Salaries List

District Assessor Edward A. Dent yesterday reminded Washington employers that they must file with his office by February 15 statements of salaries paid District residents in 1950 where the amount paid was $4000 or more.

The practice of requiring employers to file such statements was started last year as a means of checking on persons who should be filing District income tax returns. The minimum salary to be reported has been increased from $1000 to $4000 because the individual exemption for taxpayers jumps up the same amount this year, Dent said.

Ambrose Case Delayed Three Weeks

Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut refused yesterday to dismiss the stamp-swindle indictment against Harold F. Ambrose, former special assistant to the Postmaster General.

The District Court jurist continued hearings on the validity of the indictment for three weeks. Assistant United States Attorney John W. Fihelly promised the court that the grand jury will make a finding in the case by that time.

Edward Bennett Williams, his attorney, said the Government, by re-presenting the entire case to the grand jury, tacitly admitted that the pending indictment is defective.

Williams said that in view of this fact, the old indictment should be voided and that the Government should rest any findings the grand jury should make in the new presentation.

Fihelly said that he was convinced he could salvage most of the indictment, even though 11 of the counts might be found deficient

John Fitzgerald Dies; Former Boston Mayor

BOSTON, Oct. 3 (AP).—Former Boston Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, 87, a Democratic leader for more than half a century, died last night.

Vern Hansen Funeral

Funeral services for Vern Hansen, WTOP-CBS announcer, will be held today in the Presbyterian Student Chapel of the University of Wisconsin in Madison.

District Commissioners yesterday appointed 37 additional members to the executive committee of the Armed Forces Hospitality Committee which will coordinate off-duty recreation activities for military personne here.

Most of them represent civic, business or Government groups that were members of the War Hospitality Committee, the agency which performed a similar function during World War II. They were recommended by Committee Chairman, Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, one of 21 original members appointed by the Commissioners two weeks ago.

A new group represented on the committee is Associated Services for the Armed Forces, Inc. This is the successor to the USO and has as its member agencies the Armed Forces YMCA, National Jewish Welfare Board and National Catholic Community Service.

Last week Joseph Kaufman, president of the District branch of the ASAF, had expressed concern that the Commissioners' committee would develop into an operating, rather than a coordinating agency. What was needed, he said, was a community-wide group that would coordinate functions of operating agencies—such as the YMCA, the Salvation Army, etc. —that would actually provide the entertainment and other services.

Kaufman met with the Commissioners yesterday morning and said they had told him that the committee was to serve as a coordinating group.

New members added to the committee yesterday were:

Lee D. Butler, Mrs. Wayne Coy, Herbert Gill, Duane Paul, Mrs. Charles Runyon Jd., Joseph Kaufman, Henry P. Erwin, Perrey C. Brady, Philip L. Graham, Benjamin McKelway, John O'Rourke, Mrs. Peter Miller.

Msgr. John S. Spence, Brig. Gen. Wesley W. Bouterse, Philip B. Fleming, Cecil L. Jones, Mabel Cook, Hobart N. Corning, Carter Barron, Thornton W. Owen, James E. Colliflower, Herbert P. Leeman.

Nat Wilson, Carol Wanner, Col. Campbell Johnson, Edward Rosenblum, James Schwab, Mrs. Alice Hunter, Maurice L. Palmer, John Reilly, Henry Hubbard, Mrs. James M. Helm, Col. Arthur W. Moore, Mrs. Clifford Davis, Mrs. Alf Heiberg, Mrs. Morris Cafritz and Mrs. Martin Vogel.

• A school bus, a bouncing ball, a running child—these are signs for all of us to be extra careful while driving.

Accidents don't "just happen." Most of them can be prevented. That's why you'll find that, with telephone men and women, safety comes first—always, all ways.

Last year, for example, telephone drivers in Washington covered 4,263,000 miles of streets and highways—in all kinds of weather. More than 1,400 of them completed the year without a single accident. And 43% have safety records that range from five to thirty years.

Our people are proud of these records—and rightfully so. But they'll never stop trying to better them in every way they can—with caution, concentration, control and courtesy.

J. B. Dickman Again Heads Citizen Group

J. B. Dickman, jr., a patent attorney who lives at 3628 Veazey st. nw., was elected president of the North Cleveland Park Citizens' Association for the fourteenth straight year last night.

Reelected to serve with him were Wilbur A. Gallahan, vice president; J. W. Howes, treasurer, and Mrs. T. Ellis Allison, secretary. Dickman and Milton A. Harper were elected delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations.

Meeting at the Hearst School, the association voted to ask Traffic Director George Keneipp to arrange for Bureau of Standards employes to park in the bureau grounds. Bumper-to-bumper parking by bureau employes on Van Ness and Veazey sts. creates a hazard to children, Dickman said.

The association also voted to contribute to the court fight against a gas rate increase, leaving the exact amount to be determined after a check on the status of its treasury.

Columbia Heights

The Columbia Heights Citizens Association last night sent an urgent request to the Public Utilities Commission to enforce the law prohibiting passengers from riding in front of the white line on the streetcars and buses.

The group acted after hearing George H. Brown, chairman of the utilities committee, describe the seriousness of the situation which he attributed to overcrowding.

Another resolution adopted at the meeting in the Columbia Heights Christian Church Hall placed the association on record against the proposed merger of Wilson and Miner Teachers Colleges.

Southeast Council

The action of District school authorities in refusing to permit a mixed cast to perform "Faith of Our Fathers" in a local school was commended last night by the Southeast Council of Citizens Associations.

The council also voted to request that the District Recreation Department furnish it with a copy of the Interior Department's report on the operation of public swimming pools in Washington during the summer.

At the meeting held at Anacostia High School, it was announced that a Sousa Memorial Band Concert would be held the night of November 6 at Sousa Junior High School by the Washington Boys Club Band.

Palisades Association

Inspector John E. Fondahl, acting head of civilian defense for the District, discussing safety precautions and defense plans with the Palisades Citizens Association last night.

More than 140 persons attending the meeting at the Palisades Field House also heard a report on activities in which it was noted 430 new members have joined the association in the past few months. The association now has close to 950 members.

Metropolitan View

The Metropolis View Citizens Association last night voted to urge the early removal of the personal property tax at budget hearings before the District Commissioners later this month.

The association also instructed its representative, Mrs. Franklin G. Sartwell, to ask the commissioners for more economy. Mrs. Sartwell and Jack Riley, association president, were named delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations. They and Louis M. Spangler were chosen delegates to the Northeast Council.

Church Parley Urges Pastors' Pay Be Raised

FREDERICK, Md., Oct. 3 (AP).—The Pennslyvania Conference of the Evangelical United Brethren Church framed its program for the coming year today, with a suggestion that pastors should get more pay.

The Rev. Paul E. Shannon of York, Pa., the conference superintendent, made the proposal in his annual report.

All the congregations in the conference, he said, should give their ministers a 5 per cent cost-of-living increase in salary. The minimum pay for a full-time pastor should be $2400 a year, counting a $200 allowance for automobile expenses.

About 175 ministers and lay workers, representing churches of the denomination in southern Pennsylvania, Maryland and the District of Columbia, registered at Centennial Memorial Evangelical United Brethren Church for opening sessions of the 162d annual conference today.

Dr. Balmer Showers of Harrisburg, Pa., presiding bishop of the denomination's eastern district, opened the meeting with a communion service.

The delegates were welcomed to Frederick by the Rev. John Ness, jr., pastor of the local church, and the Rev. Paul L. Althouse of the Evangelical Reformed Church, acting as spokesman for Frederick ministers.

The conference coincides with the sesquicentennial of the church of the united Brethren in Christ, one of the sects that joined in forming the Evangelical United Brethren Church.

Tito Asks $10 Million From World Fund

BELGRADE, Oct. 3 (U.P.).—Yugoslavia has applied to the International Monetary Fund for permission to draw about 10 million dollars and has also made new requests for aid from the United States Export-Import Bank, reliable sources said today.

The Yugoslavs need an estimated minimum of 50 million dollars worth of grains, sugar and fats to bridge the food and fodder loss in the summer drouth. Both the Export-Import Bank and the World Fund are prevented from lending money for food relief, but these restrictions could be circumvented, these sources said.

Jacksonville Red Ban Ruled Void by Judge

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 3 (AP).—Jacksonville's anti-Communist ordinance is unconstitutional, Circuit Judge Claude Ogilvie ruled today, in ordering Alexander W. Trainor, a registered Communist, freed. Trainor had been sentenced to 90 days for violating the ordinance making it a crime for a Communist to live here.

Judge Ogilvie pointed out that Trainor was not charged with any overt act or disturbing the peace. In registering to vote, Trainor complied with the State law by listing his correct party affiliation

5000 Listed On Arlington Bond Petition

Arlington's P-TA Council said yesterday its members had collected "more than 5000" signatures on a petition for a referendum November 7 on issuance of $7,450,000 in school bonds.

The petition will be presented to the county school board at 5 p. m. today when it meets at the school office. Only 1000 signatures are needed.

The board has until Saturday to present the petition to Arlington Circuit Court Judge Walter T. McCarthy, who is empowered to order that the referendum be held during the regular November election.

More than 100 members of 30 P-TA groups circulated the petition in their areas. Coordinating the work was Mrs. Edward Hincks, P-TA Council secretary.

The Hume (Oakridge) P-TA, for example, with a paid membership of 58, collected signatures of 264 qualified voters in its area to be added to the petition.

The P-TA council moved fast after the school board on September 10 approved a $7,450,000 building program and issued an "invitation" to county residents to begin circulating petitions.

Bethesda Man Missing; Police Open Manhunt

Police of 13 States have been asked to look for Leon S. Steed, jr., 29, 4826 Montgomery ave., Bethesda, Md., believed suffering from amnesia caused by a blow on the head suffered when he was robbed in Chicago.

Young Steed left his home Sunday about 4:30 p. m. in his automobile. His car was found yesterday parked on Charles st. in Alta Vista, Md. and a bus driver believes he saw him Sunday night get off a bus and run.

Series Fans in Philadelphia Include Famous Presidential Wives

From The New York Times picture section, October 17, 1915

"THE DAY WAS RADIANT" when President Woodrow Wilson took his fiancee, Mrs. Norman Galt, to the World Series game in Philadelphia 35 years ago. The Phillies, who meet the Yankees in the 1950 World Series opening today, won the flag in 1915. It was their last pennant until this year.

Mrs. Wilson remembered the big day in 1915 well. In her book "My Memoir" (published by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.) she says, "Mr. Wilson had asked mother and me to join the party. The day was radiant. It was our first appearance together since our announcement, and along the route crowds gathered to greet us. Upon reaching Philadelphia we had an escort of police. No matter how accustomed one grows to the deference paid the great office of the Presidency, it never ceases to be a thrilling experience to have all traffic stopped, the way cleared, and hear acclaims from thousands of throats. So, in this first experience where I shared the acclaim, I was excited as any child.

"The Mayor of Philadelphia was at the box to greet us. We found a charming welcome everywhere, and people tried in the nicest way to express their interest in and approval of me."

Presidents—and their wives, too,—have always been baseball fans. President Truman sometimes arrives unannounced at Griffith Stadium to watch a favorite team, while FDR's liking for the sport is legendary. Watching the 1950 World Series will be a woman who first caught the fever of baseball many years ago watching her husband throw out the first ball at the opening games of the Washington Senators. She is Mrs. Calvin Coolidge.

Trumans Won't Pack for Quite a While

By Marie McNair and Elizabeth Maguire

DATE OF OCCUPANCY of the White House is still in the field of prophecy. At a conference held yesterday by Mrs. James Meredith Helm, White House secretary, it was mentioned that the First Family is expected to move into the remodeled executive mansion sometime in December, 1951.

Gen. Glen E. Edgerton, who is in charge of reconstruction work at the White House, believes that December, 1951, is as good a guess as anybody can make. The completion of the original contract, he says, is set for October, 1951. Bad weather has slowed the work down a little, and the difference between the completion of the work and actual occupancy is problematical.

Decorating has to be done, and additional plans will probably be made. Taking everything into account, it is considered a safe guess that the White House will be ready for the First Family about two months after completion of the contract.

Dates of alphabetical teas and diplomatic do's at Blair House will not be made until Mrs. Truman returns from Independence, Mo. The First Lady is expected back sometime within the next two weeks. Margaret is in New York, "where her studies always keep her busy," explains Mrs. Helm.

Yesterday's conference was the first of the fall season, and a general welcome to Mrs. Helm, who has just returned from a summer in Boyce, Va., in the Shenandoah Valley.

ARRIVALS:

MRS. MESTA, who arrived in New York on the French liner Liberte yesterday, spent her first day on home soil giving interviews to the press and answering telephone calls. By night time she was ready for a rest! On Thursday, the American Minister to Luxembourg will be in Washington, where she'll stay at the Sulgrave Club, and will report to the State Department Friday.

"Yes, they're dusting off the same old desk," she said yesterday by telephone to Washington. It's in the office she used when she was here in the spring.

Her recall for consultations came earlier than expected, Mrs. Mesta said, so that she's making no social engagements for the present.

If she is given leave of absence, Mme. Minister says, she would prefer to spend it in Europe and at the same time take on some speaking engagements.

PARTY PARADE:

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS A. WADDEN'S tea yesterday might have been a second wedding reception for their son and daughter-in-law, the junior Mr. and Mrs. Wadden, who were married in early August in Blackston, Va.

With the hosts in the receiving line were the young Waddens, the bride's stepfather and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest S. Allen, and the bride's sister, and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Walter K. Hardy, here from Amelia, Va. Mrs. Hardy was her sister's only attendant at her wedding.

Instead of white satin yesterday, young Mrs. Wadden, jr., wore a full-skirted blue lace frock with wide neckline, and Mrs. Wadden was in violet satin with an orchid at her shoulder.

Yesterday's fete was the first of two. The second, to be given today, also honors the bride and bridegroom. Guests were invited lphabetically with a preponderance of both parties drawn from legal circles. The junior Mr. Wadden is an assistant United States attorney attached to the District Court.

Among personal friends of the hostess asked to assist were Mme. Jutila, wife of the Finnish Minister—the Minister was there, too; Mrs. William S. Culbertson at the tea service; Mrs. F. A. Christensen, Mrs. C. C. Ailes and her daughter, Charlotte; Mrs. Francis Hill, Mrs. E. G. Gibson, Mrs. Julian Koerner.

Mrs. Hugo Black and Mrs. Tom Clark, Supreme Court Justices wives, and Mrs. James Webb were also asked to take a turn at the tea table.

Judge and Mrs. Dickinson Letts, Judge and Mrs. James Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Logan Morris, Mrs. Harry Robinson were there, and Mrs. Emil Hurja, who was going on to Mme. Rybar's party at the Mayflower and from there to the Chevy Chase Club for dinner.

A delightful little lady—Mrs. Frank Logan—who was sipping punch, was taking more than casual interest in the club on S st. (regulations forbid the use of the name) where the party was given. The house had been her home for a number of years. It was where her daughters, Georgie, now Mrs. Jacob Devers, wife of General Devers, and Margaret, who is Mrs. Charles W. Smith, grew up, and where they often returned for visits with their children.

MRS. LEIGH WADE, soon to return to Greece, where her husband, Colonel Wade, is Air Attache at our embassy in Athens, was guest of honor at a small cocktail party given by Mme. Vladimir Rybar in the Mayflower Lounge. Earlier yesterday Mrs. Peyton March, wife of the World War I Chief of Staff, entertained at luncheon for Mrs. Wade.

Guests for cocktails, mostly Helen Wade's old friends, included Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, Mrs. March, Mme. Bend, Mrs. Clark Woodward, Mrs. Edward H. Conger, Mrs. Arthur Vennell, Mrs. J. E. Saugstad, Mrs. Fred Britten, Miss Rose Saul, Mrs. George Trible, Mrs. Brison Norris, Mrs. Emil Hurja and Mrs. Tomas Cajigas.

SENORA DE HERBRUGER, wife of the Ambassador of Panama, gave a tea yesterday afternoon for Senora de Remon, who is the wife of the chief of police of Panama.

Senora de Remon is here visiting Mrs. James Totten, wife of Colonel Totten, who was United States provost marshal in the Canal Zone for two years. Yesterday's tea was for ladies of the diplomatic corps and wives of former United States officials in the Canal Zone of Panama.

THE MINISTER OF AUSTRIA, Ludwig Kleinwaechter, gave a luncheon yesterday at the legation for Walter Donelly, newly appointed United States High Commissioner of Austria. Mr. Donelly is leaving on October 11 for his new post.

600 Episcopal Women Hear Council Plan

Some 600 women attending the annual fall conference of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Episcopal Diocese of Washington yesterday got a preview of a Nation-wide meeting described as to be the most important gathering of non-Roman Christians in the history of the American church."

Dr. Earl F. Adams of New York City, executive secretary of the planning committee for the proposed new National Council of Churches, explained the setup of the NCC which, he said, will be formed at a Nation-wide meeting in Cleveland, November 28-December 3.

"The agency will serve the interests of 27 church bodies, including a number of eastern orthodox groups," he said. "The combined church membership will be around 26 million, and eight national agencies, now serving 50 communions, will become departments in the new organization."

Dr. Adams said the Ohio meeting will be attended by 1200 official delegates and 5000 visiting delegates.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Widow Marries Younger Man for Whom She Left First Husband 10 Years Ago; Her Doctor Sons Are Outraged and Ostracize Her; Is This Fair?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I desperately need help and guidance. Ten years ago I met Fred, who is younger than myself, and I fell in love with him—because I was lonely, I suppose. I was married to John at the time, a good man, but peculiar and difficult. He traveled and was away much of the time, leaving me with two sons to raise.

John learned of my friendship with Fred and made life so difficult that I had to leave home. But two years later we patched things up and I was with John and faithful to him during his last illness, six years ago, when he wanted no one but me to nurse him. Thereafter I lived alone, working every day, until two months ago, when I married Fred, against my sons' wishes.

Both my sons graduated as doctors and have a wonderful practice quite a distance from here. Both are married and have children, and each was willing to give me a home after John died, but their wives said, "no." When Fred proposed marriage by mail some time ago, I wrote my sons and asked their blessing (they knew the story), saying I was lonely. They mailed strong protests, but friends said I'd be foolish to heed them, as I had always been a good mother and loyal to the boys in everything, even when I knew they were wrong.

Well, as I've said, I went ahead and married Fred, hoping for the best,—and neither son has written me since, although I write them every week. Apparently they've completely cast me off. Also my brother and sister ignore me; and they have been a great influence on the boys all their life, and are great Christians, or so they make people think. As a result of this ostracism I am miserable, cry most of the time and spend sleepless nights, and feel I must end it all soon.

Fred is a kind and considerate husband who takes a back seat and never complains; but he is a good man and doesn't deserve such a life. I think I must have a son complex. Is their attitude wrong? Or am I wrong? They are happy and I've given them and their wives everything I could afford ever since they married. How should I act in the future? Should I ignore them and hope they'll find it in their hearts to relent? Or should I continue to beg for their love and understanding? Please advise. C. R.

DEAR C. R.: You claim credit for always having been a good mother and loyal to your sons in everything. But loyalty to children means, above all, being steadfast in their service, standing by like a Rock of Ages to give them a sense of security, a protected feeling that their needs are your concern and shall be met to the best of your ability. It means giving a strongly reliable performance. And your "off again, on again" record of jumping the traces for a lover 10 years ago, hardly squares with good mothering, even supposing your sons were already in college then.

The runaway episode that ended in reconciliation with your husband sounds like chronic instability coming to a boil and getting out of hand in your personality. And perhaps your recent impulsive marriage to Fred is part of the pattern. Maybe it is an old story with you to be leaping from the frying pan into the fire, never happy with the way things are.

If you've been unstable all through life, as I suspect has been the case, your children would feel pretty insecure, psychologically and socially, as a result. They'd feel anxiously inferior in awkward situations, and would carry a lot of unconscious resentment earmarked for you; and I think this is the substance of your sons' present-day "protest behavior."

Superficially judged, your sons are behaving wrongly, even stupidly, with a lack of humane insight that ill becomes their professional status, when they ostracize you for marrying Fred. But from the analytic view they are manifesting childish self-concern, involuntarily expressed as shame and outrage. It seems they fear loss of standing in their circles, if identified with your new matrimonial venture. This is a flashback to their feelings 10 years ago, not a mature response to a new chapter of experience.

Basically your agony has to do with terrific insecurity feelings too. No matter which way you jump in search of sanctuary, you anticipate the worst. And in some form or other, you bring it on yourself,—as for instance in prostrating yourself to your sons more recently, thus practically insuring a kick in the teeth. You should have psychiatric help to cure your misery at its roots. But meantime get your mind off your sons' coldness, which stems from fear,—not godliness. Fred's helpmate care of you, as postlude to ancient scandal, is morally finer than their attitude. Don't crawl to them; let them go psychologically. Cleave to Fred and make a good relationship with him. M. H.

Experiment Linda

Light, Rosy Lipstick Suits Junior Party Girl

Fourth day of Linda's six-day beauty routine.

By Ann Lawrence

LINDA TAKES HER FIRST LESSON in applying lipstick, a pale pink one, which she'll reserve for very special party occasions. She begins by coating a brush heavily with lipstick. Next, she practices outlining her mouth with the brush until she achieves a straight, even line. After the color is applied, Linda learns to blot her mouth with a tissue, to fix the color

LINDA SAYS: Some girls in junior high wear lipstick. My mother doesn't want me to. But there's such a difference between being twelve and going to grammar school and being thirteen and in junior high. Don't you think I could try some make-up?

Her mother says: Linda seems entirely too young for make-up to me. Can't she wait until she is a little older? However, if all the other girls in her crowd are wearing lipstick to parties, I suppose she might try it out. But she must learn to apply it properly. What do you recommend?

Happily, there was no family quarrel to arbitrate. Linda's mother was willing for her to experiment, to begin to learn proper make-up technique. Linda was satisfied with a light dusting of powder to take the shine off her nose and with the pale, rosy pink lipstick as suitable for her age and her own fair coloring.

LIPSTICK DURING school hours? Linda herself confessed that she thought it "pretty messy."

With her mother watching, Linda took her first make-up lesson. How would you put your powder on, we asked? She took up a puff, pressed it into the box and wiped it over her face. The result: a blotched look and powder which would not cling, even for one hour.

Linda learned that powder must be patted onto the face, much more heavily than is intended for the finished job. She learned to press it on in big gobs, then to take a clean puff, or piece of cotton and carefully wipe away all the excess. She learned that she must remove every trace from her hairline, must blend it back to her ears and down onto her neck, so that the coloring will be even over the whole surface.

SO FAR, SO GOOD, said her mother.

Next, a lipstick lesson.

Here are the rules Linda learned: A lipstick brush is a must. Only with it can you achieve a smooth, clean lip outline that, more than anything else, contributes to fastidious grooming.

Practice with it for a few weeks, balancing your hand by resting your elbow on a table, cupping your chin with your fingers so that the thumb and forefinger, in which the brush is held, are steady.

First, get sufficient lipstick on the brush to trace a clean, clear line. Don't stretch your lips when outlining the curve, for that distorts the natural line and it is impossible either to follow it or to gauge just how it needs to be changed. Trace your upper lip first, drawing the brush from the outside corners to the center. To preserve the natural cleft and softness in the lower lip, and also to serve as a guide, draw a short, straight line across the bottom of the lower lip, directly in the center.

THEN, STARTING at the outer corners of the lower lip, indent slightly, then draw a soft, full curve down to meet the straight line, already drawn. Now fill in with lipstick. Do not use your brush for this; apply the stick directly to your lips and get enough on for the full rich color that you want. Blot with a tissue to set the color.

Naturally, Linda's first attempt with the brush was uneven. It took her at least half an hour before the first creditable outline was formed. She did, however, manage a fairly competent job in this time.

She liked the delicate pink color; her mother thought it entirely suitable.

"But I'm glad of the practice. I'll have to try a lot before the next party," Linda declared, "or I'll never get there on time!"

Even if You've Never Been In Minneapolis, You'll Find Swedish Rye Bread Delicious

HERE'S ANOTHER READER who had fine luck with the recently printed recipe for French bread and is looking for new worlds to conquer. She's a bride who'd like to bake some Swedish rye bread for a husband with fond memories of Minneapolis.

DEAR ANNE:

Being a bride of three weeks and newly arrived in Washington, I have found your column a real help in starting housekeeping. I have just finished baking your sour dough French bread with great success. My husband, having attended school in Minneapolis, is a great fan of Swedish rye bread. Now that I have made the French bread, he would like me to try the rye—but I am unable to find a recipe for it. Do you think you could find a recipe among your seemingly endless wealth of homemaking knowledge? N. K. C., Arlington, Va.

This recipe for Swedish Limpa, a delicious rye bread, comes from Betty Crocker's "Picture Cook Book." Remember that dough made with rye flour will be sticky and be sure to add enough flour so that it handles easily.

SWEDISH LIMPA

- 1½ cups lukewarm water
- ¼ cup molasses
- 1/3 cup sugar
- 1 tablespoon salt
- Finely grated rind of 2 oranges.
- 2 cakes compressed yeast
- 2 tablespoons soft shortening
- 2½ cups sifted rye flour
- 2½ to 3 cups sifted white flour
- 1 cup raisins (optional).

Mix first five ingredients together. Crumble in the yeast and stir until dissolved. Add shortening. Mix the two flours in with spoon, then with hand. Add cup of raisins if desired.

Knead, then place in greased bowl. Turn to bring greased side up, cover with damp cloth and let rise in warm, draft-free spot (80 to 85 degrees) until double (1½ hours). Punch down dough, cover and let rise again until almost double (30 to 45 minutes). Shape into two round loaves. Place on opposite corners of lightly greased baking sheet. Let rise until double (45 to 60 minutes). Bake until brown in 375 degree oven 30 to 40 minutes, or until it tests done.

Note: You can make this bread with only 1 rising before shaping into loaves, but it will have a little heavier and coarser texture.

DEAR ANNE:

Would you kindly tell me the approximate dates that one should do their spring and fall housecleaning? Also could you recommend any good books on the subject?

Mrs. M. L., Washington, D. C.

I'd say September or October for fall cleaning, and April or thereabouts for spring cleaning. However, the trend now is to sidestep these mammoth rounds of cleaning if possible. You can do it by a good program of weekly or monthly cleaning. For advice on organizing your cleaning work and on other household matters, consult some such book as the "Woman's Home Companion Household Book," (Doubleday), or "America's Housekeeping Book" (Scribner's.)

DEAR ANNE:

Could cornstarch be substituted for arrowroot in an old-fashioned recipe? Should you use the same amount? T. P., Washington.

"Yes" to the first question, "no" to the second. Use 1 tablespoon cornstarch in place of 2/3 tablespoon arrowroot.

DEAR ANNE:

For several years I have been unable to wear nail polish because I had developed an allergy to it. I have heard recently that there is a drug store in town that carries a line of cosmetics, including nail polish, for people with allergies such as mine. Could you tell me the location of this store?

J. S., Silver Spring, Md.

I have a list of several pharmacies here that sell non-allergic polish and polish remover. Three are on I st. nw., at 1726, 1835, and 1928. Others are at 724 11th st. nw., and 2213 Wisconsin nw. I also understand that a well-known brand carried in 5-and-10-cent stores is non-irritating for people with some types of allergies.

PORK CHOPS WITH CARAWAY SAUERKRAUT

Ingredients: 6 shoulder pork chops (about 3 pounds), 1¼ teaspoons salt, 1 No. 2½ can sauerkraut, 1 tablespoon brown sugar, 1 teaspoon caraway seed.

Method: Wipe chops with damp cloth. Cut off a few pieces of fat from the chops and try out in a 12-inch skillet; add chops, sprinkle with 1 teaspoon of the salt, and brown over moderately low heat; turn, sprinkle with remaining ¼ teaspoon salt and brown other side. It will take about 15 minutes to brown the chops. Turn the contents of the sauerkraut can over the chops, spreading it out evenly over chops. Sprinkle with sugar and caraway. Cover tightly and cook slowly for 30 minutes longer or until chops are cooked through thoroughly. Serve with pan juices. Makes 6 servings.

"Seeing is believing!"

says MRS. EUGENE A. ROSS
3802 Yuma St., N.W., Washington, D.C.

"I'll admit I was skeptical about this 'no rinse' business, so I really put it to the test! I washed all my bedding—quilts, blankets, even spreads—with No-Rinse Surf. What a difference it made, not having to rinse those heavy things!"

"I kept peeking at the wash on the line—to see what would happen. Well, my blankets dried so fluffy and smelled fresher than if they'd been rinsed. All my clothes were softer and colors came out brighter and clearer than ever before!"

"Seeing is believing, but I still can't get over the way No-Rinse Surf got my husband's shirts so white—without a bit of bleaching or hard rubbing! I washed in half the usual time—and even the ironing seemed to go easier. You bet I'm sold on No-Rinse Surf."

See for yourself with No-Rinse Surf—only washday product approved by U. S. Testing Co. for no rinsing!

Montgomery Gets Housing Authority

A new Montgomery County Housing Authority was set up yesterday by the Montgomery County Council at its meeting in Rockville.

John Pratt of Chevy Chase, a Washington lawyer, was named chairman of the group and appointed to serve five years. He is a former president of the Harvard Club of Washington and a disabled Marine veteran. He was named to the citizens advisory committee on housing by the county council in April, 1950.

Other members appointed are: Malcolm White, Sunshine, Md., farmer, who served on the first county personnel board until his recent resignation to become an unsuccessful candidate for member of county council. He is a member of the Montgomery County Farm Bureau Federation and the Senior Farmers Club of Sandy Spring; Wallace H. Cohen of Chevy Chase, Md., a Washington lawyer, former attorney for the Board of Economic Welfare. He is active in the Montgomery County Jewish Community Center; Mrs. Derryberry, Silver Spring, a member of the citizens committee on the zoning ordinance of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission and a vice president of the League of Women Voters, and George W. Johnson, Rockville businessman.

Appointment of the committee clears the way for eventual development of low cost housing projects to eliminate substandard homes from the county, the council said.

In other actions, the council named Dean James J. Hayden, 112 E. Bradley la., Chevy Chase, of the Columbus University Law School as a member of the Montgomery County Board of Zoning Appeals to succeed the late John D. Sadler of Bethesda.

The council also took under advisement four applications for exemptions from the new road code by builders and presented prizes to winners of the recent playground contest sponsored by the safety council.

Winners were: Mr. and Mrs. Ira S. Waters, 1808 Cody dr., Silver Spring, first prize, $25; Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Regardio, 10430 Inwood ave., Silver Spring, second prize, $20; Mr. and Mrs. John M. Waters, Jr., 7303 Bradley blvd., Bethesda, third prize, $15; Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Eicher, 9503 Page ave., Bethesda, fourth prize, $10, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Dupree, 37 Montrose ave., Garrett Park, fifth prize, $5. The presentations were made by Mrs. Dorothy Himstead, member of the council, who was one of the judges.

Prince Georges School Bond Issue Approved

The Prince Georges County Commissioners yesterday approved a $500,000 bond issue for completion of eight county schools and purchase of sites for seven more.

The action followed a request by Superintendent of Schools G. Gardner Shugart and Director of School Planning Thomas S. Gwynn, jr.

The school officials said construction costs have advanced sharply during the Korean crisis and the rearmament program.

Of the total, $372,000 will be used toward completing the eight elementary schools; $88,000 toward purchase of the sites and $40,000 for equipment in the county's four major high school projects.

The bond issue funds will supplement eight million dollars in State funds and six million dollars from the county already allocated for the program.

The elementary schools to be completed through the bond proceeds are Wildercroft, Landover Hills, Camp Springs, Columbia Park, Holly Grove Lanham, Brandywine and Surrattsville.

Sites will be purchased for schools covering Accokeek, Chilum, Holly Grove, Berwyn, Clinton, Columbia Park and Capitol Heights.

In addition, Shugart said the Board of Education has 14 other school sites under consideration. No provision was made for these in the bond issue.

In other business at yesterday's meeting in Marlboro, the commissioners authorized purchase of five new snow plows for a total of $3850. Addition of these plows will bring the county's fleet up to 20.

In response to a request from the County Real Estate Board, the commissioners set October 24 at 2 p. m. for a conference with the board

Planning Bill Wins Support Of Rep. Smith

The Senate-passed bill to increase the powers of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission was blessed belatedly yesterday by Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.).

The House District Committee member, who had blocked the measure, now says he will help Chairman John L. McMillan (D., S. C.) steer the bill through the committee when Congress returns in November.

But a committee source insisted last night the legislation still faces a dubious fate, despite Smith's indorsement and President Truman's appeal for its passage to aid area-wide civil defense planning.

Some southern Democratic and Republican committee members have questioned the provision which defines the Metropolitan Washington area as within a 50-mile radius from the White House. Others claim the commission comes under the Interior Department.

Representative Smith said he will give his approval because Arlington County planning officials have advised him they are "satisfied" with it.

The bill also would increase its membership to include one Virginia and one Maryland resident.

Smith has won informal committee approval to an amendment stipulating the two new members must be residents of "nearby" Maryland and Virginia.

Subcommittee Chairman Thomas G. Abernethy (D., Miss.), who conducted several meetings on the bill, is known to be strongly opposed to the measure. The idea of Federal planners having authority outside the District is said to be his chief concern.

ADVERTISING OPPORTUNITY
Here's a chance for a college graduate to get a toehold on the advertising ladder. To start, it's only a messenger's job at $30 a week. Within a few months, the next step will be calling on the retail trade, doing merchandising. After that—probably advertising salesman, but maybe research or production or copy, depending on the man. This is really a good opportunity and we want to give it to the right man. Since it's primarily a stepping stone to selling advertising, don't apply unless you have a sales personality. If in doubt, you haven't.

Walter Winchell . . . In New York

The Big Town

Broadway Silhouettes: Movie moppet Margaret O'Brien, growing very fast, from a Babe in Arms to an Armful of Babe . . . Ava Gardner stealing the show from Indian summer along Central Park South . . . Somerset Maugham, dean of the story-tellers, browsing unrecognized in Doubleday's . . . Harry Carroll, whose top ditty was "I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles" (and his bride, Polly Baker), ogling the midtown lights—just in from Las Vegas . . . Dame Edith Sitwell's millinery—congesting traffic near the St. Regis . . . Ann Miller, the MGM dreamboat, flickering her lashes at the columnists in the Cub Room. No doap, Annie! . . . The Rex Harrisons (Lili Palmer) just off the Queen from London, reporting to The Little Club . . . Ginger Rogers in stitches and teeheesteris over Joe E. Lewis' Copa capers.

Sallies in Our Alley: Milton Berle and some of the El Borracho crowd were gabbing about show business and singers . . . The theme was: Some people never know when to retire . . . "A singer should quit the business," was Milton's eloquent logic, "when a songplugger lets him pick up the check" . . . Overheard in Gilmore's: "I gave up something when I married you!" . . . "I know—Poverty!"

Memos of a Midnighter: Lee Tracy and "21" staged quite a scene the other midnight. His punishment is Banishment For Life . . . Peggy Ann Garner and Richard Hayes are making it a habit . . . The next oldie to make The Hit Parade (watch 'n' see) will be "Please Don't Talk About Me When I'm Gone." It's in John Garfield's next, "The Breaking Point" . . . The Bert Andrews of the Herald Trib's Washington bureau are giving intimates the "miseries." Because the persistent rumor appears to be true . . . Remember our recent novelette about the Camden woman who left $20,000 to the Runyon Fund because she feared her husband would kill her? He pleaded guilty to 2d degree murder and got 25 years . . . Specs are getting $125 for sets of series tix.

Midtown Heroine: Molly, the waitress, is a jolly, motherly woman . . . She works in a restaurant off 51st . . . She angels 17 refugees in her Brooklyn flat . . . None are related . . . Her most recent gift for them was a large-screen TV set . . . Every year she applies for more displaced children until they are able to go out on their own . . . All this on tips she gets as a B'way waitress at Bird-in-Hand, where she is officially known as Molly Epstein. And she's only 68.

Times Sq. Smalltalk: Ilona Knight, the disrobeaut, and American artist Fernando Puna are very July for October . . . Music being featured right now at the Rockefeller skating rink is (pardon the subversion) "A Russian Lullaby" . . . "A Bushel and a Peck" from "Guys and Dolls" is touted by Tune Pan Alley experts as the next barrelhouse click for Frank Loesser . . . A novelty song smash is the new "Looks Like a Cold, Cold Winter." A dozen firms are recording it . . . Eileen Wilson is the first headliner set for the Newspaper Reporters' Ass'n Byline Ball at the Hotel Roosevelt on the 28th . . . Fifth Avenue shops are featuring fancy-ribboned candy packages to be sent to GIs overseas. One is tagged at only $97—the container being gilt-edged. Just the theeng for a foxhole.

Stardust Story: Bette Davis, who was turned down for dramatic study by Eva Le Gallienne "because she wasn't serious enough to become a great actress," plays a great actress in her latest film, "All About Eve" . . . Bette played The Curran, a legit house in San Francisco, where the manager apologized for the dressing room, a dingy thing in which the paint was peeling, the plumbing leaked and the mice were sassy . . . "Oh, that's all right," she said. "Hollywood spoils everyone with its royal treatment when you're a star. This cubbyhole was good enough for the Barrymores and Bernhardts. All an actress needs is a place to hide when she changes clothes. The ankle-deep carpets, mirrored walls and elegantly furnished dressing suites which Hollywood gives newcomers tend to magnify their own opinion of themselves."

Seeds for an Orchid Garden: Jane Froman (plus Joel Herron's music) at the Persian Room . . . Barbara Cook, a new thrush, at Blue Angel. A lookie-cookie, too . . . Ethel Waters as "Beulah" via ABCtv Chewsdays . . . Evelyn Knight's zinging of the new and exciting song, "Lucky, Lucky Me" . . . Carl Mydans' orb-arresting reporting in Life on War Corresponent Marguerite Higgins.

Sights You Never See from a Sightseeing Bus: The 14K gold bottle-opener in the jewelry shop at 55th and 5th. $135 plus tax . . . The newest gathering place for the town's loveliest models: The drug store in the new Madison Avenue edifice where Look and Esquire live . . . The ice skaters in the Rockefeller Center rink in the 88 degree heat . . . The traffic cop's horse looking very glum at the indignity of being tied up with all those automobiles in that 54th near 6th parking lot . . . The elderly matron in black, who inhabits the balcony of the W. 57th Automat and (via her lorgnette) inspects the peasants below.

Sounds in the Night: At the Rough Rider Room: "Rich? He's a crepe-hanger in Brooklyn!" . . . At Cafe Tokay: "Typical society couple. He's got all kinds of money and she has all kinds of boy friends" . . . In Birdland: "He's the type of heel who'll make some gal a wonderful widow" . . . At the Wivel: "They're celebrating their tenth Wedding Animosity."

George Brandt (of the Brandt Theatre chain) weds actress Ellen Fenwick Nov. 7th . . . Red Sox pitcher McDermott and former Copa siren Cissee Buthee are having their own World Series . . . The clippings from London testify to Barbara Perry's click . . . Juliet Lowell, whose next book is "Dear Me," arrives back tomorrow unmarried. A Sun Valley, Idaho, divorce . . . Coals-to-Newcastle Item: Baltimore oriole Eva de Luca has been signed for an operatic tour of Italy . . . Ana Ricarda of the Marquis de Cuevas Company (at the Century Theatre) is the stage name for the Social Register's Ann Simpson . . . It's a girl for the J. Jordans of "Mr. Roberts" . . . "Another Mug for the Bier" (Lippincott) by mystery novelist Richard Starnes deals with the murder of a famed Washington radio commentator . . . It begins to look as though O'Dwyer called the gambler-cop probes a witch hunt because he was afraid of the brooms.

'People Named Smith'

Smiths Look Down Their Noses at Smyths

EDITOR'S NOTE: America's No. 1 humorist here tells the riotous story of America's No. 1 family—the Smiths. The author of "Low Man on a Totem Pole" and "We Went Thataway" has hit another high in this story. This is the third of six articles from the book, "People Named Smith," published this week by Doubleday & Co.

By H. Allen Smith

CHAPTER THREE

The average Smith looks with considerable distaste on anyone bearing the name Smyth, or Smythe.

A Smith can tolerate a person with any one of the many foreign variants of his surname, but he is somehow contemptuous of Smyths, just as he is inclined to be antagonistic toward Hyphenated Smiths.

It appears to be almost inherent in a Smith to believe that a Smyth was originally a Smith and changed the spelling for the sake of haughtiness. This cleavage between Smith and Smyth becomes all the more curious when we consider that many Smyths will snarl at you if you address them as Smith.

There exists a lovely illustration of this latter point. Because Smyth and Smith antithetical, Notre Dame once unexpectedly beat the Army at football.

A Case in Point

The year 1923 was the first year in which the famous backfield called the Four Horsemen played together as a unit for Notre Dame. That year found the Army riding high, unbeaten in two seasons.

Then into New York came Notre Dame and the Four Horsemen (not yet known by that name and the experts gave them little or no chance against the power of the West Pointers. Harry Stuhldreher, quarterback for the Horsemen, has recounted the story of what happened that afternoon.

One of the backfield stars for the Army was George Smythe, and George Smythe needed to be stopped if Notre Dame was to get anywhere at all.

Just before the game started someone told Stuhldreher that George Smythe of the Army hated to be called Smith—that he had been known to assault people who addressed him as Smith.

Startegic Heckling of Smythe

Stuhldreher had a quiet conference with some of the boys who played the line in front of the Horsemen. Joe Bach was given the key assignment. Joe was to lead the strategic heckling of George Smythe.

The throng in the stands weren't aware of it, but all through that game the Notre Dame players were calling the West Point star "Mister Smith."

Smythe would drop back to punt and Joe Bach would call across the line, "Why, Mister Smith, you going to kick it now?"

Or one of the other Notre Dame boys would speak in mock politeness to the whole Army team: "Why don't you fellas give the ball to Mister Smith now?"

As had been anticipated, George Smythe grew both furious and wild. He began to flub important plays and got off sorry punts.

The final score was: Notre Dame 13, Army 0.

The Smyth Report

There are some excellent people in the world named Smyth. Among them is a man we would dearly love to have using an "i" instead of a "y" in the middle of his surname — Henry De Wolf Smyth, the physics professor out of Princeton who is sometimes called "Mr. Atom."

He is, at this writing, the top scientist involved in the Atomic Energy program and he was picked to write the first official history of the Manhattan District wartime atomic bomb project. His book was released a few days after the big egg was dropped on Hiroshima, and was widely known as the Smyth Report.

I wrote to Professor Smyth, seeking his thoughts on the subject of Smith versus Smyth. I am informed that he carried the letter around in his coat pocket for a month.

Now and then he'd drag it out and look at it again and compose himself for some deep thinking, but always a film of heavy hydrogen would choose that moment to envelop his mind.

At last he handed the letter over to Mrs. Smyth and asked her to answer it. In a way, I'm glad he did, for her letter contained the following eloquent paragraph:

"The sad truth is that we cannot think of anything of the slightest use to you in this dismal business of being called Smyth. From our lonely island we look across at all the happy, carefree people called Smith cavorting on the mainland, untroubled by those who misunderstand and misspell. It must be a wonderful life."

There is at least one other Smyth whose career suggests that she was operating under a disguise and actually belonged to us —Dame Ethel Smyth, who died in 1944 and who was one of England's top composers.

She was famous as a violent suffragette, smoked cigars, and was jailed once for throwing a brick through the Home Secretary's window when the Home Secretary was home.

The Smyths, however, must wait for their own book, as must the Schmidts and the Goldsmiths and the Chilingirians and the Schmids. I drop that last one in deliberately in order that I might mention a particular Schmid. A man of that name is deserving of wide recognition for a single achievement. He wrote a dictionary of the language used by hens. I have not seen his book, but I shall not rest until I have my copy. There are so many questions I want to ask hens.

There are 209 Smiths listed in the British Who's Who and fifty-one of these are Hyphenates. Among them are Lucie-Smith, Heathcote - Smith, Broke - Smith, Shrapnell - Smith, Hammersley-Smith, Rivers - Smith, Lumley-Smith, Protheroe-Smith, Grafftey-Smith, Babington-Smith and Tottenham-Smith.

In the phalanx of hy-
Phenated names!
(Have you ever observed
That the name of Smith
Is the oftenest hy-Phenated with?)

Confusion Over 'Smith' Names Never Comes When It Should

Some 40 years ago, an unknown Washington expressman named Arthur C. Smith began receiving mail and phone calls intended for T. Arthur Smith, owner of a large theatrical ticket agency of that day.

A. C. Smith

"I finally got tired of trying to convince people that I didn't have tickets to hit plays," recalls Arthur Clarendon Smith, head of the Smith Transfer and Storage Co. "So I started using my full middle name, instead of just the middle initial."

There were times, says Smith, when he might have welcomed a bit of confusion stemming from his name. But things never seemed to work out that way.

"I borrowed $500 from my wife to buy a horse and wagon and start in business," he explains. "Mrs. Smith still reminds me occasionally that I've never repair her—but that's another story.

"What I started out to say was that I had very little money in those days, and no credit. I had to buy feed for the horse on a day-to-day basis, and pay cash for it. And when I didn't have the money to buy the feed, the Humane Society would haul me in.

"A couple of times I sat in the Park Road Police Station and wondered why the summons couldn't have been delivered by mistake to some other Smith, or why this Smith couldn't have been born just a little bit richer."

Czechs Expel British Official

PRAGUE, Oct. 3 (AP).—Czechoslovakia accused the British vice consul in Bratislava today of spying and demanded that he and his Czech-born wife leave the country within 48 hours.

The name of the vice consul, M. Lawrence Gordon Gaze, came up at the opening of a spy trial of eight persons at Brno, Moravia. Gaze was said to have received intelligence reports from the group, which is on trial for plotting to overthrow the Czech Communist-led regime.

Prague radio said the government demand was contained in a note to the British Embassy here. Gaze is the second British vice consul to be ordered out of this country in less than four months. Adrian McLaughlin, vice consul in Prague, was ordered to leave in June after being named in a spy trial.

Margaret Truman Ill, Cancels Concert Date

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (AP).—Margaret Truman's concert manager, James Davidson, today said that a severe case of laryngitis had forced the President's daughter to postpone the opening of her fall concert tour in New London, Conn., Wednesday.

Davidson said Miss Truman would sing at her scheduled concert in Binghamton, N. Y., Oct. 10.

Italy Spends Too Little, ECA Charges

ROME, Oct. 3 (AP).—M. Leon Dayton, of Portland, Oreg., European Recovery Program chief for Italy, today criticized the government of Premier Alcide de Gasperi as spending too little money to advance Italian recovery.

The American official, who heads the ECA office here, said United States experts have known since 1948 that Italy's financial policy has retarded recovery.

"We have pressed the government just as hard as we could to get it to be less cautious," said Dayton. "They are trying to ride a middle road.

Dayton added that the government's policy "is still one of curtailment of credit and the result is that investment capital is scarce."

Dayton pointed to the $2,640,000,000 spending program announced last April as a decision that "relaxed the caution" manifest in previous government decisions.

Some factions are known to feel the Italian economy is sound enough now for the government to proceed safely into a sizable defense program. It has been pointed out, however, that if this were true, there would be no need for the ECA to be handing 200 million dollars of its funds to Italy this year.

He added that "you can prove statistically that the average Italian is earning more now than ever before and that his money will buy more than it ever did before." This condition, he said, must be maintained.

Lana Has Six Sets

Hollywood Frowns, But TV's Hot Item

By Aline Mosby

HOLLYWOOD, (U.P.)—Hollywood cold-shoulders television in the public prints, but privately TV is a hot item in movietown mansions.

The film stars are ordering their TV sets custom-built. They install them every place from the bottom of their beds to by their swimming pools, and by now video is vital in the Hollywood home along with custom-made automobiles, dog houses and suede jackets.

Ginger Rogers

Ginger Rogers' set is installed at the foot of her bed. This, explains TV set designer Arthur Crawford, is because Ginger likes to loll in the sack while gazing at Hopalong Cassidy or Faye Emerson.

William Powell, Randolph Scott and Ronald Coleman go in for Crawford's remote control TV gadgets. Colman's set is hidden inside a cabinet that matches his custom-made furniture. He twists the dials from another cabinet by his armchair.

Scott's video screen is concealed behind a door in his bar, which happens to occupy the middle of the living room. The controls are hidden under a secret panel in an end table by the davenport.

Most luminaries, in fact, go for hiding their TV screens, possibly because some anti-TV movie exhibitor might wander in. Interior decorator William Haines, an ex-movie-star himself, has hidden many a TV screen behind a picture hung above a fireplace. He cached Benay Ventura's set behind a folding screen. Violinist Jascha Heifetz has his installed behind some bookcases.

Another custom set designer, David Jones, made a TV unit 10 feet long for a movie big-wig. This piece of furniture included a concealed 22 by 28-inch TV screen, wire recorder, three-speed phonograph, radio, chrome-plated bar, mirror and a glass front that lights up.

For a Warners' Studio mogul, Jones built a TV screen into a wall and disguised it as a picture. The TV set also revolves so it will face the opposite direction. Thus guests can open a little door in the wall outside and watch video while they float in the swimming pool.

Jones built Producer Jan Grippo's set in black-and-gold Chinese modern, to match his furniture, and put it on wheels. Jones also makes them with glass speakers "to match a person's home or habits." Another producer, a fancier of dogs, has his set etched with same. The movie mob also goes in for TV sets that double as bookcases and plant holders.

"We also have TV sets that project on the ceiling so people can look at television in bed," adds Jones.

To date Lana Turner holds the record for the number of supercolossal TV sets around here. She has six.

NBC's projected Sunday night radio variety bill has been set for opening October 29. Title has been changed from "Dream Show" to "The Big Broadcast." It will run 6 to 7:30 p.m., including the time Jack Benny is the CBS competition.

The WEAM broadcast of the World Series can be heard in all restaurants and establishments where Muzak is heard, and will be picked up by local airlines.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Tunlaw Is Just Walnut Spelled Backward

"See if you can do something for residents of Tunlaw rd., will you?" wrote Larry S. Lynch of 2626 Tunlaw rd. nw. about 10 days ago.

"On the hill in back of Mount Alto, one side of the road is curbed, the other is not. Erosion caused by rain water rushing down the uncurbed side has created what we call 'Tunlaw Gulch.' It's from 12 to 14 inches deep, and motorists who park there are in constant danger of damaging their cars.

"By the way, do you know that the Mount Alto site was known as 'Walnut Hill' years ago, and that 'Tunlaw' is Walnut spelled backwards?"

Nope, I didn't know that. But I did know that Samuel R. Harrison of the Highway Department is the man to call for information about street repairs.

Harrison reported back yesterday that repair crews were just about finished with the job of putting down some temporary asphalt curbing to confine the rain water to one channel. This may cause police to limit parking in some areas, because the road is quite narrow. But that can't be helped.

Permanent repairs? The answer is a familiar refrain: "Funds currently available and expected in the foreseeable future will be devoted to projects with a higher priority."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Small, pretty dog, mixture spitz and collie, needs home with fenced yard." (Taylor 4949 between 9 a. m. and 3 p. m.)

ATTENTION, RESERVES

Capt. MacArthur H. Manchester (Adams 0434) has an interesting proposition for Army Reserve enlisted men. He says:

"If you are not presently assigned to an organized reserve unit and have not received orders to report for a physical examination prior to recall to active duty, you may be qualified for assignment to 'Washington's Own'—the highly skilled 310th Logistical Command."

The 310th is the newest reserve unit in this area, and is headquartered at Fort Myer, Va. Its members get a day's pay twice a month for a two-hour drill session (Thursdays), and will not be called up for active duty individually. They'll go back only if the entire 310th is needed as an active duty organization.

Further information may be had by calling Captain Manchester.

ALMOST?

Al Sisson of 4609 24th st. nw. overheard a fellow on a bus say: "It takes a smart man to stay single. As Harry might put it, women have a propaganda machine almost equal to Stalin's"

SPEED VS. ORDER

I was chatting with Traffic Director George Keneipp the other day and found him in a philosophic mood. You might be interested in some of the things he said:

"In the first place, we have no illusions about 'speeding things up' when we put in a new light. A traffic light, by its very nature, slows things down.

"But sometimes surveys indicate that cross or pedestrian traffic is heavy enough to create a problem. Unless the main artery is periodically halted, others can't use the intersection in safety.

"Then you've got to install a light, in spite of the fact that it will—to some extent—slow up traffic on the main street.

"In the present controversy, we certainly have not closed our minds to the possibility that the 14th and D sw. light should be turned off, or adjusted to a different timing schedule.

"But we're also keeping in mind that this intersection cannot be isolated; it's a part of the whole 14th st. problem extending from F st. nw. to the river.

"Not only that light needs study, but nine other factors in the area. And we're conducting those studies right now.

"In two weeks, we hope to have for the Commissioners a series of recommendations for improving that entire stretch of 14th st.—things we can do now, with funds already on hand.

"We'll need the cooperation of the folks at National Capital Parks, the P. U. C., our own Highway Department, and perhaps several other agencies. But I think we'll be able to come up with something worthwhile."

HOW'S THAT AGAIN?

In response to my father's complaint that I haven't written home to describe the remainder of my vacation, I replied: "What's the matter—don't you read my column in your mail edition of The Washington Post?" Dad's deadpan answer was:

"When The Post is delivered, I lose no time in reading your column."

THOUGHT FOR TODAY

It's all a matter of viewpoint. The pessimist calls a doorway an exit, but the optimist thinks of it as an entrance.

Truman Fails to Act on Inflation

By Drew Pearson

Though Congress has authorized President Truman to invoke price controls, he continues to do nothing about it. Meanwhile, the deadly spiral of inflation goes up and up, and the buying power of the American people's dollar gets less and less.

Pearson

The housewife probably doesn't need to read this in the newspaper, but the Nation's market basket now costs her almost 20 percent more than she spent to feed her family before the outbreak of the Korean war last June.

Here are a few examples:

Creamery butter is up 16 percent since June, while the average family's bread and bakery bill has risen between 8 and 10 percent.

The price of bacon is up 16 percent since June.

A dozen eggs costs 70 cents and higher, compared to 52 cents in June—an increase of 32 percent.

Coffee has jumped from 74 cents a pound in June to 84 cents for better grades, or a price boost of 13 percent.

Housing Barriers

Meanwhile, veterans of the last war are finding it tougher than ever to buy the homes which Congress promised them five years ago. Here are a few reasons why:

The President has tightened credit controls on lower-bracket home buyers, but he has done nothing about controlling the soaring prices of building materials.

Copper wire and other electrical and plumbing equipment has risen from 10 to 20 percent, while home fuels are 10 percent higher than last year.

However, despite the growing trend of inflation, President Truman still refuses to control prices, though he has the powers to do so if he wants to use them. The Democratic party has long criticized Calvin Coolidge's indifference to inflation, claiming—quite rightly—that it led to an unforgettable depression. Unless Truman acts in a hurry, he will be far more responsible for inflation than the much-criticized Republican administrations from 1921 to 1933.

Sawyer's Mildness

One of the big inside reasons for failure to impose wage and price controls is the lackadaisical attitude of well-meaning, likable Charles Sawyer, the Secretary of Commerce.

The other day, tough-minded Stuart Symington, head of the National Security Resources Board, learned that his friend Sawyer was going to make two milk-toast, middle-of-the-road speeches regarding price controls. Symington's advisers debated whether they should warn the Secretary of Commerce that airtight, tough controls would be necessary.

However, they decided not to call Secretary Sawyer. To warn him, they decided, would mean that he would only get busy and lobby against the controls which they were planning.

Kansas City Crime

The United States attorney who put President Truman's pal, Tom Pendergast, in jail was slated to be subpenaed before the Kefauver Crime Committee in Kansas City last week, but for some reason he was never called.

What the Senate committee was interested in was any possible friendship between two Mafia leaders and Maurice Milligan, the United States attorney whom Truman fired a few days after he became President. The committee was also interested in Milligan's brother, former Congressman "Tuck" Milligan.

It happened that two leaders of the underworld society Mafia in Kansas City, Joe de Luca and Joe di Giovanni, received favors from the two Milligans in 1942, and the Senate committee at first proposed to look into the matter.

Joe de Luca was convicted on a narcotics rap in 1942, at which time narcotics agents of the United States Treasury recommended he be given 15 years and deported to Italy. However, United States Attorney Milligan, through his assistant, Richard Phelps, recommended only three years and opposed deportation. After De Luca had served only one year of his sentence, Milligan's brother, the Congressman, arranged for a parole.

Later, De Luca violated parole and was slapped back in the pen. But within a month, "Tuck" Milligan, the Congressman, had arranged another parole.

The Senate committee also was curious as to why United States Attorney Milligan had blocked a search warrant for narcotics agents when they wanted to search Di Giovanni's cellar for dope. Narcotics agents had given the Senate Crime Committee a recording of a telephone conversation between the two Mafia members, saying that the District Attorney's office had fixed De Luca's narcotics trial. However, for unexplained reasons, the Senate probers at the last minute decided to lay off.

Note—The layoff was certainly not inspired by the White House. It would have given Mr. Truman great pleasure to have had the man whom he ousted as United States Attorney investigated by a Senate committee.
